Dresner, Caught in a Trap, Recants All His Testimony Before Goff.

STORY A TISSUE OF LIES

Was Hired to Testify, a Report Which Whitman Now Will Investigate.

SECOND BECKER TRIAL MAY 6

"Lefty Louie" Offered a Confession —Clancy's Last Hour Plea for Reprieve for "Dago Frank"

One of the witnesses who testified at the hearing before Justice Goff on Saturday last on the application for a new trial for the four gunmen who slew Herman Rosenthal was locked in the Tombs late yesterday afternoon, a confessed perjurer. His arrest and subsequent imprisonment followed a dramatic interview which he had with District Attorney Whitman and Assistant District Attorneys Groehl and Minton. The case, it is believed, ultimately will reveal startling methods employed in the defense of the four gunmen and of ex-Lieut. Charles Becker.

The testimony of this witness, had it been corroborated, would have won a new trial for the four gunmen and would have sent Sam Schepps to the electric chair. The witness, who now admits that he tried to involve Schepps and others so that the gunmen might be saved, is in peril of imprisonment of ten years for his offense.

The confessed perjurer is Carl Dresner, an Austrian, 29 years old, of 147 East Fifty-fifth Street, a cutter by trade. Some days before the application for a new trial for the gunmen was made by Charles G. F. Wahle and H. Lionel Kringel, their attorneys, Dresner made an affidavit in which he said that he knew all of the informers against Becker intimately; that he was near the Garden Restaurant on July 12, 1912, and heard Jack Rose plotting against Rosenthal's life; and also that he was at the scene of the Rosenthal shooting four days later and saw the murder car pass. In the car, he swore, were Harry Vallon and Bridgie Webber, while Sam Schepps was standing on the running board. He swore to this before Justice Goff at the hearing last Saturday and under cross-examination stuck to his story persistently.

In contrast with this testimony Dresner yesterday made this affidavit in District Attorney Whitman's office:

Gunmen's Witness Recants.

City and County of New York, ss:

I, Carl Dresner, being duly sworn, do depose and say:

I made certain affidavits in the law office of Wahle & Kringel of this city, on the 10th day of April, 1914, and I testified before Mr. Justice Goff of the Supreme Court on the 11th day of April, 1914, substantially as follows:

That I stood in Forty-third Street, near Sixth Avenue, on the morning of July 16, 1912, and saw a gray car drawing toward Sixth Avenue on Forty-third Street, at about 2 o'clock, and that one Sam Schepps, was standing on the runningboard of the said car.

I further swore in my affidavit and stated to the court as aforesaid that on an evening prior to July 16 I saw Jack Rose, Bridgie Webber and others standing near the Garden Restaurant, and heard Jack Rose say to Bridgie Webber, 'Put it over him now," or words to that effect, and that I saw Herman Rosenthal coming from said restaurant.

Said statement and all of the statements of fact which I made at said times are false and untrue, and were known by me to be untrue at the time they were made.

I was not on Forty-third Street or in that vicinity on the morning of July 16, 1912. I did not see a gray motor car or any motor car which I now recall on that day. I never saw Sam Schepps nor any other persons standing on the running board of any such car. I did not see Jack Rose or Bridgie Webber in the vicinity of the Garden Restaurant.

I never have seen Jack Rose, and I should not know Bridgie Webber. I did not hear Jack Rose or any other person say "Put it over him now." I did not see Herman Rosenthal at the Garden Restaurant on the evening of the 13th of July, 1912, and I never saw the said Rosenthal at the said restaurant or in that vicinity.

I have not been promised any immunity or reward of any kind from the District Attorney of this county or any representative of the District Attorney. I make this statement voluntarily, and I have come to the office of the District Attorney to-day because I saw in the newspapers this morning that he was going to conduct an investigation, and I felt sure that he would learn the falsity of my testimony, and I therefore came and gave myself up.

CARL DRESSNER.

Dresner Was in a Trap.

It was not by chance, it was learned, that Dresner decided to change his testimony. As a matter of fact, he was so involved in an investigation which Mr. Whitman started immediately after the gunmen's witnesses had testified that he was helpless. He confessed perjury after he saw that there was no other way out.

Dresner went to the District Attorney's office of his own free will. With him, however, under subpoena was Abe Guerson, whose name was brought into the case by Dresner on Saturday. According to Dresner, he was on his way to see his friend Guerson in the Elks Club on West Forty-third Street on the morning of the murder. Mr. Whitman had found Guerson and had learned that Dresner was not in communication with him at all on that morning. Guerson, in fact, gave some other information which caused Dresner to run to cover.

Dresner entered the Criminal Court Building shortly after noon and was taken before Lloyd D. Willis, secretary to Mr. Whitman.

"I see by the newspapers that District Attorney Whitman is going to make an investigation of the witnesses who testified for the gunmen last Saturday," began Dresner.

"That's right. Well, what of it?" asked Mr. Willis.

"Well, I just wanted to know whether they want anything of me," replied Dresner. "What I testified to was the

BRYAN RESIGN?

Washington Hears Rumors That He Will Because Dissatisfied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Rumors were heard here to-day that Secretary Bryan is dissatisfied with the President's new Mexican policy, just as there have been other rumors, which apparently had no foundation, of differences between the President and the Secretary of State. One unconfirmed report is that Secretary Bryan instructed Mr. O'Shaughnessy to waive Admiral Mayo's demand that a salute be fired as reparation for the Tampico indignity, and that this action was reversed by the President. To-night it was said that Mr. Bryan intended to resign from the Cabinet to become the head of the Carnegie Foundation for Universal Peace at a salary of $25,000; but authorities of the Foundation said that there was not the slightest ground for this statement. The gossip has it also that Mr. Bryan was one of three Cabinet officers who opposed the President's decision to send the Atlantic Fleet to Tampico. All these rumors are taken here with the greatest reserve.

VOLLEY STOPS HORSE RACES

Oklahoma Militia Force the Closing of the Track at Tulsa.

TULSA, Okla., April 15.—Disregarding a restraining order issued by Judge M. A. Breckenridge of the Superior Court, State troops to-day took possession of the Tulsa Fair Grounds, which had been proclaimed under martial law by Gov. Lee Cruce, and when an attempt was made to run the races carded for the afternoon fired a volley over the heads of the jockeys as the horses were dashing down the stretch.

With this show of force and the declaration of Frank M. Canton, Adjutant General, who was in personal command of the troops, that if another race were started the militiamen would fire to kill the horses, officials of the Tulsa Jockey Club ordered the Spring race meeting, which began Monday, abandoned, at least temporarily.

To-day's action was the culmination of a contest over the right of bookmakers to operate at the track. Open betting was permitted on Monday, and an application was filed by county officials before District Judge L. M. Poe, asking that an injunction be issued prohibiting the placing of wagers. A report was made to the Governor on Tuesday that violation of the State's anti-gambling laws continued, and last night the proclamation declaring the track under martial law was issued.

The next move will be the hearing of habeas corpus proceedings instituted in behalf of several men arrested by the State troops to-day. Application for the writs was filed late to-day before the Court of Commonwealth Appeals in Oklahoma City.

The troops remained on duty at the Fair Grounds to-night. To-morrow trainers will be allowed to enter the grounds.

VINCENT ASTOR BETTER.

"Condition Greatly Improved," Says Physicians' Night Bulletin.

Vincent Astor, who has been seriously ill for a week with an affection of the right lung at Hopeland House, Staatsburg, N. Y., the home of his fiancée, Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, daughter of Robert P. Huntington, was greatly improved last night, according to a statement issued by his physicians. The statement was:

"Mr. Astor has abscess in the lower part of the right lung. This has discharged through his bronchi. His condition is greatly improved. His temperature has been normal for the past twenty-four hours, and everything seems to be progressing satisfactorily."

The report on Mr. Astor's condition was given out at 8 o'clock at Hopeland House, where he has been attended by Dr. Lewis A. Conner of 121 East Sixty-second Street and Dr. James F. McKernon of 62 West Sixty-second Street, as well as by Staatsburg physicians.

Mrs. John Astor, mother of Mr. Astor, is still at his bedside, and his fiancée also is permitted to see him. He is attended by two graduate nurses. It was said that he would be removed to his home as soon as his condition would permit.

ORDERS 54 LOCOMOTIVES.

Union Pacific Spending $1,000,000 to Prepare for Exposition.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., April 15.—The Union Pacific Railroad, it is announced at headquarters in this city, has just placed an order for nearly $1,000,000 worth of locomotives for delivery before the opening of the San Francisco Exposition. The engines will be built by the Lima Locomotive Corporation.

Fifty-four locomotives are contained in the order, there being 25 of the Pacific type, 15 Mikados, and 14 six-wheelers. Forty of the new locomotives are apportioned to the Union Pacific, 10 to the Oregon Short Line, and 4 to the Oregon-Washington Line.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 15.—Rush orders for forty-one all-steel box cars have been placed with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's car shops at Altoona. In view of the fact that the cars are for quick delivery, the order is taken as an indication that business is improving. Some time ago the company placed an order at the Altoona shops for 1,000 freight cars, but when the retrenchment policy was inaugurated work on the cars was curtailed.

WEEKS OFFERS TO ENLIST.

Senator, an Annapolis Graduate, Tenders Services to President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—A striking demonstration of the wish of Republican Senators to support the President's new Mexican policy came to light this evening, when it was learned that Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts had volunteered for active service in the navy in case recruiting should become necessary. Mr. Weeks's offer, it is understood, was tendered direct to President Wilson, who received it with appreciation and will hold the offer open till further developments are plain.

Mr. Weeks, a graduate of the Naval Academy, class of 1881, served in the Navy until 1883. It was his ambition to be a sailor and the regret of his life is said to be that the overcrowding of the officers' list at that time necessitated a drawing of lots that forced him into civil life.

When the Spanish war started Mr. Weeks entered the Naval Militia and quickly rose to the rank of Captain, a title still familiarly applied to him. As captain of militia Mr. Weeks commanded a small craft off the Massachusetts coast. A recent revival of the Senator's old disappointment was the failure of his son to enter the Naval Academy. Instead, he matriculated at Harvard.

$15,000 GEM THEFT AMAZES BROADWAY

Daylight Robber Smashes Window with a Brick, Seizes Diamonds and Escapes.

LOCKS DOOR, STOPS PURSUIT

Proprietors Imprisoned in Shop Near Thirty-sixth Street While Thief Flees to a Taxicab.

In the driving rain at 6:30 o'clock last night a slim young man stopped in front of Rosenthal's Curiosity Shop, at 1,366 Broadway, between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Streets. In the window were trays of diamonds said by the store's owners to be worth from $125,000 to $150,000. The young man paused near the door an instant, as if about to enter. Then he moved to the front of the large display window, and sent a brick smashing through it.

Two members of the Rosenthal firm, standing just inside the front door, saw the brick thrown and saw the big hole it made in the window at the height of the man's shoulder, a foot above the diamond trays. They blew police whistles while a young woman running from the rear of the store screamed "Murder!" at the top of her lungs.

The partners, and even the young woman, tugged at the front door, but it would not budge an inch, and they had to stand helpless while they saw the eager thief put his arm through the hole repeatedly and pick up bunches of diamonds—diamond brooches, diamond rings, and diamond-mounted studs.

Peering through the front door, those inside the store saw a heavy chain leading from the door-knob to a post, to which is fastened a steel gate at closing time each night. They tugged away for five minutes and then it was finally the door-post which gave.

By this time the man had taken the contents of five diamond trays and had sped southward in Broadway to a loft building at the northeast corner of Thirty-sixth Street, through which a hallway led to Sixth Avenue. He turned in at the front door of this building, but when employes of the Rosenthal store tried to follow him they found the door fastened from the inside. Later it was discovered that the thief had even planned his route of escape and prepared a second chain to fasten the door in the loft building after passing through it.

Policeman Half a Block Away.

The case, as entered on the police blotter at the West Thirtieth Street Station, showed that the thief made "a clean get away." Policeman Burdick, on fixed post at Thirty-seventh Street, half a block away from the Rosenthal store, ran toward the building on hearing the falling glass. He arrived in time to see a slim young man in a raincoat disappearing in the building two doors further south, and to obtain something of a description of him from excited persons who had seen him pass.

Police Capt. Ward of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who led a squad of reserves, declared the robbery was the most skillfully planned he had known in recent Broadway history.

Michael Rosenthal, proprietor of the Curiosity Shop, estimated his loss at $15,000 after two hours' work upon the firm's books, checking up the records of what had been in the trays with the diamonds still left after the thief had lifted out a handful from each of the principal trays.

The robbery, carried out as it was in the rain by a man working without confederates, could not have been successful, according to the police, at any other hour of the day. At the time it occurred the night life of the White Light District had not yet stirred into activity, and the business crowds had just thinned down to their lowest numbers. An hour earlier and an hour later Broadway in the vicinity of the Curiosity Shop was crowded with people, despite the heavy rain.

Persons who were passing in Broadway at the time were so busy striving to keep their umbrellas from blowing inside out and their raincoats wrapped about them that they had little time to observe what any one else was doing.

The thief evidently had chosen his time with extreme care, and he also chose with a care that evoked exclamations of admiration from the police, the chain with which he locked the front door shut. The chain was found to be "cut to fit" so that the door could not be moved for a single inch while the links remained in place. So that it would make no noise while being put in place, the chain was wrapped with adhesive tire tape.

Two big padlocks had been fitted at the ends of the chain and the task of fixing it to the door and the iron post outside was merely a matter of snapping the two locks shut.

Michael Rosenthal, head of the Rosenthal firm, has been in the diamond business in this city for fifty-two years. Because of experience with thieves while his store was in the Bowery for more than forty years, he had installed almost every kind of safety device recommended for keeping out skillful burglars.

"I don't think it could have happened any other way," Mr. Rosenthal said while his sons, Joseph and Harry, worked on the inventory at 11 o'clock, "for I had tried hard to make the place burglar proof."

Mr. Rosenthal pointed to the roof across which thin copper wires were stretched two inches apart. He pointed to electric alarms attached to each door and to a big notice that the store was protected by an agency. In the rear of the room there was a patch on the ceiling where a burglar had entered two years ago and had cleaned out the case containing gold mesh bags and other heavy gold articles.

"You see, that case is empty," he said, "for ever since the previous robbery we have kept such goods in the safe, and have displayed them only when customers have come. My son Harry went on the vaudeville stage once, and he wanted me to make a specialty of diamond for actors. So I did and moved up here from the Bowery to be in the White Light District. That was six years ago. Now this thief comes along, and he cuts out the profits of all those years—and more. He selected the biggest and best and most expensive diamonds from each tray."

The first crowd that collected after the robbery was composed of guests from the Marlborough Hotel, across the street, who were attracted by the screams of Miss Frances Rosenthal, one of those locked in the store. As the theatre crowds began to assemble the sidewalk in front of the store became the centre of a crowd so dense that policemen had to keep the people moving.

Detectives Van Twistern and Phelan found persons in Sixth Avenue who said they saw the thief climb into a taxicab at Thirty-sixth Street and Sixth Avenue and move off rapidly northward.

THREATEN ARRESTS IN BILLARD CASE

Folk Plans Grand Jury Action To-day Against Recalcitrant New Haven Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, April 15. — Unless there is an overnight change in the attitude of witnesses in the New Haven Railroad investigation who refused to tell the Interstate Commerce Commission about the operations of the Billard Company, to which millions of dollars of New Haven securities are alleged to have been illegally diverted, proceedings under the criminal statutes will be instituted here to-morrow by the Government to compel them to testify. This was announced to-night by Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Folk to-night wired Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, counsel for the recalcitrant witnesses, that arrangements had been made with the District Attorney's office here to begin proceedings before the Grand Jury to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Cummings had asked that the matter be postponed, but he was advised that if his clients desired to change their attitude and testify he must inform the commission before 10 o'clock to-morrow.

Under the Federal statutes cited by Mr. Folk, any person who refuses to testify in such an inquiry shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $5,000, by imprisonment of not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment.

If the proceedings are begun to-morrow, it is said that the Billard Company, the several recalcitrant witnesses supposed to be connected with the Billard Company, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and the latter's subsidiary, the New England Navigation Company, will be made the defendants.

The witnesses who appeared before the Commission last week and from whom virtually no information was obtained were Harry V. Whipple, President of the Merchants' National Bank of New Haven; Samuel H. Wingway, President of the Second National Bank of New Haven; A. S. May, Treasurer of the New Haven; Walker D. Hines, Counsel for the New Haven; A. E. Clark, Secretary of the New Haven; Arthur W. Bowman, Assistant Treasurer of the New Haven; Edward I. Field, of New Haven, and Samuel Morehouse, of New Haven, Counsel for the Billard Company.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 15.—Homer S. Cummings said to-night: "I have advised Mr. Folk that I have an important engagement to argue a case in the Supreme Court of Connecticut to-morrow at Bridgeport, and that it is utterly impossible for me to go to Washington. Under these circumstances, I have requested a reasonable delay, to give me opportunity to consider the matter and confer with my clients."

Mr. Cummings said he represented only Samuel Hemingway, President of the Second National Bank of New Haven, and John A. Billard. Mr. Billard was not called as a witness and does not figure in the contempt proceedings Mr. Folk is instituting. Mr. Cummings says that the only question involved is one of law. His client, Mr. Hemingway, and other witnesses, acting under advice of counsel, have refused to answer questions on the ground that they were illegal and improper. An attempt will be made by counsel to sustain this contention.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 15.—At least one of the witnesses who last week refused to testify as to his connection with the Billard Company has changed his mind. Edward I. Field of this city, treasurer of a large local department store, who held a minor office in the Billard Company, said to-night he was prepared to testify before the Commission when called upon. Asked whether he would turn over to the Commission what books he had, he declined to say.

H. V. Whipple, President of the Merchants' National Bank of this city, was not inclined to-night to credit the news from Washington that proceedings would be started in case of failure to testify. He had nothing to say for publication, except to give the impression that he had not changed his attitude.

Mr. Billard was reached at his home in Meriden, but declined to comment on the Government's intended action.

RAIN, HIGH WINDS TO-DAY.

Storm to Continue, but Better Weather Is Due To-morrow.

The wind, which blew from the east northeast at a velocity of 40 to 75 miles in New York and the surrounding country yesterday, was accompanied at intervals with driving rain that made walking impossible in some thoroughfares. The Government forecaster said at night that the mean temperature was 41, compared with 52 on the same date last year. He added that the rain and high winds would continue to-day, clearing toward night, and that it would be finer to-morrow.

Incoming ocean liners had some difficulty in making fast to their piers. The Olympic of the White Star was more than an hour at the end of the pier before she could get alongside with the aid of ten tugs.

Several persons were struck by falling signs. Mrs. E. B. Merrell, 35 years old, of 206 West Seventieth Street, was blown under an automobile at Seventieth Street and was driven by the chauffeur, Fred Wernle, employed by A. M. Powell of 326 West Seventy-second Street, to the Polyclinic Hospital, where it was found her legs were injured.

DEERING GIVES $1,000,000.

Provides Clinics for a Chicago Hospital.

CHICAGO, April 15.—A gift of $1,000,000 from James Deering to Wesley Hospital was announced here to-day. The gift is in the form of an endowment, and is to be used in establishing clinics to furnish medical aid to the poor.

Wesley Hospital was founded by William Deering, father of James Deering. The name of the hospital will be changed to Wesley Memorial Hospital.

CREW SWEPT OFF STRANDED SCHOONER

Only One Man Gets to the Shore from Vessel Aground Near Sea Bright.

SEA BRIGHT, N. J., April 15.—An unidentified three-masted schooner went ashore about a half mile from here this evening, and carried by the strong wind, floated on down the coast until she brought up near Galilee. The vessel flashed lights and sent up rockets. The life savers at Station 4, North Long Branch, went to her aid.

There was a heavy gale, and this made the work of the life saving crew very dangerous. The life savers from the West End station were notified of the ship's distress and started to go to her.

It was about 8 o'clock when the schooner first struck here. Hundreds of villagers ran into the street when they learned there was a ship ashore and some persons went to the shore in autos.

The breeches buoy was rigged up, and after several attempts the Monmouth Beach Life Savers managed to shoot a line across the bow of the vessel and it was made fast to the ship. It took more than an hour after the vessel was found for the life savers to shoot a line to her, as the wind carried the line away from her on each attempt.

The life savers from West End station came up the shore with their apparatus and took up a position close to that of the Monmouth Beach men, and then the two crews alternately shot lines from the cannon toward the schooner. They were able to see the dim outline of the vessel, and they were also guided by the flashes sent from the vessel, but they were not able for some time to gauge the distance she was from the beach.

One man was brought ashore at midnight and he said there was only one other member of the crew aboard the ship. He said the others were washed overboard in the storm. He was taken to the Long Branch Hospital suffering from exhaustion.

The rescued sailor was so exhausted that he could talk but little, and the name of the schooner or the number of men lost from her were not known at a late hour to-night.

The rescue was a spectacular one. The lifesavers put a searchlight on the beach and when this was turned upon the ship the form of a man close to the broken foremast could be made out. He was seen to move about, when the seas were not washing over the vessel, and the lifesavers saw that he was seemingly trying to tie a rope about his waist. Just after a wave had washed over the schooner he jumped overboard. He landed in among the lumber which had been washed from the deck, and was injured severely.

The lifesavers decided that the sailor had fastened the small line fired from the cannon around his waist, and they pulled on this, and found he was on the other end of it.

He was unconscious when he was pulled ashore. There were cuts on his head and body and hands, and at first it was feared that his skull had been fractured, but a physician soon restored him to consciousness.

The lifesavers then turned the searchlight on the wreck again, but they were not able to see the second member of the crew. They kept the rays of the powerful light trained on the boat in the hope that the other man might follow the example of his companion and jump overboard with a line.

BELMONT TRUNKS SEIZED.

But August, Jr., Gives Bond for Auto Claim and Catches Panama Boat.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.—Only the quick posting of a $100 bond for his appearance in the First City Court here saved August Belmont, Jr., who had been whiling away a week at the Grunwald Hotel, from missing his Panama boat at 11 o'clock this morning.

The bond was posted to rescue Mr. Belmont's trunks from a City Court Sheriff, who had seized them as security for a $17 damage claim made by John Remley, an auto dealer.

Young Belmont made a hurried trip to the City Court last night when told of the damage claim, shook a $1,000 bill under the nose of Mr. Remley and said he would fight the case to a finish.

According to Mr. Remley, Mr. Belmont, who gave his address as 120 Fifth Avenue, New York, "but was only there one week out of every fifty-two," hired an auto Monday afternoon. Mr. Remley says the machine bumped into something on Canal Street; damage, $17.

FIGHT IN ELEVATED STATION

Prisoner Nearly Throws Police in Harlem to Street Below.

Henry Mullen, a chauffeur, of 285 Thirteenth Street, Brooklyn, asked for whisky in Max J. Pryer's saloon, 2,356 Eighth Avenue, near 135th Street, last night. Pryer refused to serve him. Mullen hurled a beer glass at Pryer, ran out the door, and up the stairs to the north-bound platform of the elevated railroad.

Patrolman Henry A. Rame of the Lenox Avenue Police Station gave chase. Mullen locked himself in the men's lavatory, and Rame broke down the door and threw his arms about the fugitive. With a roar of rage Mullen hit the policeman twice and forced his head back.

Picking up Rame, Mullen carried him to the open window, twenty-five feet above the pavement, and started to throw him to the street. Rame kicked and struggled, but the upper part of his body was jammed through the window, when, in desperation, he seized the sash and hung on, shouting for help.

There were many spectators on the platform and in the street, but none gave aid. Rame, with a kick drove Mullen back, but Mullen resumed the attack, and was bearing him to the window again, when Sergt. McLoughlin, of Traffic Squad B, joined in the fray. McLoughlin beat Mullen into subjection with a billy. Charges of assault and felonious assault were lodged against Mullen.

HUERTA REFERS DEMANDS TO SENATE; HE MAY BE PROPOSING ARBITRATION; WILSON READY TO BLOCKADE SIX PORTS

Huerta Belittles Tampico Incident; Says There Is No Quarrel With Us

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, April 15.—Mexico has controversies with nobody, least of all with the great American Nation.

The Tampico incident has no special importance.

I send this in reply to your esteemed message.

V. HUERTA.

President Wilson's Statement of the Situation.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The following official statement was issued to-day as representing the views of President Wilson and the Administration:

"In discussions in official circles in Washington of the present Mexican situation, the following points have been very much dwelt upon:

"It has been pointed out that, in considering the present somewhat delicate situation in Mexico, the unpleasant incident at Tampico must not be thought of alone. For some time past the de facto Government of Mexico has seemed to think mere apologies sufficient when the rights of American citizens or the dignity of the Government of the United States were involved and has apparently made no attempt at either reparation or the effective correction of the serious derelictions of its civil and military officers.

"Immediately after the incident at Tampico, an orderly from one of the ships of the United States in the harbor of Vera Cruz, who had been sent ashore to the Post Office for the ship's mail, and who was in uniform, and who had the official mail bag on his back, was arrested and put into jail by the local authorities.

"He was subsequently released and a nominal punishment inflicted upon the officer who had arrested him, but it was significant that an orderly from the fleet of the United States was picked out from the many persons constantly going ashore on various errands from the various ships in the harbor, representing several nations.

"Most serious of all, the officials in charge of the telegraph office at Mexico City presumed to withhold an official dispatch of the Government of the United States to its Embassy at Mexico City, until it should have been sent to the censor and his permission received to deliver it, and gave the dispatch into the hands of the Chargé d'Affaires of the United States only upon his personal and emphatic demand, he having, in the meantime, learned through other channels that a dispatch had been sent him which he had not received.

"It cannot but strike any one who has watched the course of events in Mexico as significant that untoward incidents such as these have not occurred in any case where representatives of other Governments were concerned, but only in dealings with representatives of the United States, and that there has been no occasion for other Governments to call attention to such matters or to ask for apologies.

"These repeated offenses against the rights and dignity of the United States, offenses not duplicated with regard to the representatives of other Governments, have necessarily made the impression that the Government of the United States was singled out for manifestations of ill will and contempt.

"The authorities of the State Department feel confident that when the seriousness and the cumulative effect of these incidents is made evident to the Government of Mexico, that Government will see the propriety and the necessity of giving such evidences of its desire to repudiate and correct these things as will be not only satisfactory to the Government of the United States, but also an evidence to the rest of the world as an entire change of attitude.

"There can be no loss to the dignity of the de facto Government in Mexico in recognizing in the fullest degree the claims of a great sovereign Government to its respect."

PACIFIC WARSHIPS ORDERED TO MEXICO

Admiral Howard Directed to Send the Maryland and Several Other Vessels Southward

AND CONCENTRATE MARINES

Speculation in Washington as to Strategy of Blockading the Mexican Ports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Orders flashed by the Secretary of the Navy to-day to Rear Admiral Howard, in command of the Pacific fleet, contained instructions for a naval demonstration on the west coast of Mexico. The order provided for increasing the number of vessels in Mexican waters, and a general concentration of marines from various points on the west coast of the United States.

This latest move naturally increased speculation in military circles as to what the American warships were to do when they arrived in Mexican waters. While the strategy of the proposed occupation of Mexican territory is a military secret, there are general principles inherent in the situation which are wholly obvious to those who are giving close study to what is going on.

When Admiral Badger arrives at Tampico, granting that a decision has been reached to adopt forcible measures, he will land a force and hold the city. Almost simultaneously Vera Cruz and Puerto Mexico will be seized by Admiral Fletcher. On the west coast Admiral Howard will seize the ports of Acapulco, Mazatlan, and Salina Cruz. All these ports will be declared blockaded, and the commerce of the world will be denied entrance to any of them.

The seizure of these ports, Tampico, Vera Cruz, Puerto Mexico, Salina Cruz, Acapulco, and Mazatlan, will place the United States in possession of the very vitals of Mexican trade and commerce, and at once deprive the Huerta Government of the revenues it now derives from customs receipts. But an even greater blow at the commercial life of Mexico, resulting from these seizures and the blockade, will be the fact that the greatest bulk of the railroad traffic of the country will be paralyzed.

In these operations the two ports of Puerto Mexico and Salina Cruz are perhaps the most important. They are the ocean terminals of the Tehuantepec National Railroad, which has direct connections with the Mexican Central Railroad running up through the States of Vera Cruz, Pueblo, Mexico, Hidalgo, and Mexico City into the interior, and also with the Pan-American road running southward along the Pacific slope through Oaxaca and Chiapas into Guatemala. Vera Cruz is the terminal for the National Railroad of Mexico, the Tehuantepec National, the Vera Cruz Railroad, and the Vera Cruz and Isthmus Line.

As none of the Mexican seaports has been fortified adequately, except as the exigencies of the present revolution have led to temporary earthworks to defend Tampico, the American warships will not in any case bombard any of them. Under the Hague rules as to civilized warfare such a course is deprecated and in all instances the United States will observe such a rule. It is not, however, at all likely that there will be any serious struggle for possession of any of them unless possibly Vera Cruz, which has the historic old fortress of San Juan d'Ulloa for its sentimental protection. In the war with Mexico in 1847 the United States Navy quickly captured it and Vera Cruz was made the base of Gen. Scott's operations leading to the capture of the City of Mexico.

Order to Pacific Fleet.

The orders issued to Admiral Howard, commanding the Pacific Fleet, embrace the movement of a number of vessels at once to Mexican waters on the Pacific Coast. This explanatory bulletin was given out by the Navy Department:

The Secretary of the Navy to-day telegraphed to Admiral Howard, in command of the Pacific Fleet, that the ships in Mexican waters on the west coast would be increased in number. The Pittsburgh, now at the Puget Sound Navy Yard, will transport 260 marines to San Francisco, where they will be joined by 600 marines now at Mare Island, constituting a regiment of marines which will be transported to San Diego, where they will be under the orders of Admiral Howard.

The transport Buffalo and the armored cruiser Maryland, now at Mare Island, will proceed to Mexican waters.

The Cleveland will proceed from Mare Island to Mazatlan, and will be followed in two weeks by the Chattanooga.

The torpedo flotilla of the Pacific Fleet, with their tender, the Iris, which are at San Pedro, Cal., has been ordered to stand by waiting for orders to proceed to any Mexican port to which Admiral Howard may order them.

The collier Jupiter and the collier Saturn are loading coal for the Pacific Fleet, and will soon leave San Francisco for Mexican waters.

This statement was given out also:

The following is a list of naval vessels of our Pacific Fleet now on the west coast of Mexico, the ports at which they lie and the Captains of the respective ships:

Cruiser Raleigh, at Mazatlan, Commander Thomas P. Magruder.

Cruiser New Orleans, at Topolobampo, Commander Noble E. Irwin.

Gunboat Yorktown, at Topolobampo, Commander George B. Bradshaw.

Supply ship Glacier, at Acapulco, Lieut. Commander Charles M. Tozer, flagship of Rear Admiral Howard.

Armored cruiser California, at Acapulco, Capt. Newton A. McCully.

Gunboat Annapolis, at Mazatlan, Commander Henry J. Zeigemeier.

The armored cruiser Pittsburgh is going into reserve. Her crew will be utilized to man the cruisers Cleveland and Chattanooga. Both of the latter will be available for service in a few days if they are needed.

The Cleveland has been ordered to proceed to Mazatlan. The Chattanooga will be ready for active service in about two weeks.

The additional ships ordered for service on the Mexican West Coast will bring the force of warships there up to eighteen, with a personnel of 5,000 men, including a regiment of marines.

PACIFIC VESSELS LOADING.

Cruiser Albany to Leave Seattle on Friday—South Dakota May Go.

SEATTLE, April 15.—The cruisers Albany and Pittsburgh at the Puget Sound Navy Yard are taking on stores of coal and ammunition. The Albany has been ordered to leave for the South on Friday and the Pittsburgh to stand by. All yard work on the Pittsburgh has been suspended.

Rear Admiral Robert M. Doyle, commanding the Pacific Reserve Fleet, has advised the Navy Department that the cruiser South Dakota can be made ready for service in seventy-two hours, and has recommended that she be sent, in preference to the Pittsburgh.

The 230 marines at the Navy Yard, under Col. Joseph H. Pendleton, have been ordered to be ready to sail on the first ship departing.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Gen. Huerta submitted to an executive session of the Mexican Senate to-day the demands of the American Government for a salute to the flag.

No report has been received by the Washington Government late to-night as to the result of the deliberations.

Although no definite information was available, the fact that Gen. Huerta had submitted the case to the Mexican Senate, which is specially charged with the conduct of foreign relations, and not to the entire body of Congress, led to the belief here that he had sought authorization from the Senate for the arbitration of the question under dispute.

Under the treaty of 1848 between the United States and Mexico, it was proclaimed that if any disagreement arose of a political or commercial nature, the two nations "do premise to each other that they will endeavor, in the most sincere and earnest manner, to settle the differences so arising, and to preserve the state of peace and friendship in which the two countries are now placing themselves, using for this end mutual representations and pacific negotiations; and if by these means they should not be enabled to come to an agreement, a resort shall not on this account be had to reprisals, aggression or hostility of any kind by the one Republic against the other until the Government of that which deems itself aggrieved shall have maturely considered, in the spirit of peace and good neighborship, whether it would not be better that such difference should be settled by the arbitration of commissioners appointed on each side, or by that of a friendly nation; and should such course be proposed by either party, it shall be acceded to by the other unless deemed by it altogether incompatible with the nature of the difference or the circumstances of the case."

A special arbitration treaty for the settlement of all disputes except questions of national honor expired in 1913, and Administration officials have held that not even the treaty of 1848 is in force at present, because no Government in Mexico has been recognized.

It was, nevertheless, believed in official circles to-night that Gen. Huerta would persist in his attempt to interject the question of arbitration into the situation, in spite of the fact that he had already been informed that the American Government would not consider arbitrating the question of the salute to the flag.

The above confirms the news printed in a late edition of THE TIMES yesterday morning as follows:

MEXICO, April 14.—President Huerta has prepared for submission to Congress an important declaration.

Congressmen say it is probable that they will approve his highly patriotic action.

This, with information as to the nature of the declaration, was taken to the White House at 3 A. M. yesterday, but no confirmatory advices had then been received, and it was twenty hours later when Washington received its own news. THE TIMES'S information as to the nature of the "declaration" to be submitted by President Huerta did not point to arbitration. But it has happened before that Gen. Huerta's midnight views have been softened next day, and his pacific telegram to THE TIMES, received late yesterday afternoon, accords with the theory set forth in the above dispatch.

PORT BLOCKADE WILSON'S PLAN

President Tells Purpose to Congress Leaders, Who Approve.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—President Wilson's present Mexican policy contemplates not war with Mexico, but the seizure of Mexican ports and the maintenance of "a peaceful blockade" until the Huerta Government furnishes adequate reparation for the arrest of an American naval officer and American bluejackets at Tampico.

With determination written in every line of his face and with a positive ring in his voice, despite its quiet tone, the President to-day outlined the policy he intended to pursue to bring President Huerta to terms. This is the programme of action as it was explained by the President to members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on Foreign Affairs:

1. Vera Cruz and Tampico will be seized, and ports on the west coast of Mexico will also be occupied, and a "peaceful blockade" of both coasts will be established.

2. The occupation and blockade will continue until the Mexican Government inflicts adequate punishment upon the Federal Army officer who made the arrests at Tampico and a national salute of twenty-one guns has been fired by a Mexican fort to the United States flag.

3. No time limit for compliance by the Mexican Government with President Wilson's demands has been fixed, and there will be no seizure of any Mexican port until after the arrival of the Atlantic Fleet, under Rear Admiral Badger, at Tampico.

4. Should circumstances occur that render immediate forceful action necessary, Admiral Badger will follow his own judgment without waiting for further instructions from Washington.

5. Should no such circumstances compel immediate seizure of Mexican ports, the President will address Congress on the subject of his stern attitude toward Mexico, and will ask Congressional approval of his plan to take and hold Vera Cruz, Tampico, and other places and establish a blockade of both Mexican coasts.

6. There will be no declaration of war, the President contending that ample precedents justify seizure of ports to obtain reparation for national insults without going to the extreme of such a declaration.

7. The occupation of Mexican ports will cease when American honor has been satisfied through compliance with the President's demands, unless Congress should determine otherwise.

Orders for the Pacific Fleet.

In further preparation for the expected emergency, the vessels of the Pacific fleet have been ordered concentrated on the west coast of Mexico. Rear Admiral Thomas B. Howard, commanding the Pacific fleet, will await additional orders.

All this looks like war, and to all intents and purposes it is war. But in international dealings there is a fine distinction between the use of armed forces to accomplish a specific immediate purpose and the hostilities which involve an attack on an enemy at every opportunity and a general invasion of an enemy's territory. A pacific blockade has long been recognized in diplomacy as something that does not necessarily involve actual hostilities. In his "Outlines of International Law," Brig. Gen. George A. Davis, late Judge Advocate General of the United States Army, says in reference to such a blockade:

"It has never been considered as a war measure; nor does it resemble, except in name, the belligerent right of blockade which is sanctioned by international law."

After orders had been issued to-day for a naval demonstration on the Pacific coast of Mexico, as well as on the Atlantic, Gen. Huerta was advised that the most powerful fighting force the American Government has ever assembled at sea, carrying thousands of marines and bluejackets, was headed for the seaport towns of the southern Republic, ready to enforce to the extreme the American policy. Upon Gen. Huerta depends the next development; he has practically a week to decide the question, for the warships will not reach Mexican waters for several days.

In the meantime, all foreign Governments have been notified by the United States of the attitude toward the Tampico incident, and of the dispatch of the fleets to Mexican waters. This notification is in line with the previously announced policy of keeping foreign nations advised of all steps taken by the American Government in the Mexican situation.

Huerta's Offer to Arbitrate.

It was learned to-night that Gen. Huerta when apprised by Chargé O'Shaughnessy of the proposed demonstration of the Atlantic fleet, argued that the episode growing out of the arrest of the American bluejackets at Tampico was a fit subject for arbitration at The Hague, and that he would appoint a commission to investigate the incident. President Wilson, in an emphatic reply through Mr. O'Shaughnessy, is understood to have told Gen. Huerta that the time for delay and evasion had passed.

All the early information, official and otherwise, that reached Washington from Mexico City tended to show that Gen. Huerta was unconvinced that the United States was in earnest, and thought the Washington Government was bluffing. Some anti-American demonstrations at Vera Cruz and other points were reported.

President Wilson's disclosure of his programme was made to a delegation of Senators and Representatives from the Committees on Foreign Relations and Foreign Affairs who called on him by appointment at the White House today. They were Senators Shively of Indiana, Acting Chairman, and Lodge of Massachusetts, senior Republican member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and Representatives Flood of Virginia, Chairman, and Cooper of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

When the Senators and Representatives entered his room, the President immediately began an explanation of the reasons that had actuated him in ordering the Atlantic Fleet to Tampico. At first he showed considerable embarrassment, and his usual ready flow of language failed him. But he had not proceeded far in his narrative before the indignation that he felt over what had occurred in Mexico overcame his diffidence, and he spoke with a determination and a facility that greatly impressed his auditors.

Approval Encourages President.

The President had an unsmiling face during the first portion of his recital, but encouraging expressions from the Senators and Representatives to the effect that Congress would back him up in the course he had outlined in dealing with Huerta made him fairly beam with satisfaction. For the remainder of the interview his cheerfulness was marked, although he did not once seem to lose sight of the grave situation that confronted the Government in carrying out the programme he had laid down for compelling Huerta to accede to his demands.

With their ears strained to catch every word, the two Senators and the two Representatives heard the President tell how his patience over conditions in Mexico had become exhausted until he could not longer tolerate a strict observance of the pacific policy which he had outlined when he addressed Congress on the subject of relations with the southern republic. He stated that the United States had "been subjected to a systematic and studied series of insults that had not been directed against any other nation which had interests in Mexico. He insisted that all the facts in the possession of this Government went to prove that the Huerta administration had purposely embarked upon a policy of insulting the United States Government and its citizens with the object of holding them up to the ridicule of the Mexican people.

These insults, said the President, had culminated in the Tampico affair and two events of seemingly less importance which had occurred at about the same time. He explained the circumstances of the arrest of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp of the Dolphin and the bluejackets who had landed with him at Tampico and their subsequent release. Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, he said, had demanded an apology from the local Federal commandant, the punishment of a subordinate officer who had made the arrests, and the firing of a national salute as reparation for the indignity offered to the American uniform and flag.

A Direct Insult to the Flag

For, according to the President, the Stars and Stripes had been insulted. An American flag flew from the bow and another from the stern of the whaleboat in which Copp and his party had gone ashore, and two bluejackets who had remained in the boat were forcibly removed from it, although it was constructively United States territory and the men were under the protection of their own national colors.

The apology demanded had been given, and the punishment of the offending officer had been promised. But the salute demanded by Admiral Mayo had not been fired, and the President declared that it was his intention to compel complete compliance with all that the Admiral had deemed necessary to wipe out the slight which Mexican officials had placed on the dignity of the United States. It was to obtain this reparation that he had sent the Atlantic fleet to Tampico, and he explained that Admiral Badger would be instructed to demand compliance with the following terms:

First, the punishment of the Mexican Federal Army officer who had arrested Copp and his men.

Second, that the American flag be saluted from a fort.

The President mentioned also the arrest of a marine mail orderly from the American squadron at Vera Cruz a few days ago, and the fact that a cipher telegram sent by the State Department to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé in Mexico City, had been kept from Mr. O'Shaughnessy by Mexican Government officials until he demanded its production.

These incidents, slight in themselves, were, nevertheless, of importance, according to the President's argument, when taken in connection with the general conduct of Mexican Government officials toward the United States and its citizens.

After having reviewed the situation that had developed the President told of the plan of operations adopted to bring the Mexican Government to his terms. He outlined the programme of action given at the beginning of this dispatch, and explained that, should no incident occur which, in the judgment of Admiral Badger, made it necessary for him to seize Mexican ports without delay, he himself would go before the two houses of Congress and ask that the course he had adopted be sanctioned. With the sanction obtained of Congress he would order Admiral Badger and Admiral Howard to carry out their instructions, unless, of course, the offending Mexican officer had in the meantime been punished and the American flag saluted by a Mexican fort.

No Declaration of War Necessary.

The President contended that no declaration of war was necessary to justify the seizure of Mexican cities and the maintenance of a peaceful blockade, and he mentioned the attack upon the Japanese forts and the bombardment of Greytown, Nicaragua in Franklin Pierce's Administration, as evidence of the soundness of this contention. It was virtually agreed that when Vera Cruz, Tampico, and other ports had been or were about to be seized—for the President and his advisers seemed to be certain that Huerta would refuse to comply with the American demands—the future course of the United States should be along the lines of a declaration to be adopted by Congress. Alternate suggestions of the character of this declaration were practically sanctioned as follows:

First—A declaration that the only purpose of the United States was to hold the seized ports until the reparation demanded had been accomplished; or,

Second—A declaration that the future attitude of the United States would depend upon the conduct of the Mexican Government, this declaration to abstain from any assurance that the United States forces would withdraw from the seized ports.

In the course of the conference President Wilson sketched the character of Gen. Huerta in such a way as to make the Mexican President appear to be a man of dissolute habits, who was frequently in a dangerous condition of temper due to excesses. He also told of having been informed that some of the advisors of Huerta were men of "a very venomous character." In this connection, all those present expressed considerable concern over the safety of Americans, and other foreigners in Mexico. The fear was voiced that the seizure of Mexican ports might be followed by acts of inhumanity directed at foreigners, and particularly at Americans.

It came out in the course of the conference that the President was angry with Chargé d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy because of the latter's alleged intimacy with President Huerta. The President had been told, he said, that Mr. O'Shaughnessy rode in Huerta's private car, and that he and the Mexican President seemed to be the closest of friends. Mr. Wilson did not hesitate to say that he would recall Mr. O'Shaughnessy at once if it were not for the fact that the appointment of his successor could not be accomplished without recognizing the Huerta Government, to which the President is just as firmly opposed as ever.

When the two Senators and the two Representatives returned to the Capitol they made know to their colleagues of the committee what had been told them by President Wilson. The President's story was received with expressions of approbation, and it is already asserted that he will have the overwhelming support of both houses of Congress when he comes before them to obtain ratification of the drastic policy he has adopted toward Mexico.

Although what was said by the President to-day indicated that he believed it would be necessary for this Government to seize Mexican ports, there is, nevertheless, a faint hope in the Administration circle that Huerta will consent to perform the acts of reparation demanded, and thus make this action unnecessary.

A Last Call to President Huerta.

This hope was voiced in a statement given out to-day which represents the Administration's explanation of its reasons for ordering the Atlantic Fleet to Tampico. At the conclusion of the statement it is said that "the authorities of the State Department are confident that the Mexican Government will show a desire to repudiate and correct its course in a manner to give evidence to the rest of the world of an entire change of attitude." There can be no loss to the dignity of the de facto government of Mexico, says the statement, in recognizing in the fullest degree the claims of a great sovereign Government to its respect. It is evident that this is intended as a last call to Gen. Huerta to grant the reparation demanded.

Senators and Representatives who have heretofore been inclined to criticize President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting" express themselves as in accord with his course of action to compel Huerta to furnish reparation for the Tampico affair. One of them said to-night that the only ground for present criticism of the President that he could see was that he did not apply his new policy to the Constitutionalists. He said that if the President would adopt an equally positive course to make it plain to Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa that they must hereafter respect the lives and property of Americans and other foreigners he would find the whole Congress behind him, without regard to party lines.

A hopeful sign with reference to the future conduct of the Constitutionalists has been given by assurances from Gen. Carranza, made public by Secretary Bryan to-day, that hereafter he would receive representations from the United States in behalf of foreign Governments whose nationals had suffered injury at the hands of the Constitutionalists. Carranza had contended in the case of William S. Benton, the British ranchman killed in Gen. Villa's headquarters at Juarez, that the United States Government had no right to make representations affecting a subject of another Power, and had declined to accede to the request of this Government that Benton's body be exhumed and examined by agents of the United States.

Huerta Warships Leave Tampico.

This dispatch from Rear Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz, dated 10 P. M. last night, was received at the Navy Department to-day:

No new development at Tampico. Constitutionalists have retired from the vicinity. Business resumed and refugees returned. Mexican gunboats Progresso and Zaragosa have left Tampico.

The disappearance of the two Federal gunboats from Tampico caused much speculation. Constitutionalists expressed the belief that Huerta might evacuate Tampico and send the gunboats to Vera Cruz. In this event, it was asserted, the Constitutionalist forces would immediately take the town.

SENATORS APPROVE PRESIDENT'S ACTION

Foreign Relations Committee Unanimously Pledges Its Support.

Some Senators Believe That the Occupation of Mexican Ports Is Inevitable.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—When Senators Shively and Lodge returned to the Capitol from their conference at the White House they went at once to a meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee, where they reported what the President had said to them. The members of the committee received this information as of the utmost importance. There was unanimous approval of what the President had done, and complete willingness was expressed on both sides of the table to support the President in whatever action he might think necessary to wipe out the insult to the American flag.

The gravity of the situation was illustrated by suggestions from Senators as to probable results. Several members of the committee expressed the view that things had gone so far that even the salute demanded of Gen. Huerta would not satisfy the United States. These Senators seemed to think that, the fleet once mobilized off the Mexican coast, the Administration should not permit itself to be put in what they termed the ridiculous position of calling it back to the United States simply because at the last moment a salute had been fired.

The opinion seems to be growing that whether the salute is fired or not both Tampico and Vera Cruz will be occupied. But it could not be ascertained whether this opinion was based upon anything specific said by the President this morning. What angers Senators more than the arrest of the bluejackets at Tampico, and the affront which officials are said to have made at Vera Cruz to stop a navy mail messenger and take his dispatches.

Latest of Many Affronts.

Senators who received the report of Mr. Lodge and Mr. Shively said that the arrest of the bluejackets was simply the culmination of a long series of affronts from the Huerta forces. The publication of these affronts at this time, it was pointed out, after they had been kept secret so long, pointed to a desire on the part of the Administration to arouse public sentiment in support of extreme measures. No one doubts that the President will have the enthusiastic support of the whole country in any stern policy toward either faction in Mexico.

A Republican Senator on the Foreign Relations Committee, according to a current report this morning, suggested to his associates that the President be authorized at once by a joint resolution to "use the armed forces of the United States" to protect the national flag without further consultation with Congress. But while the intention was approved, other Senators pointed out that such a step might tend to force the President's hand, and was not necessary yet.

The committee received definite assurances that unless the salute came very soon—about a week seems to be the accepted limit—President Wilson would appeal personally to Congress for authority to do what might be necessary. This would mean the occupation or bombardment of Mexican ports, if it did not mean actual invasion on a wholesale scale. This request, whatever it is, will be granted by both Houses the day it is made, and the prediction is that the dissenting votes may be counted on the fingers of one hand.

The sweeping success of the President in rallying all parties behind him has already frightened the opponents of the tolls repeal project. These Senators seek to ridicule the chorus of approval that has answered the President's orders to the fleet. There is no heroism involved in blowing any Mexican port out of the water, they say; and, while such a course may be necessary in the present instance, they urge that it ought not to serve as an appeal for the passage of measures advocated by the President that have no bearing on the subject.

Trying to Ridicule Mayo.

This attempt to ridicule the Tampico campaign found its most pointed expression in a fake telegram attributed to Admiral Mayo that was circulated in the Senate Chamber this afternoon. The telegram read:

Secretary Navy, Washington, D. C.:
Mexican gunboat in plain sight. Indications are its gun has been repaired, and I fear it will attack our battleships. Please hurry up reinforcements.
ADMIRAL MAYO.

But most Republican Senators are anxious only to give their full indorsement to the President's course. Senator Works of California, a radical Republican, who denounced Col. Roosevelt and President Taft in the last campaign and voted for Mr. Wilson, has issued a statement criticising the show of force. Representative Mondell of Wyoming has done the same thing. Other Republicans in the Senate this afternoon spoke sharply of their colleagues' action and said criticism of the President now was almost criminally foolish.

"We hope," said Mr. Shively on leaving the White House, "that Gen. Huerta will relieve a really grave situation, but if not, we are prepared to back up our demands. There have been no developments since last night, and before any bombardment of Mexican ports or the occupation of Mexican cities the President has assured us he will ask the consent of Congress. The President told us what has happened so far, but what will happen hereafter will depend on Mexico."

Mr. Lodge expressed complete approval of what the President had done, and declared that the demand for the salute was in accord with almost invariable precedent. Mr. Lodge is anxious to show that the Republicans are as nearly unanimous in their support of the President's aggressive policy as the Democrats, and it is certain that practically all the Senators of his party will follow him.

In its eagerness to support the President in every way the Committee on Foreign Relations this morning indefinitely postponed the resolution of Senator Poindexter, of Washington, asking the President to specify the things of "nearer consequence and greater delicacy" that failure to repeal the tolls exemption would make difficult for him to handle. At the same time the Committee sent over until next week the resolution of Senator Jones, of Washington, asking the State Department for a list of the countries, if there were any besides Great Britain, that had protested against the tolls exemption clause.

Some interest was aroused by the committee's ordering favorable reports on the nominations of Warren D. Robbins of Massachusetts to be Second Secretary and John C. White of Maryland to be Third Secretary of Embassy at Mexico City. These appointees will give Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, assistance, which the state of his health makes very necessary; but some doubt was expressed whether the appointment of new diplomatic representatives to Mexico might not involve a technical recognition of Gen. Huerta's administration. It was explained, however, that as subordinates of the Embassy they need not be accredited to Gen. Huerta. They will report to Mr. O'Shaughnessy, it is expected, and will serve directly under him. Their introduction to the Mexican officials will then be personal.

MONDELL ASSAILS WILSON.

Says He Seized Tampico Excuse to Cover Tolls Surrender.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Representative Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, rose at his seat in the House today and inquired why the country, in this latest Mexican crisis, had heard nothing about Secretary Bryan's cruiser "Friendship" and his super-dreadnought "Good Fellowship" having been sent to Tampico with the rest of the fighting craft of the United States. Mr. Mondell feared that these two vessels might have been forgotten and left behind. He said:

"We have been offering the nations of the world treaties under which we are to arbitrate matters involving questions of national honor; but to-day the fleet is steaming under forced draft to Tampico. For well-nigh a year in Northern Mexico American citizens have been insulted, browbeaten, their their property destroyed, and their lives would not be satisfactorily to the United States. These Senators seemed to think that, the fleet once mobilized off the Mexican coast, the Administration should not permit itself to be put in what they termed the ridiculous position of calling it back to the United States simply because at the last moment a salute had been fired.

Mr. Lodge expressed complete approval of what the President had done, and declared that the demand for the salute was in accord with almost invariable precedent. Mr. Lodge is anxious to show that the Republicans are as nearly unanimous in their support of the President's aggressive policy as the Democrats, and it is certain that practically all the Senators of his party will follow him.

In its eagerness to support the President in every way the Committee on Foreign Relations this morning indefinitely postponed the resolution of Senator Poindexter, of Washington, asking the President to specify the things of "nearer consequence and greater delicacy" that failure to repeal the tolls exemption would make difficult for him to handle. At the same time the Committee sent over until next week the resolution of Senator Jones, of Washington, asking the State Department

LONDON FORESEES FALL OF HUERTA

Some British Newspapers Think He Is Deliberately Trying to Provoke War.

SYMPATHY FOR WILSON

Movement of Fleet Applauded, but the President Blamed for Not Acting Before.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 16.—The Mexican situation takes first place in the news columns and is the subject of editorials in all the London newspapers to-day. The developments are being watched with the keenest interest, and there is much speculation as to what will be the ultimate solution of the serious problem which President Wilson faces. Several newspapers suggest that Huerta, instead of climbing down, intends to deliberately provoke war, hoping to unite all factions in Mexico against invasion and thus extricate himself from his desperate position.

The Daily News thinks Huerta's latest piece of wanton insolence may finally force President Wilson's hand. It says: "Huerta has little to lose by his present course, and the chance of making an appeal to patriotism afforded by the demand of the American Admiral that the United States flag be saluted is obviously tempting to the desperate gambler. His one hope of strengthening himself with the Mexican people is by assuming with some plausibility the part of a patriotic defender of his country against a foreign invader."

"If Huerta has the sense with which he generally is credited in Europe," says The Daily Mail, "he will lose no time in making the amende honorable to the United States. That he should deliberately provoke war with so formidable a power on a question of a salute seems unthinkable."

The Daily Mail, however, does not believe that either party to the quarrel is likely to proceed to extremes, and says that President Wilson is too wise and humane a ruler to consign Mexico, which is rich in every resource, to the sheer anarchy which must follow the collapse of such a Government as at present exists in Mexico.

The Chronicle says: "President Wilson's Mexican policy at last is undergoing a change. In brief, the bloodless arrest of a few United States marines has moved it far more than the murders, with or without torture, of American and British citizens by the rebels in the North. This difference may be justified in view of the fact that the marines were wearing the uniform and acting on orders of the United States, while the murdered persons aforesaid were private individuals venturing into Mexico on their own business and at their own risk. Still, the Tampico affront seems to be one that any sovereign state could, if it liked, condone without loss of dignity on receipt of an apology such as Huerta promptly tendered for a subordinate's blunder. President Wilson in asking for more and insisting on a penitential salute of the American flag can quote as precedents Austria-Hungary's demand on Servia and Russia's on Persia, but these were cases where there was more than suspicion of bullying on the part of the stronger power."

The Daily Telegraph, in discussing the possibility of American military intervention in Mexico, after dwelling on its probable cost in lives and money, says: "It is difficult to see what hope there can be of a more stable state of things at the end of it all in a country so vast as Mexico and peopled by a race as turbulent and ferocious as that which has kept civil war in existence for upward of a year."

The Daily Telegraph concludes: "It appears unlikely that any steps that may be taken can be of decisive effect in bringing an end to the anarchy that resulted from the policy of moral intervention, as we may call it, initiated by the Government a year ago and ever since pursued."

According to The Star the situation is almost an exact parallel of that in South Africa before the war.

"It was the mining interest which drove the British Government into the war," says The Star. "It was Rand magnates who patiently and persistently conspired, plotted, and intrigued against President Kruger until they at last got war which they wanted. The same sinister forces are at work in Mexico. It is the American oil magnates who are conspiring, plotting, and intriguing to force the United States to intervene in Mexico. Just as there would have been no South African war if there had been no gold fields in the Transvaal, so there would be no Mexican question if there were no oil fields in Mexico."

The stock market yesterday was under the Mexican cloud, which had its effect in depressing prices in most sections. The bear attack drove stocks associated with the Republic to a lower level, while there also were realizations by speculators, who bought recently in the hope that matters were near a settlement.

CARDEN NAMED FOR BRAZIL.

Official Announcement of His Transfer Made Yesterday.

LONDON, April 15. — The appointment of Sir Lionel Carden as British Minister to Brazil was officially announced to-day.

It is understood that Sir Lionel will proceed to Rio de Janeiro from Mexico City, to which place he is now on his way.

To avoid being interviewed by the reporters on his arrival, it was said, Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister to Mexico, had himself put down on the passenger list of the Olympic as Edward Gresley. When the ship arrived last night at her pier Sir Lionel was met by Sir Courtenay Bennett, the British Consul General, who accompanied the Minister to the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, where he caught the 7 P. M. train for Washington.

On the way up the harbor from Quarantine Sir Lionel kept away from the reporters and photographers and refreshed himself with tea and toast. When the word Mexico was mentioned to him by a reporter he shuddered visibly and said:

"I am very sorry and I do not wish to be discourteous, but I have my instructions."

He would not admit that he was going to Brazil or comment upon the fact that his appointment had been announced officially in The London Gazette.

"I do not know anything," he said.

Sir Courtenay Bennett was equally shy in discussing Sir Lionel's appointment to Brazil and said sadly:

"I do not know" to every query put to him by the reporters. He stood by Sir Lionel on the pier and shielded him from the photographers.

The Olympic was a few hours late owing to the bad weather which still keeps up at sea, Capt. Haddock said. She made the voyage of 2,904 miles from Daunts Rock in 6 days 1 hour and 16 minutes, at an average speed of 19.98 knots. The weather was too rough for the Olympic to call at Queenstown for the mails last Sunday, and they were left for the Cedric, which sailed from there on Friday, and will arrive here on Saturday.

HOPES HUERTA WILL YIELD.

Paris Figaro Thinks He Should Meet American Demand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Thursday, April 16.—The French press at present is in the thick of its electoral campaign and avoids comment on Mexico, with the exception of the Figaro, which prints a long article this morning on the action of the United States. It says:

"President Wilson is playing a big game. Has he seen all his cards? One may say without sarcasm that he will doubtless remain faithful to his peaceful policy and does not intend to proceed further than the mere capture of Tampico and Vera Cruz, but if Gen. Huerta remains obstinate who can guarantee that he may not be dragged further than he originally planned?

"It is to be hoped in the interests of his own cause and of Mexican peace that Gen. Huerta will make the necessary sacrifice and give satisfaction to the American Government."

PRECEDENT FROM GREYTOWN.

Wilson Cites Episode of 1854 in Connection with Present Crisis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—One of the precedents cited by President Wilson in his conference with the ranking Democratic and Republican members of the Foreign Relations and Foreign Affairs committees to-day in support of his action in the Mexican situation was the American bombardment of Greytown, Nicaragua, in 1854, when Pierce was President.

In that case demands for an apology and an indemnity were duly made upon the local authorities at Greytown, but they were not answered by them. Failing to obtain an apology, Capt. Hollins of the U. S. S. Cyane, after public proclamation of his intention, bombarded and destroyed Greytown. His course was upheld by the American Government, and was explained to Congress the following December by President Pierce in his annual message.

In 1852 the British recognized an Indian chief with the title of the "Mosquito King" as an independent ruler, under British protection, over a part of the Mosquito Coast, including San Juan del Norte, later known as Greytown. The United States refused to recognize the absurd kingdom, although it did instruct its naval officers to leave the de facto government undisturbed. But even this de facto arrangement did not extend as far as Punta Arenas, where the Accessory Transit Company, an American corporation, held concessions.

The King ordered the removal of the company's buildings, and upon the company's refusal, destroyed them. Capt. Hollins put a marine guard in Punta Arenas for the protection of what American property was left. His course was approved by the Secretary of the Navy, but the trouble was resumed the following year in the absence of the Cyane. The company's superintendent was arrested, and only the presence of Mr. Borland, the American Minister to Central America, who was on the steamer Northern Light, prevented the arrest by local authorities of the steamer's captain, Smith.

The real cause for trouble came next day, when Mr. Borland went ashore to call on the American Consular agent. He was set upon in the streets by a mob, his face was cut by a broken bottle, and his passage back to the vessel was closed by armed guards. That night the American Minister was practically a prisoner, escaping to the Northern Light next day.

Capt. Hollins did not return to the scene of the disturbance before June 10, 1854. The American Government had instructed him to demand an apology either from the Mosquito authority, or, if that had dissolved, from whatever de facto government or popular assembly he might find. The demand was presented and ignored, and on July 13 Capt Hollins bombarded and destroyed the town. Its population at the time was 800, consisting mostly of negroes and native Indians, but including also a few Americans, Germans, French and English.

The destruction of the town was entirely approved by President Pierce. In his next message to Congress he referred to the town in this way:

"It was in fact a marauding establishment too dangerous to be disregarded and too guilty to pass unpunished, and yet incapable of being treated in any other way than as a piratical resort of outlaws or a camp of savages depredating on emigrant trains or caravans, and the frontier settlements of civilized states."

HELPLESS PORTS PROTECTED.

Can't Shell Them, Under Hague Treaty—Mexican Ports Unfortified.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The subject of what method of attack upon Mexico is to be made if resort to actual hostilities becomes necessary has been fully discussed. President Wilson probably will enforce strict compliance with the terms of The Hague treaty of 1907 respecting bombardment by naval forces in time of war. The United States was the second signatory power to that treaty, which was agreed to by forty-four Governments, including Mexico.

The first article provides that "the bombardment by naval forces of undefended ports, towns, villages, dwellings, or buildings is forbidden." The second article presents these exceptions:

Military works, military or naval establishments, depots of arms or war material, workshops or plants which could be utilized for the needs of the hostile fleet or army, and the ships of war in the harbor, are not, however, included in this prohibition. The commander of a naval force may destroy them by artillery after a summons, followed by a reasonable time of waiting, if all other means are impossible, and when the local authorities have not themselves destroyed them within the time fixed.

If for military reasons immediate action is necessary, and no delay can be allowed an enemy, it is understood that the prohibition to bombard the undefended town holds good, and that the commander shall take all the measures in order that the town may suffer as little harm as possible.

The commander directing the bombardment is under obligations not to destroy sacred edifices, buildings used for artistic, scientific, or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals, and places where the sick and wounded are collected. The inhabitants of a town likely to be bombarded are enjoined to point out such monuments and buildings, that should be spared from destruction. The treaty also requires the commander of the bombarding forces, if the military situation permits, to do his utmost to warn the local authorities.

At the War and Navy Departments to-day it was said that this Government was in possession of full detailed information as to the defenses of all the Mexican ports, and that none of them, with the possible exception of Vera Cruz, could be said to be fortified in the modern sense of the word.

THE LOUISIANA TO SAIL AT NOON

Officers and Men on Furlough Return to Battleship in Response to Hurry Call.

NEW YORK IN COMMISSION

The New Dreadnought and Four Other Great Vessels Here Available for Active Service.

After having the hour of departure postponed from time to time, announcement was made late yesterday that the battleship Louisiana, flagship of the second division, would sail for Tampico at noon to-day. It is probable, however, that the departure of the flagship will be several hours later, as she has to take on board 475 tons of coal for the voyage.

The Quartermaster in charge of the stores for the warship spent a very busy day yesterday getting in all kinds of fresh provisions, which included sacks of potatoes, parsley, cabbages, carrots, and thirty bags of Bermuda onions.

Commander R. W. McNeely and Ship's Surgeon C. E. Riggs were anxiously awaiting the return of two sailors they had sent into New York to buy the special kind of fishing tackle which the Commander said he expected to use in the harbor of Tampico. During the last two days the officers of the battleship have laid in a stock of more than $300 worth of fishing tackle.

"The tarpon fishing off Tampico," said Lieut. Commander Howe, "is a delight forever."

All day long officers and sailors arrived on board in the ship's boats, motor boats and rowboats to report in answer to the general order recalling them for duty in Mexican waters. The men appeared glad to be going on active service and not at all concerned because their leave had been cut short. Most of them had reported by noon. Furlough of ten days had been granted to 150 of the crew and another 300 had obtained twenty-four hours' shore leave.

The officers of the ship did not appear to believe that there was any possibility that hostilities would begin before they reached the Mexican port. Commander McNeely said the Louisiana had just returned from a six months' cruise along the Mexican coast, and had touched at Tampico and Vera Cruz. So far as he could see the relations between Americans and Mexicans were cordial.

"At Vera Cruz," Commander McNeely went on to say, "Gen. Maass, the military commandant of the port, came on board the battleship and met Rear Admiral Fletcher, who was in charge at the time. He became quite friendly with the Admiral and was invited to visit several baseball games given by the crews of the American warships. At no time, either in Vera Cruz or Tampico, were our men affronted in any way by the Mexican authorities. Our sailors were treated most politely.

"The men of the navy do not feel a thrill at the news of possible trouble in Mexico. Conditions are such down there that we will hardly have anything else to do than maintain a patrol along the coast. The Mexicans have no navy to speak of, and the brunt of whatever trouble may come will have to be borne by our soldiers."

Asked whether the efficiency of the Louisiana was affected by the absence of a full complement of men, Commander McNeely answered:

"No, we are quite ready. We are prepared to enter battle this afternoon."

Rear Admiral Clifford J. Bousch, commander of the Second Division of the Atlantic squadron, hurried on board the flagship at 10:30 o'clock, as notices had been sent out that the Louisiana would sail at noon, and the signal, a flag with blue, red, and white squares, was displayed on the conning tower. Rear Admiral Bousch declined to make any statement on the situation beyond the fact that he was carrying out instructions received from Washington.

It was learned that the instructions from the Navy Department ordered the Louisiana to get under way as soon as possible, but no specific time was named and Capt. J. H. Gibbons had decided to sail at noon. He found, however, that the battleship could not be stored and coaled in this time.

In spite of the boisterous weather crowds stood along Riverside Drive all day between Seventy-eighth and Eighteth Streets watching the officers and men arriving at taxicabs with their kit bags ready for sea. The Police Department did good work in notifying members of the crew who were on leave in the city that the vessel had received her sailing orders from Washington.

The Louisiana is a 16,000-ton vessel, with twin screws, driven by 16,500-horsepower engines, and carries twenty-four guns. She has a crew of forty officers and 900 men. In the wardroom visitors are always impressed by autographed photographs that hang opposite to each other. One is of the Kaiser and the other of Col. Roosevelt. Also in the wardroom is a reproduction of the painting that shows the first national salute ever given to the American colors. It was the salute fired a century ago by the French squadron in honor of the United States flag, which was displayed from the old ship Ranger, the flagship of John Paul Jones. That picture is also the gift of Col. Roosevelt.

At the navy yard it was said yesterday that there were five other big warships here available for immediate duty in Mexican waters. They are the first class battleships Wyoming and North Dakota, which are being overhauled; the dreadnought New York, which went into commission yesterday; the Texas, her sister ship, commissioned three weeks ago, and the Ohio, one of the old-type battleships. It was said that all five warships could be ready for service in twenty-four hours if they were needed.

The ceremony of placing the New York in commission was attended by all the officers of the yard and by officers from the ships there and watched by a number of visitors. Major Gen. R. K. Evans and other army officers from Governors Island were also present. With the bluejackets and marines drawn up on deck, a huge new ensign was hauled aloft and the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." All the naval men saluted, while most of the civilians uncovered. The sailors and marines on the sister ship Texas and on the battleships Wyoming and North Dakota, lying nearby, joined the men of the New York in a mighty cheer.

The orders placing the ship in commission was read by Capt. Albert Gleaves, Commandant of the yard, who turned the vessel over to her officers. Capt. Thomas S. Rodgers then read the orders directing him to take command of the New York, the flag was unfurled, the band played again, there was another cheer and the ceremony was over.

The officers of the new dreadnought, other than the commander, are: Executive Officer, G. C. Day; Navigating Officer, W. C. Watts; Chief Engineer, W. B. Tardy, and Ordnance Officer, G. J. Rowcliff.

MICHIGAN OFF ON SPRINT.

Will Try to Catch Rest of Fleet Before Reaching Tampico.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—The battleship Michigan, with a full crew of 850 men and with 600 marines, rushed here from the Great Lakes, sailed from the Philadelphia Navy Yard at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon for Tampico. The marines will be distributed among the vessels of the Atlantic fleet now in Mexican waters.

The Michigan received sailing orders at 5:20 P. M. yesterday. In view of the fact that she had to take aboard 2,300 tons of coal, provisions for three months, and ammunition, her departure in less than twenty-four hours is considered noteworthy. The battleship will make for Tampico by way of Hampton Roads, and probably will stop there long enough to take on additional stores.

A slight accident marred the getaway. In steaming backward from the pier, the pilot gave the ship a short turn and her starboard side toward the bow scraped the pilings, but, aside from scratching her dull gray paint, the vessel was not damaged.

Capt. Albert Niblack is hopeful of catching the main body of the Atlantic fleet before reaching Tampico. The guaranteed speed of the Michigan is 18 knots, but her boilers are newly cleaned and she is in the best of condition, so the Captain expects to get 19 knots, and maybe 19½ from her engines.

Orders were received this afternoon for the battleship Idaho to coal at once so as to be ready to start in case she is needed.

All shore leaves were canceled at the navy yard to-day, and petty officers were sent through the city to round up sailors off duty. Some of the fourteen battleships now at the yard are manned only by "skeleton" crews. There is said to be a great scarcity of available seamen.

FLEET OFF AT FULL SPEED.

Van of Badger's Command to Reach Tampico in Seven Days.

ON BOARD U. S. S. ARKANSAS, off Cape Hatteras, April 15.—Rear Admiral Badger, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, sailed for Tampico from Hampton Roads at noon to-day with the super-dreadnoughts Arkansas, Vermont, New Hampshire and New Jersey. In a thick fog that hung over the bay the big ships started off under orders to make eleven and a half knots an hour. That speed would bring them to Tampico in seven days.

Rear Admiral Fiske, chief of the Navy Bureau of Operations, who brought instructions from Washington to Admiral Badger, was the last man to leave the flagship Arkansas before the squadron steamed out.

NORFOLK, Va., April 15.—Nine American warships steamed out of Hampton Roads at noon to-day. The battleships Arkansas, New Hampshire, Vermont, New Jersey, the dispatch boat Yankton, the collier Lebanon, and the naval tugs Patuxent, Sonoma and Patapsco. Every one carried a full supply of ammunition and provisions enough to last three months.

Rear Admiral Badger, who for the present has his flag on the Arkansas, spent several hours ashore with relatives and friends. He declined to discuss the Mexican situation, but said the fleet was in good condition, and would be ready to carry out any service required of it.

"We do not know what we will be called upon to do," he said, "but we are ready."

BOSTON, April 15.—Preparations were hurriedly made overnight for the departure of the third-class cruiser Tacoma, which was ordered yesterday to proceed to Tampico, Mex., with a preliminary stop at Newport, R. I. She got under way at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

During the night the Tacoma crossed the harbor to Hingham, where ammunition was taken on board from the naval magazine. Meanwhile naval officials, assisted by the police, scoured the city and rounded up members of the cruiser's crew who were on shore leave.

The Tacoma is commanded by Commander Nathan C. Twining, and carries 300 men. At Newport she will take on eighty ordinary seamen and coal passers.

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.—The transport Hancock, with 950 marines aboard, sailed from here to-day to join the battleship fleet that will concentrate at Tampico.

RUSH TO JOIN THE ARMY.

Chicago Recruiting Offices Busy—Colorado Veterans Volunteer.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 15.—With the latest Mexican developments a flurry of patriotism has swept over Chicago. It was felt particularly in the recruiting stations of the army and navy, where business, heretofore lifeless, picked up noticeably.

"Our applications have jumped up to 100 a day," said Lieut. F. R. Keaney, who is in charge of the Chicago recruiting district. "Unfortunately for the ambitions of many of our fiery youth, we can enlist only about 25 per cent. of that number. Most of the young fellows applying are remarkably fine specimens. The grade has improved decidedly.

"One young chap told me to-day that he had given up his job to go into the army. Soldiers of fortune, soldiers of adventure, and others troubled with the wanderlust are anxious to get down on the firing line."

Dr. J. P. Farrell, Vice Commander-in-Chief of the Philippine Veterans' Association, made plans to enlist a company of volunteers for active service. He received several telephone calls from veterans who served under him when he was fighting Aguinaldo, announcing their readiness to march away at a moment's notice.

One hundred and seventy-five men from the United States naval station at Lake Bluff are now on their way eastward in command of Chief Master at Arms Daobert V. Sequeira, confidential agent of the Constitutionalists in this city, said for publication that all rebel leaders were convinced that Huerta would not hesitate to plunge the whole country into a foreign war when he felt his power crumbling, thinking to save himself by uniting the country against an alien enemy.

American newspaper correspondents are coming out on the first train, and many American tourists and investors are also arriving at the border. Preparations continue to be made for eventualities. Provisions are being rushed here on every freight train and stored in the Quartermaster's depot. Ordnance also is being sent to the ordnance storehouse at Fort Bliss, and all of the cavalry horses are being rushed with heavy calked shoes to fit them for use in Mexico. The railroads have been notified to have trains ready to move troops into Mexico within an hour's notice.

As a precaution against rioting on the American side the State militia have been instructed to make a search of all Mexican houses for arms and ammunition and to arrest all owners of these weapons in the event of trouble.

To-day a number of Spaniards volunteered their services as guides and interpreters with the United States troops if they are needed. The Spaniards were driven out of the country by Villa.

CARRANZA HEEDS BRYAN.

Will Receive Representations on Behalf of Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Secretary Bryan announced to-day that he had received assurances from Carranza that representations on behalf of foreigners in Mexico upon request of the representatives of foreign Governments accredited to the United States would be received, and that attention would be given to them. Mr. Bryan said:

"It is anticipated that there will be no further question raised in this connection."

The Secretary said that a complete understanding had been reached with Gen. Carranza about inquiries concerning foreigners, and that in each case the American Government would state which foreign Government had requested such representations. Mr. Bryan added that this did not constitute recognition of any formal character.

The difficulty arose in connection with the inquiry of the United States about the execution of William S. Benton, a British subject, but to-day's assurances were said by Mr. Bryan to cover the general subjects, and will apply to all cases in the future.

The Secretary said that efforts were still being made to reduce the harshness of the order of expulsion against Spaniards in Mexico.

OFFERS 1,000 SPANIARDS.

Gen. Campo Wires President He Is Ready to Raise Scout Regiment

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 15.—Gen. I. M. Del Campo, a wealthy Spaniard who has lived in Mexico for many years, and is now a refugee, offered his services and those of a regiment of scouts, rough riders, and others skilled in knowledge of Mexico and Mexicans, to President Woodrow Wilson to-day for service in Mexico. He telegraphed President Wilson that he was ready to lead 1,000 men into Mexico, and that he was provided with 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

Gen. Del Campo has had twenty-one years' experience in Latin-America, and declares he has a $350,000 damage claim against the Mexican Government for the destruction of twenty-seven plantations he owned near Vera Cruz.

"I can be ready within two weeks," he said, "to move 1,000 men into Mexico and the United States service. These men are well acquainted with Mexico, and the character of its people. They are men who have been driven from Mexico because of the revolution there.

"Gen. Leonard Wood has declared that it would take 250,000 soldiers and years of fighting to pacify Mexico. It would not take more than 50,000 and one year of fighting to do the job if properly handled."

VELASCO'S ARMY CAUGHT IN TRAP

FOUND RAILROAD TORN UP

Villa Tells Carranza He Is Delivering Final Blow to Huerta's Resistance in the North.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, April 15.—The Federals defeated at San Pedro are being pounded to pieces between two forces of rebels, according to a telegram received to-day by Gen. Carranza from Gen. Villa.

Villa received aid from a totally unexpected quarter, supposed, at the time the telegram was filed, to be the forces of Gen. Pablo Gonzales, commanding the Department of the East, who has been operating in the State of Tamaulipas, of which Monterey is the largest city.

The retreating Federals, loaded on trains and said to number 8,000, found the track torn up twenty miles east of San Pedro according to Federal prisoners, who brought word that they were attacked by a strange force, which came from the east.

As Villa himself had not molested the track he attributed this piece of work to the mysterious reinforcements.

Learning that his new ally was in position to retard, if not to cut off further retreat to the east, Gen. Villa took personal command of his own troops with the intention, if possible, of administering the final blow, that would eliminate the enemy in the north.

BORDER MEXICANS HOSTILE.

Carranza Considers Tampico Situation of Greatest Gravity.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, April 15.—Juarez is a mirror that reflects the feelings and attitude of the Mexican people on every question. To-night the anti-American feeling in the Mexican town across the border is more bitter than it has been since the day Lieut. Field went across the bridge with his command of United States soldiers, thinking that he was going from one town to another on United States territory.

Wholesale firms, railroad companies, merchants and customs brokers have noticed a decided change in attitude on the part of Mexicans toward the Americans, or Gringoes, as they are called in contempt. Americans who are forced to remain in Juarez because of their business, are sleeping in El Paso at night, and many of them are moving their families to this side for fear of anti-American riots which might result from drastic action at Tampico. Newspaper men detailed to cover the Mexican side were insulted to-day by the officials of the rebel Government.

Refugees on the American side, a part of the 5,000 Mexicans who live here, are holding informal meetings and making their plans. As to what the attitude of these refugees and native residents and of the Mexican revolutionists will be in the event of war between the United States and Mexico there is no doubt in the minds of men who have had long experience in Mexico. They say that, while some of the high rebel officials would advise against opposition to the United States, the undisciplined rebel army could not be held back from participating in the opposition to an American invasion. While the rebels would rally to the Federal first, the feeling would be to unite, and until the campaign was closed the rebels and Federals would be fighting side by side.

Gen. Carranza, at Chihuahua, was kept fully informed of the orders given to the fleet and the attitude of Washington, but his statement of what position he would assume should the Americans take Tampico and Vera Cruz was forthcoming.

Among officials the word went round not to comment on the situation, but it was learned from one of Carranza's closest advisers that the leader views the whole situation as one of the greatest gravity to Mexico as a whole.

Arms Daobert V. Sequeira, confidential agent of the Constitutionalists in this city, said for publication that all rebel leaders were convinced that Huerta would not hesitate to plunge the whole country into a foreign war when he felt his power crumbling, thinking to save himself by uniting the country against an alien enemy.

American newspaper correspondents are coming out on the first train, and many American tourists and investors are also arriving at the border. Preparations continue to be made for eventualities. Provisions are being rushed here on every freight train and stored in the Quartermaster's depot. Ordnance also is being sent to the ordnance storehouse at Fort Bliss, and all of the cavalry horses are being rushed with heavy calked shoes to fit them for use in Mexico. The railroads have been notified to have trains ready to move troops into Mexico within an hour's notice.

As a precaution against rioting on the American side the State militia have been instructed to make a search of all Mexican houses for arms and ammunition and to arrest all owners of these weapons in the event of trouble.

To-day a number of Spaniards volunteered their services as guides and interpreters with the United States troops if they are needed. The Spaniards were driven out of the country by Villa.

CARRANZA HEEDS BRYAN.

Will Receive Representations on Behalf of Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Secretary Bryan announced to-day that he had received assurances from Carranza that representations on behalf of foreigners in Mexico upon request of the representatives of foreign Governments accredited to the United States would be received, and that attention would be given to them. Mr. Bryan said:

"It is anticipated that there will be no further question raised in this connection."

The Secretary said that a complete understanding had been reached with Gen. Carranza about inquiries concerning foreigners, and that in each case the American Government would state which foreign Government had requested such representations. Mr. Bryan added that this did not constitute recognition of any formal character.

The difficulty arose in connection with the inquiry of the United States about the execution of William S. Benton, a British subject, but to-day's assurances were said by Mr. Bryan to cover the general subjects, and will apply to all cases in the future.

The Secretary said that efforts were still being made to reduce the harshness of the order of expulsion against Spaniards in Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 15.—Gen. I. M. Del Campo, a wealthy Spaniard who has lived in Mexico for many years, and is now a refugee, offered his services and those of a regiment of scouts, rough riders, and others skilled in knowledge of Mexico and Mexicans, to President Woodrow Wilson to-day for service in Mexico. He telegraphed President Wilson that he was ready to lead 1,000 men into Mexico, and that he was provided with 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

Gen. Del Campo has had twenty-one years' experience in Latin-America, and declares he has a $350,000 damage claim against the Mexican Government for the destruction of twenty-seven

RECRUIT MORE MARINES.

Denver Station Ordered to Rush New Men to the Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, April 15.—Orders have been received at the Denver marine recruiting office to enlist as many men as possible for the service. They are to be rushed to the coast as fast as they are enlisted.

Two extra men have been put on duty in the local station to handle the increase in recruiting. The men are to be used in duty on the east coast of Mexico.

"We received the order this morning from San Francisco," said Capt. Guggenheim, the officer in charge here. "It is evident that the department means business. This order came as a surprise to us. We also are to enlist a number of reserve recruits, to be held in readiness for departure to the west coast should it be deemed advisable to send extra men there."

FEMINISTS PLAN A HOME.

Apartments to be Provided for Married Women Workers.

Two sites in the neighborhood of Washington Square are being considered for the apartment house which will be erected in accordance with feminist ideas. Miss Henrietta Rodman, who was one of the active organizers of the Feminist Alliance, said yesterday that the site would be announced probably at the meeting of the alliance on next Tuesday.

The house will contain about 400 rooms, and will be divided into suites of from one to four rooms with bath. It is designed primarily for the benefit of married professional women, such as teachers and doctors. As it is expected that the women who will live in the Feminist apartment will be at work, like their husbands, for most of the day, a trained staff of teachers and children's attendants will be engaged. All the children in the house in the day time will be in charge of these attendants. A school will be established on the roof and there will be schoolrooms in the basement also. All cooking will be done in a large kitchen in the basement, and the meals will be served to the tenants from electric service elevators. Mending will be done by a trained staff and the laundry work will be in charge of another trained staff. All of these conveniences, including the care of children, will be provided at cost price to the Feminist tenants.

The cost of the Feminist apartment, including the land, will be about $500,000, it is thought. Mr. Heidelberg said that if it was begun in a few weeks the building should be ready for tenants early in the Fall. Many applications for rooms have been received already.

NEW COLLIER HOUSE BURNS.

Furnishings and Paintings Destroyed, Making Loss Near $100,000

Mrs. Peter F. Collier's Summer home on Hill Street at Southampton, L. I., was destroyed by fire yesterday at noon, with a total loss of nearly $100,000. Mrs. Collier was in New York at her town house, 29 Fifth Avenue, and workmen were putting the house in order for an immediate residence, as Mrs. Collier intended going to the country as early as possible this year.

No one knows how the fire started. Plumbers were at work in the kitchen and at noon had gone outside to eat their luncheon. At 12:30 o'clock smoke was seen issuing from the kitchen windows. The plumbers and other workmen who were placing a fountain in the Italian garden, all rushed into the house, but could do nothing. The Southampton Fire Department responded to the alarm and in short time had six streams of water playing on the flames. The high wind, however, frustrated their efforts and in about forty-five minutes the house was burned to the ground. Sparks carried more than 300 feet to the cottage of James L. Breese and threatened for a time to set it on fire.

The furnishings of the house, in which Mrs. Collier had spent only one season, were all destroyed with an estimated loss of more than $40,000. These included a number of pieces of Chippendale furniture, mantels from Florence, many rare porcelains, and a collection of paintings by Maxfield Parrish and Frederick Remington. The house and furnishings were fully insured.

Mrs. Collier said yesterday that she would rebuild immediately. The house was finished last year at a cost of $55,000.

ROB ANCIENT ROME CHURCH.

Workmen on Building of Which O'Connell Is Patron Arrested.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 15.—A sensational and fortunately quickly discovered theft has been committed at the Church of San Clemente, one of the most ancient and interesting in Rome, of which Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is the protector.

The church consists, besides the upper building, of a lower early Christian basilica, dating from the fourth century. Beneath that are the remains of a Roman villa and a Mithraic church, now under water. Cardinal O'Connell contributed $3,000 for the difficult work of draining this fine relic of the past.

Workmen employed on the drainage operations entered a subterranean water-passage and stole a very ancient statuette of St. Peter carrying a lamb on his shoulders and two ancient Roman sculptured heads.

Owing to the prompt action of the police, the theft was discovered and the thieves were arrested while trying to dispose of their booty.

DIES UNDER SUBWAY TRAIN.

Judge La Fetra Tries to Stop Man from Killing Himself.

Zoltan Oesterreicher, a salesman of 143 West Eighty-fourth Street, committed suicide at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning by jumping in front of a southbound Subway express train at the Fourteenth Street Station. Miss Bertha Roth of 828 Dawson Street, the Bronx, and Judge Edward La Fetra of the City Court, saw the man forcing his way through the crowd on the platform and attempted to hold him, but he broke away and jumped as the train drew near. Two cars passed over the man's body. He died before an ambulance arrived.

In Oesterreicher's pocket a pass book on the United States Savings Bank at 906 Madison Avenue was found. At the bank it was said his account had run very low recently.

ADMITS PERJURY TO SAVE GUNMEN

absolute truth. I just want to assure Mr. Whitman that I told the truth."

Thereupon Mr. Willis sent for Assistant District Attorney Groehl, who questioned Dresner and took him before District Attorney Whitman. Assistant District Attorney Minton also was present.

At first Dresner asserted that he had told the truth. He repeated this over and over again.

"Then, why did you come here?" asked Mr. Whitman.

"Well, I heard that Abe Guerson was under subpoena, and I wanted to assure you that I had done nothing wrong," was the reply.

The presence in an anteroom of Guerson seemed to worry Dresner. Mr. Whitman called Guerson into the room. It is understood that Guerson expressed warm friendship for Dresner, but told him flatly that he would not shoulder any of his lies, and that he was tired of the whole matter, and would tell all that he knew. Guerson did tell all he knew, and it put Dresner in a bad light.

Gradually the truth came out. Dresner finally admitted that everything he had testified to was false.

"I didn't want to see the gunmen go to the chair," he wailed. "Honestly, I didn't get any money for it."

It was at this point that his affidavit repudiating his testimony before Justice Goff, and his earlier affidavit made to the gunmens' lawyers, was drawn up. Dresner signed the original affidavit.

"Call in the policeman in the hall," ordered the District Attorney, and in a moment Policeman Louis Gray entered the room.

"Place this man under arrest," said Mr. Whitman.

It was now after 5 o'clock, and Magistrate Simms had adjourned the Tombs Police Court. Mr. Whitman found that Justice O'Keefe of the Court of Special Sessions was still sitting, and he had Dresner taken before him. Justice O'Keefe sat as a Magistrate.

The arraignment took only a few minutes. Dresner's affidavit and several other affidavits, setting forth what Dresner had testified to before Justice Goff, were produced. The prisoner was warned as to his rights, but he waived examination and said that he did not want a lawyer.

"I plead guilty to the charge of perjury," he said, weakly.

Report That Dresner Was Hired.

Dresner was taken to the Tombs, but will be called before the District Attorney again in a few days. Mr. Whitman has information that Dresner received money for testifying for the gunmen. No intimation as to the source of the money came, but it is understood that Dresner will have an opportunity to tell all that he knows. He is held in $1,000 bail for action by the Grand Jury, and an indictment charging perjury probably will be found.

Dresner said on the witness stand before Justice Goff that he got into touch with Police Lieut. John Becker, brother of Charles Becker, now awaiting a second trial for Rosenthal's murder, when he heard of the gunmen's imminent peril. John Becker, he said, had told him to wait until he could get into communication with Joseph A. Shay, attorney for Charles Becker. It was not until the day before the hearing before Justice Goff, he said, that he got into communication with Mr. Wahle.

Mr. Goldfogle yesterday, in his statement to Mr. Whitman, that he had signed one affidavit in Mr. Wahle's office which was drawn up by Mr. Kringel, and that this had been torn up on Mr. Wahle's arrival. The final affidavit, he told Mr. Whitman, was drawn up by Mr. Wahle.

While on the witness stand last Saturday Dresner was asked by Mr. Whitman why he had not visited the District Attorney's office with his alleged information about the gunmen.

"Come to your office?" said Dresner at the time. "That would be the finish of my life. They would kill me on the way before I could leave the building. I don't believe I would even get out of your office alive."

"You get me nervous," he said later when Mr. Whitman pressed him hard for an explanation of his long delay in coming to the District Attorney with the gunmen.

"Yes," replied Mr. Whitman on that occasion, "and you are going to be worse when you get through."

Mr. Wahle was communicated with after Dresner's arrest, and was told of the repudiation of the testimony given before Justice Goff.

"I first heard of this man Dresner on Friday morning, the day before the hearing before Justice Goff," said Mr. Wahle. "Mr. Kringel had him in hand when I came into the office. A rough draft of Dresner's story was drawn up, but it was not satisfactory, and another draft was drawn up. I had every reason to believe that this man was acting in good faith."

Shay Is Not Surprised.

Joseph A. Shay, who retired as Becker's counsel on Tuesday after winning a reversal of conviction from the Court of Appeals, was also notified of Dresner's arrest last night. Mr. Shay wanted it understood that he was in no way responsible for Dresner's production as a witness for the gunmen. He had never heard of him until he testified before Justice Goff, he said.

"The arrest of this man is justification for my withdrawal from the Becker case," said Mr. Shay over the telephone. "I have expected something like this to happen for over a year. It is a sample of what can happen when a man like John Becker has anything to do with the gathering of evidence."

Mr. Shay had made an earlier statement regarding his withdrawal from the case. This was made before he heard of Dresner's arrest. In this statement he said:

"At the time I announced my withdrawal from the Becker case I had no idea that the rumormonger would appear with his wild and cruel insinuations. My reasons for my retirement would not have been made public but for the fact that I felt that this serpent would falsely make it appear that I had abandoned my client because of my belief in his guilt.

"To avoid this, and much as I regretted it, I was obliged to give my true reasons. I do not charge that the brother, John Becker, acted with any criminal intent, but his zeal in behalf of his brother led him into doing everything that was opposed to good judgment and discretion, and his actions were prejudicial to the case.

"In the face of warnings and threats he continued to permit himself to be approached by any person who pretended to be of assistance. Since my entrance into the case I have been obliged to avoid contact with these volunteers, sometimes consisting of insane persons, notoriety seekers, unscrupulous individuals, and plain 'framers,' and it has been a herculean task to avoid them. The danger of meeting such an element was ever present with me, and I felt that I had finally successfully overcome these handicaps.

"My conduct of this case will stand the highest test of professional ethics, and I have nothing but the utmost contempt for the slanderer who has made the statement that my retirement was for any other reason than that announced. When John Becker persisted in his tactics against my advice, I felt that it was going an injustice to myself to longer remain in the case, and I feel justified in my course, though I am sorry I did not do so weeks ago, as I intended."

The investigation of the testimony of witnesses who appeared for the defense at the hearing for a new trial for the gunmen will be continued by Mr. Whitman. Information has reached him that others besides Dresner perjured themselves. The investigation may be carried into several States.

RILEY STANDS BY CLANCY.

Warden at Last Moment Sought Reprieve for "Dago Frank."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley to-day made this formal statement in reference to the confession of Frank Cirofici, "Dago Frank," the gunman, put to death in Sing Sing on Monday:

"I have no fault to find with the manner in which Warden Clancy discharged his duty under the trying circumstances. I regard it as unfortunate that Cirofici did not express a willingness to make a statement until the arrival of his mother and sister at Sing Sing, which was about 4:30 o'clock on Monday morning. The statement given out was made by him at their solicitation. It is not surprising that no preparation was made to have it taken down verbatim.

"Mr. Clancy evidently thought that Cirofici, having admitted participation in the crime, the Governor might be disposed to grant a reprieve. He left the room for the purpose of making this request after 5 o'clock in the morning. It being denied he did not return, and, as I understand it, did not again see Cirofici. Whether he would have been able to have secured a fuller statement or not had the execution of Cirofici been delayed, I am unable to say.

"I never assumed to direct or advise Mr. Clancy about the time when or the order in which the men should be executed. Mr. Clancy says that he did not understand me to advise that the execution of Cirofici be delayed. I do not think I gave him an express advice upon the subject, although in a general way, earlier in the evening when informed that Cirofici might be willing to make a statement, I advised him to give him every opportunity to do so."

TO TRY BECKER ON MAY 6.

Shay Protests That Time Is Too Short, but Justice Seabury Is Firm.

Ex-Lieut. Charles Becker was taken from his cell in the Tombs at 11:40 o'clock yesterday morning and arraigned before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. It was the first time he had stood at the bar in that court since the night on which he was found guilty of murder by a jury, on Oct. 24, 1912. He was not required to plead to the indictment yesterday, for his plea of not guilty, entered on his first arraignment, still stands on record.

After much argument Justice Seabury set May 6 as the date of Becker's trial. He granted the District Attorney's request for a special panel of 200 talesmen from which the jury is to be drawn.

Becker wore a dark gray suit, low collar and purple tie. He smiled as he looked about the courtroom. In the rear of the room he saw his wife. Mrs. Becker was dressed in black. She was accompanied by Jackson Becker, a younger brother of the ex-Police Lieutenant.

Martin T. Manton, successor to Joseph A. Shay in the Becker defense, was in court, but Mr. Shay took charge of the case. Mr. Shay objected to May 6 as the date of the trial, saying that three weeks did not give Mr. Manton time to prepare the case. He said that there were more than 3,000 typewritten pages of the Becker trial record alone. There would be about sixty witnesses to examine, he said.

"The defendant does not seek a delay. He wants to go on with the case as soon as possible," said Mr. Shay. "But it is a physical impossibility to be ready by May 6."

Justice Seabury did not agree with Mr. Shay.

"In my judgment, the trial should go on then," said the Court, "and you should stay in the case until other counsel can take it up."

LEFTY LOUIE MADE AN OFFER.

Was Ready to Involve Becker in Return for a Commutation.

"Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, one of the gunmen put to death in Sing Sing, it was learned yesterday, tried to bargain for a commutation of sentence a week before he died. He said that he would confess and involve ex-Lieut. Charles Becker if commutation were granted.

District Attorney Whitman refused to have anything to do with the matter. He did not think the word of "Lefty Louie" worth anything. The District Attorney has reason to believe that "Lefty Louie" was responsible for at least six murders. It was reported in Sing Sing Prison that "Lefty Louie" boasted of these murders in the deathhouse.

Mr. Whitman had a long talk with Warden Clancy of Sing Sing yesterday, and, it is understood, got the Warden's version of what happened when "Dago Frank" made his last statement. Mr. Whitman would not discuss his conference with Warden Clancy, but said that he didn't think much of the so-called "confession" of "Dago Frank" after what he had heard.

Should any attempt be made to introduce the confession at the second trial of ex-Lieut. Becker a great fight will be made by the District Attorney. When the whole truth of the circumstances surrounding "Dago Frank's" confession become known, it was asserted yesterday, several more interesting chapters in the Becker story will have to be written.

VIEW OF NEW YORK—1700.

Valuable Historical Painting Added to Davies Collection.

J. Clarence Davies, a life member of the New York Historical Society and owner of a remarkable collection of old views of New York City, has just purchased from J. H. Jordan of 212 Broadway an original old painting of this city entitled "A View of New York," executed about the year 1700—perhaps earlier. The artist, whose name is not known, made the painting direct from nature or from actual sketches drawn by himself or some one else who was familiar with the city during the period 1650-00, and at the later date presumably wished to have a picture of New York as he knew it in earlier life.

The painting came into the possession of Clinton Peters in 1881. It was removed by him and his brother, the late Dr. Theodore Peters, from the old family residence of their great-grandfather, Dr. Richard Henderson, at Northfield, Staten Island, in the Summer of that year, together with Dr. Henderson's old desk, his commission as surgeon in the British Navy, his books, and other personal property.

Mr. Davies has been forming his collection of old New York views for the last twenty-five years. In this collection are the "Beschrivinge," first edition of 1651, which contains the first known view of New York, and the first New York City directory for 1786, said to be the most perfect example of each and both from the Robert Hoe library sale. Mr. Davies expects ere long to erect a building where his collection can be exhibited permanently.

200 HOTEL MEN SAIL.

Will Pick Up Ideas in a Two Months' Tour of Europe.

The North German Lloyd liner George Washington sailed at 1 o'clock this morning for Plymouth, Southampton, and Bremen with 475 first cabin passengers, including 200 members of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association, who are going to spend two months touring Europe to pick up ideas if any can be found adaptable for this country. On their arrival in London the hotel men will be entertained by Sir Thomas Dewar, whose general manager, Alexander Campbell, also sailed on the George Washington.

Early morning sailings at 1 o'clock, which were started two years ago by the Cunard Line, have now become quite popular with the Atlantic steamship companies. The express steamers of the North German Lloyd will leave at that hour, and also those of the Holland-America Line for Rotterdam, until the end of August, when the liners go on the short course.

Sends Out Counterfeit Warning.

The Union National Bank in Newark sent out warnings yesterday to large commercial concerns that counterfeit $5 silver certificates were in circulation. Two of the bogus bills were offered for deposit in the Union Bank on Tuesday. About two months ago one of the bills was received at the Essex County National Bank.

FRANK'S NEW PLEA TO BE FILED TO-DAY

Mass of Important Evidence at Hand in Support of Motion for Another Trial.

HAIR EXPERT SUMMONED

Prisoner Confident That Stay Will Be Granted and That He Will Be Acquitted.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 15.—Dr. H. F. Harris, Secretary of the State Board of Health, has been subpoenaed to appear in the Superior Court on Thursday morning to answer questions in Leo Frank's extraordinary motion for a new trial.

Dr. Harris compared hair taken from the head of Mary Phagan when the body was exhumed with the hair found on the lathe in the metal room of the factory. After his examination the physician saw the hair found on the lathe was not that of Mary Phagan. This fact was not developed at the trial of Frank, however, and did not become known until a few months ago.

EX-SHAH PLOTTING AGAIN FOR REVOLT

Russia Reported to be Backing Him—He Has Recently Been in Berlin.

MAY VISIT THIS COUNTRY

Said to Have a Plan to Interest American Capital in Persian Concessions—Now in Odessa.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 15.—Information is said to have reached Berlin that a fresh plot is brewing for the seizure of the throne of Persia.

The scheme, which is reported to have been fomented in Russia, aims at again placing the ex-Shah, Mohammed Ali, who abdicated in July, 1909, on the throne, since occupied by his young son, Ahmed Shah, Narrul-Mulk being Regent.

The ex-Shah has just left Berlin, where he had been undergoing treatment at a nursing home in the strictest incognito for diabetes. He has proceeded to his home at Odessa, via Warsaw, but will return to Western Europe for the cure at Carlsbad in May.

According to existing arrangements Ahmed will be crowned in July. His mother, who is now with the ex-Shah, has been invited to the coronation, but Mohammed Ali hopes that his own plans will in the meantime have made such progress that if there is any coronation it will be the restoring of the crown on his own head.

Russia's interest in the ex-Shah's ambitions is deduced from the fact that while he was in Berlin this time he received frequent visits from the Russian Ambassador. Through the latter's influence the Berlin police authorities furnished to the ex-Shah a private guard of two detectives, who accompanied him whenever he left his apartments in the Luther-Strasse either for the nursing home or the Russian Embassy, where he was an occasional visitor.

This was the second visit the former Shah had paid to Berlin for medical treatment in six months. When he was here last year he was not in contact with the Russian Embassy, so far as is known.

Another story about the ex-Shah is that he intends to carry out his long cherished plan to visit the United States this year. His finances are capable of improvement, and, it is said, he desires to interest American capital in Persian concessions.

$150,000,000 LONDON PLAN.

Proposal That County Council Buy Out Electricity Companies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 15.—The creation of one vast undertaking to deal with the supply of London's electricity is the chief feature of a report prepared by engineers appointed by the London County Council to consider the question of electricity supply.

The report points out that in the Greater London area there are no fewer than seventy companies and generating stations and forty-nine systems of generation. The desirability of unification of control is insisted on, and the engineers put forward a scheme for municipal control combined with private operation.

If this method be adopted the County Council would own and control the system and supply the bulk of the capital necessary to construct new works, while the operating body—the amalgamated companies—would guarantee the interest on the capital and work the undertaking on behalf of the controlling authority. This would bring London into line with Paris, Berlin, and various American cities.

It is further proposed that nearly all the seventy existing generating stations should be closed down and that all the necessary electrical energy be produced in stations, outside the central area, down the river.

The sum of $150,000,000 is involved in the scheme.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

GUAYAQUIL, April 15.—Since the occupation of Esmeraldas by Gen. Plaza, President of the republic, there have been encounters almost daily with the rebels. The troops have captured rebel positions at Latola and Ostiones. At these points the fighting was quite severe. Among those killed on the Government side was Col. Valdez, a nephew of Col. Carlos Concha, the rebel Commander.

SANTO DOMINGO, April 15.—Provisional President Valdez, at the head of a large force of troops, yesterday marched to Moca, Santiago, and Monte Cristi without meeting with any opposition from the rebels. Dispatches from all parts of the republic indicate that there has been no disturbance of the peace.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 15.—The House of Commons to-day passed for its second reading without division the Criminal Justice Administration bill, which has been described as "the most Christian bill" of the kind ever presented.

It is a Government measure and seeks to provide that as far as possible nobody under the age of 21 shall be put in prison. A period of seven days is to be allowed for the payment of fines, which in every case will include court fees. Terms of imprisonment for less than five days are to be abolished.

BUST OF STEAD UNVEILED.

Ceremony at Hague Peace Palace on Anniversary of His Death.

THE HAGUE, April 15.—A solemn ceremony marked the unveiling to-day in the Palace of Peace of the bust of the late William T. Stead, the English writer and pacifist who was a victim of the Titanic disaster on April 15, 1912. There was a distinguished audience of pacifists and diplomats, representing many countries.

The unveiling address was made by Jonkheer van Dachme can Vralok, Chairman of the committee which collected the funds for the purchase of the bust. Other speakers were Dr. Henry Van Dyke, United States Minister to Holland; Wei Sun-tchou, the Chinese Minister; Lord Weardale, Charles Richert of Paris, and John Stead, son of Mr. Stead.

Among the guests were Mrs. W. T. Stead, the Hon. Sir Alan Johnstone, the British Minister, the Indian and Egyptian students here, and many of the subscribers to the bust.

In the course of the ceremony the choir of the Anglican Church, accompanied by a small orchestra, sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and Mr. Stead's favorite hymn, "Begone Unbelief."

The bust was carved by J. Seltsema, a young Dutch sculptor, and is considered one of the finest among the many busts of famous peace workers in the Peace Palace. Practically all of the funds for the bust were collected in Holland, but all parts of Europe and America are represented on the list of subscribers.

PEACE COMMITTEE CABLES TO QUEEN

Eleanora of Bulgaria, Invited to Attend Dinner Here, Sends Promise of Reply.

MEMORIAL CONTRACTS UP

Mrs. Saint-Gaudens to Direct the Making of Duplicate of Husband's Lincoln Statue.

Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, whose advance agent is in this country arranging for her visit to the United States, has been invited by cable to be the guest of honor of the Sub-Executive Committee of the American Peace Centenary Committee, at a dinner in earnest of the purpose for which the committee is working. She has cabled her appreciation of the invitation, and is to inform the inviting committee of her decision.

Announcement to that effect was made yesterday at a meeting of the Sub-Executive Committee, of which John A. Stewart, 50 Church Street, is Chairman. The meeting was held in the rooms of the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway. The invitation was extended through the Bulgarian Prime Minister as follows:

New York, N. Y., April 13.
Premier of Bulgaria,
Sofia, Bulgaria:

American Committee Celebrate Centenary of Peace, of which many prominent Americans are members, through you present compliments to her Majesty, and beg permission to invite her accept dinner in her honor in New York on arrival.

Respectfully remind you Christmas Cable, signed "Parker" and others, to which his Majesty replied under date, Dec. 25, 1913.

STEWART, Chairman.

The cable sent to the King and Queen of Bulgaria last Christmas was referred to so that there might be no difficulty in making known that it was the American Peace Centenary Sub-Executive Committee that wished to honor Queen Eleanora. In reply to the invitation of the American Committee, Queen Eleanora, through her Prime Minister, sent this cablegram:

"Sofia, Bulgaria, April 14.
"Stewart, Chairman.
"American Committee Celebrate Centenary of Peace.

"I had pleasure to present your compliments to her Majesty the Czaritza of Bulgaria. I am charged that her Majesty, much touched by your kind invitation, will cable her decision later.

"DR. RADOSLAVOFF,
"Prime Minister."

At its meeting yesterday the committee went over the contracts for many of the memorials to be dedicated with the opening next year of the Centenary Celebration of Peace. It was announced that money for the erection of each of the memorials had been appropriated subject to ratification by the Finance Committee, and that the contracts would become a commitment of the committee as soon as all the necessary funds were raised.

One of the memorials of which the committee approved the contract was a duplicate of the Saint-Gaudens statue of Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago, to be presented to the people of Great Britain and Ireland, and to be erected in London. The making of the duplicate is to be done under the direction of Mrs. Saint-Gaudens, and a sum not to exceed $45,000 has been appropriated for it.

For a Parkman Memorial in the City of Ottawa, as a token of friendship and esteem to the people of Canada, the committee has recommended the appropriation of a sum not to exceed $35,000.

Another memorial of which the committee has approved the contract is to be erected in Washington, D. C., in commemoration of Queen Victoria, as typical of the motherhood and womanhood of the Anglo-Saxon-Celt-Teutonic world. For this memorial a sum not to exceed $25,000 has been recommended.

In connection with the Queen Victoria Memorial the committee purposes to create an endowment fund of about $200,000, the proceeds of which shall be devoted to the welfare of women and girls.

The committee approved of a suggestion by Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman that the name of Sulgrave Manor, purchased by the British commission for conversion into a Peace Memorial, be changed to Washington Manor. The suggestion is to be forwarded to the British committee. In this connection the committee also favored a proposition to raise an endowment fund of perhaps $1,000,000 for what it would call the Washington Manor Institution. Through the Washington Manor Institution there might be an exchange of pupils in the secondary schools as well as an exchange of students in the colleges and universities of the English and American nations. The proposed plan likewise contemplates an interchange of newspaper correspondents.

Those who attended the meeting of the Sub-Executive Committee were John A. Stewart, Chairman; Jacob H. Schiff, Gen. Frank S. Streeter, J. S. Alexander, Edward P. Maynard, Arthur K. Wood, Guy E. Tripp, A. S. Frissell, Willis G. Nash, J. Adams Brown, Cornelius A. Pugsley, Ferdinand W. La Frantz, Robert C. Morris, William A. Clarke, Job E. Hedges, William C. Demorest, Isaac N. Seligman, Dr. Elgin R. L. Gould, George W. Burleigh, Henry Sturges Strinker, Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman, Calvin W. Rice, Albert Eugene Gallatin, T. Kennard Thomson, Andrew B. Humphrey, Perley Morse, W. H. Short, N. L. Amster, Dean Nelson, Judge Alton B. Parker, and George T. Wilson. The committee will hold its next meeting on April 28.

PLANS FOR QUEEN'S VISIT.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—William Caspar, representative of Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, conferred with State Department officials to-day over the forthcoming visit of the Queen to this country.

ALTMAN ART TREASURES

Will Not Be Exhibited at Metropolitan Museum Before Fall.

The Metropolitan Art Museum authorities announced yesterday that owing to the amount of work required for installing a fine collection the Altman art treasures will not be placed on exhibition before this fall.

An Italian archer's bow, quiver, and thirteen arrows, believed to be of the fifteenth century, is one of the interesting acquisitions of the month at the Metropolitan Art Museum, and may be seen in the Recent Accessions room. Arms of this kind are seldom seen outside a historical picture. Bows soon lost their strength, and were for this reason not preserved for use, and they were seldom of sufficient artistic value to be held for their beauty. This one is very ornamental, having a horn tip in the form of a dragon's head, an Italian tracery design on the concave side, and a coat of arms on a transparent plate of horn below one of the tips proves it to have belonged to the Neapolitan family, well known to history, of Cepece-Galeota. The bow and quiver are considered to be the best of their kind extant. They were found in the lumber room of an old church in Northern Italy, where they had formerly hung near an ancient statue of St. Sebastian.

Among the recent accessions of paintings is one by Pietro Lorenzetti, a panel, part of an old altar piece, and comes from the Reber collection at Barmen, Germany. It shows a half-length figure of St. Catharine wearing a gown of green and gold brocaded in a design of lilies. She carries in one hand a palm, the sign of martyrdom. There is a wine colored mantel with a band of tooled gold set with jewels. It is a richly beautiful picture with a gold background. Two other paintings are a "Portrait of Bismark," by Lenbach; pastel and "Portrait of Himself," by William Orpen.

'AUTUMNAL HILLS' FOR $375.

Top Price at Sale of Pictures at Anderson's—A Homer Martin $145.

"The Autumnal Hills," a characteristic picture 38 by 47 inches, a signed canvas which had been in exhibitions in different cities brought the highest price, $375, at the evening sale of pictures of Mrs. A. Brayton Ball and Taylor Hatfield at the Anderson Galleries last evening, going to E. D. Brooks. B. M. Carlisle paid $145 for Homer Martin's "Autumn in the Catskills," a relined picture; A. Settler gave $300 for a signed canvas, Corot, "The Cascade at Tivoli," from the Heyman Collection; T. G. Simonds paid $315 for J. Francis Murphy's "The Close of Day"; A. Billing gave $115 for "Milking Time," by A. J. Groenewegen; and F. B. Fletcher $210 for Charles P. Gruppe's "October Day in Connecticut."

A framed tapestry picture, "Italian Vintage Scene," in the same collection, went to Wallace Strobee for $100 in the afternoon sale, and a large Oushak rug to the same buyer for $100. A similar rug went to J. O. Laffin for $100 and a large Koulah rug for $175.

The returns for the sale, which was concluded, were $5,460.

WORKING FOR BLIND FUND.

Lighthouse Committee Wants $300,000 by the End of This Month.

"The Lighthouse Fund Committee," composed of many well-known men and women, who are working to obtain by the end of the present month $300,000 for the benefit of the New York Association for the Blind and its new "Lighthouse" in Fifty-ninth Street, met at the house of the President, Joseph H. Choate, at 8 East Sixty-third Street, yesterday afternoon to discuss ways and means. The fund amounts now to $101,450.

There were present at the meeting yesterday, besides Mr. Choate, Miss Winifred Holt, the secretary; Mrs. E. L. R. Gould, Mrs. John Seeley Ward, Joseph Auerbach, William H. Bliss, James Stewart Cushman, Willard Vinton King, Jacob H. Schiff, Jonathan Thorne and Arthur Williams.

The $300,000 to be obtained is to pay off the indebtedness on the new Lighthouse building at 111 East Fifty-ninth Street, which has every facility for advansing the interests, comfort and earning capacity of the blind, and to give it a working fund.

At the same time documents were seized, alleged to be signed by Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, formerly Provisional President. The documents are said to contain instructions for a widespread uprising and the massacre of officials this month.

PEKING, April 15.—The Japanese Government to-day expressed its regret to the Chinese Government for the Chang-Ti incident of last September, when several Chinese soldiers were killed by Japanese troops who were occupying a section of the Mukden Railway.

Japan also agreed to pay $26,000 (Mexican) as compensation to the families of the soldiers who were killed.

Memorial services for Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus, who were lost on the Titanic two years ago, were held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Educational Alliance at East Broadway and Jefferson Street. Mr. Straus was the founder of the Alliance and its President until his death.

The directors and departmental heads of the Alliance and more than 700 students from its schools attended the services, which were wholly ritualistic, and were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Jacob Tarlau, officiating rabbi of the People's Synagogue. The songs in the service were sung by Cantor Abramson.

Those of the Straus family present were Herbert and Percy Straus, sons of the decedents; Mrs. Hess, Mrs. Weil and Mrs. Herbert Scheftel, daughters, and Leo Kohns, a brother-in-law, now First Vice President of the Educational Alliance.

Welcomed Hero's Death on Titanic, Ex-President Says at Memorial.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 15.—Simple but impressive exercises attended the dedication here to-day of the Butt Memorial Bridge, erected as a tribute to the memory of the late Archibald Willingham Butt, aid to Presidents Taft and Roosevelt, who perished in the Titanic disaster on April 14, 1912. Ex-President Taft, a delegation of Masons, and members of the Butt Memorial Association participated in the services. Mr. Taft, the first speaker, said:

"I like to think of him as the best type of the new South. Archie went to his death in a great disaster. We do not know the details, but we know that women and children were rescued and he went down with the ship. When I heard that many were lost I knew that Archie would never return. He would have selected no other death had he been given a choice."

Hon. Seton R. Beresford Believes Ulster Party Made Class Appeal.

The Hon. Seton R. Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, arrived here last night on the Olympic of the White Star Line to spend three weeks on business. Capt. C. Jorgensen, the explorer, who commanded the camel corps against the Mad Mullah about two years ago, arrived on the Olympic with Mr. Beresford to transact private business.

The Olympic brought over 231 first, 162 second, and 1,032 third-class passengers.

TELL THE MARVELS OF PLASTIC SURGERY

Details of Reconstruction of Mutilated Patients Win Association's Applause.

DOCTORS AGREE FOR ONCE

They Declare the Transplantation of Bones and Organs Impossible Between Different Species.

Members of the International Surgical Association listened yesterday to the details of marvelous reparative processes effected in human patients who had been maimed and mutilated by accident and disease, and the world's foremost exponents of plastic surgery were the speakers, and when they told of how they had supplied new nerves, blood vessels, bones, and even new faces to men and women whom they had practically reconstructed and thus reclaimed from states of mental despair and physical uselessness, they were greeted by the applause of their fellow-scientists.

These practitioners of plastic surgery should not be designated, perhaps, as "beauty doctors," the phrase applied to them in a spirit of fun by some of their confrères, because their achievements are of an enduring quality and are perhaps more representative of present-day progress in surgery than anything else.

New Officers Elected.

The fourth congress of the association closed yesterday afternoon with the election of Dr. W. W. Keen, the distinguished Philadelphia surgeon, as the next President of the association, and the selection of Paris as the meeting place in 1917, when the next congress will be held.

It is a common enough saying that doctors never agree, but yesterday's session of the congress furnished a notable exception, for the surgeons were unanimous in their conclusion that grafts and transplantations of bones and organs can only be guaranteed to be successful when transplanted to the individuals from which they are taken. They are rarely successful when transplanted from one to another of the same species, and are never successful when transplanted from one species to another. In this opinion, based on extended experimentation and practical experience, the other surgeons upheld the contention of Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, who read a paper on the subject yesterday, excerpts from which appeared in THE TIMES of Tuesday.

The members of the association were particularly anxious to hear the opinions of Prof. Erich Lexer of Jena, Director of the Royal Surgical University Clinic and Polyclinic of Königsberg, Prussia, one of the pioneers and a notable exponent of this particular field of surgery. As early as 1908 Dr. Lexer made an announcement which created a great sensation in the scientific world. He was the author of this dictum:

"Bony anchylosis (stiff joint) can be removed by operation only."

Entire Joints Replaced.

Then he told of removing entire joints and replacing them with others freshly removed from human patients. Here are his remarks in making the astonishing announcement:

"I proceeded another step forward, and the desire to produce normal and normally covered joint surfaces led me to transplantation of an entire knee-joint from a newly amputated lower extremity. The patient, an eighteen-year-old girl, suffered from bony anchylosis of the knee-joint."

This operation was successful and others of the same kind followed with equal measures of success. Dr. Lexer then announced these conclusions:

"Other cases show that substitution of half a joint can be as easily accomplished as that of an entire joint. The possibility of organic incorporation of a transplanted joint taken freshly from man is proved. This promises well for the future."

These are the views on transplantation expressed by Dr. Lexer yesterday:

"The value of the various tissues employed for grafting is differently appreciated by practitioners and by pathologists. An excellent clinical result may be obtained not only if the graft takes, preserving its entire structure, but also if it disappears, slowly giving place to tissues of substitution, and sometimes even if it is completely surrounded by adhesions."

Examples of Grafting.

Dr. H. Morestin of Paris gave some interesting examples of grafting and its practical application to a wide variety of surgical conditions.

"Grafting of hairy parts," he said, "is attainable either by free transplantation or by means of a fragment, this last method being much more preferable, and even the only one to be recommended for an important grafting. By this means the eyebrow and even the mustache may be restored."

Prof. Eugène Villard of Lyons, read a paper on the grafting of blood vessels, an innovation in surgery of which Dr. Carrel is the most notable pioneer. Here is what Dr. Villard said relative to the application of vascular graftings to human surgery:

"Surgery may benefit by the use of vascular grafting in three cases: In the course of vascular traumatism; in the extirpation of a tumor adherent to the large vessels; in the cure of aneurisms.

"If the indications exist to perform a vascular grafting in a man, one would have recourse by preference to an autoplastic grafting, more particularly to a venous grafting, the organism more easily supplying a venous than an arterial graft."

An interesting feature in connection with the address of Dr. Carrel was that he took occasion to tell Dr. Villard that his paper and observations included therein were not up to date. Dr. Villard had declared that the transplantation of removed parts of veins and arteries was impracticable because they could not be obtained quickly enough at the time required. Dr. Carrel said that he had successfully kept in cold storage many of these pieces of organic matter, and that Dr. J. W. Markoe of the Lying-In Hospital kept a laboratory for that very purpose, thus making it practical to have various pieces taken from healthy subjects kept in readiness for just such emergencies as were being discussed.

Many of the visitors attended clinics at several of the hospitals yesterday. Dr. E. Hertoghe of Antwerp, a specialist in diseases resulting from deficiencies of the thyroid gland, presided at a clinic in the Polyclinic Hospital. Patients were shown whose conditions were said to have improved under treatment by thyroid extract, the administration of which was begun only last Friday.

An interested visitor to the congress yesterday was Dr. William M. Polk, President of the Academy of Medicine and Dean of the Cornell Medical College.

"These distinguished surgeons have come here," he said, "to get acquainted with us geographically, politically, and scientifically. I think it is a good thing for us."

President Willems of the association gave a reception for the members at the home of Henry Phipps, 1,063 Fifth Avenue, last evening.

Vienna X-Ray Scientist Here.

Prof. Arthur Schuller of Vienna, the well-known X-ray expert, arrived on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie yesterday to attend the surgical conference in New York. Prof. Schuller, it was said, was the first to make X-ray photographs of the human brain.

ROCKS IN STATE ROAD.

Investigators Tell of Contract Evasions in Suffolk Trial.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 15.—The average depth of the Coram-Patchogue State road and the average width of the veneer on the roadbed was far short of that required in the contract, according to Joseph A. Curran, Superintendent of Maintenance of the State Highway Department, who testified to-day against the Suffolk Contracting Company, its officers and two former engineers for the State, who are on trial for grand larceny in connection with the construction of the highway.

Supt. Curran, who worked under John A. Hennessy, testified that he made an examination of the road last November, when he was accompanied on an inspection trip by Henry P. Morrison, a road engineer of thirty years' experience, who helped to build the Croton Aqueduct, and Charles M. Hilton, county engineer of Rockland County. They made fifty openings in the pavement, and found that its average depth was 4¼ inches, instead of the required 6 inches, and that the width of the road was 15 feet 3 inches instead of 16 feet, as called for in the contract.

Henry P. Morrison testified that he helped to make the investigation of the highway in November, and that rocks twice as large as a man's fist and some as large as a man's head were found substituted for gravel. He said that "native gravel" apparently scraped from the side of the road had been used on the road instead of Peekskill gravel specified in the contract.

A. R. Applegarth, who went over the highway with Curran and the other witnesses, testified that he was present when twenty-one openings were made in the surface of the road. According to him the average depth was 3.54 inches, and the average width of the roadbed was 14.7 feet. The gravel used was from 20 to 30 per cent. native sand.

When Franklin Overton qualified as an expert, he corroborated much of the testimony that preceded his and further said that the road as constructed was worth not more than ten cents a cubic yard. Where the contract called for 10,800 cubic yards of Peekskill gravel, he estimated that not more than 6,840 had been used.

District Attorney Greene offered eleven bags of road building material in evidence. The prosecution's case was finished to-night and the defense will begin to-morrow.

L. B. Adams Pleads Guilty to Fraud —Sentenced Six Months.

Lorenzo B. Adams, a promoter, who had been in business at I Broadway as L. B. He had professed to promote the sale of the securities of newly-formed industrial enterprises, but investigation showed that he had done practically nothing in return for the fees he had collected.

SAIL ON THE IMPERATOR.

Countess von Bernstorff, H. C. Frick and ex-Mayor McClellan Passengers

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, was at the Hamburg-American Line pier yesterday morning to see his wife sail at 9 o'clock for Germany on the Imperator. He said that the Countess was going home for a vacation, and that he would have gone also but that the diplomatic situation at Washington at this time prevented his departure. The Ambassador added that he hoped to go over later and join the Countess for a brief holiday.

Henry C. Frick, another passenger on the Imperator, said that he looked for a revival of business soon. Ex-Mayor George B. McClellan sailed on the Imperator with his wife for his annual vaction in Europe. He said that he would return early in September and take up his work at Princeton.

The dimensions of the new ships are: Length, 524 feet; beam, 63 feet, with nearly 3,000 gross tonnage and accommodation for 752 passengers and a crew of 200 men. One will be called the Northern Pacific and the other the Great Northern, it was said yesterday.

TELL OF SUFFERINGS OF VIVISECTED DOGS

Witnesses Testify Against Dr. Joshua Sweet of the University of Pennsylvania.

ANIMALS LEFT IN AGONY

Nothing Done to Relieve Them, and They Were Fed on Garbage, Says Former Keeper.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—Dr. Joshua Sweet, one of the six members of the faculty of the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, under indictment charged with wanton cruelty to dogs after vivisection, was placed on trial to-day. Dr. Sweet entered a plea of not guilty.

The other physicians and surgeons under indictment in this case, which has stirred anti-vivisectionists throughout the United States, are Alfred Richards, Allen Smith, Richard Pearce, Alonzo Taylor, and Edward Reichert. The disposition of their cases will depend upon the result of the present prosecution. They are all well known in the world of medical and scientific research, and composed the committee having general charge of the "animal house" at the university.

Two witnesses took the stand to-day and gave sensational testimony against Dr. Sweet. The witnesses are Samuel Geyer, who was in charge of the university kennels between Dec. 1, 1906, and April 8, 1913, and Miss Henrietta Ogden, who, according to her testimony, accompanied Geyer and her sister and armed with electric pocket flashes, observed on several occasions the sufferings of dogs which had undergone vivisection operations and had been left without attention and fed for two weeks on garbage.

It was patent from the start that the objection of the Women's Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was not to vivisection as such, but simply to alleged cruelty following experimental operations.

Geyer was the prosecution's star witness. He said Dr. Sweet told him if there was not enough food for the dogs to be had from the remnants at the university hospital kitchen, he was to get the rest from the slop cans. He said he had complained to Dr. Sweet that the food was not proper for healthy animals, let alone those operated upon.

Geyer described the cases of a half dozen dogs which had undergone vivisection and had been returned from the operating tables to his care. One, he testified, returned with a hole one and a half inches long and two inches wide in its stomach, from which two strings were hanging. The bandages had been removed, he testified, and although he notified Dr. Sweet of its condition, the physician gave it no medical attention. Again the animal, according to Geyer, underwent operation and was returned absolutely helpless. Dr. Sweet, said Geyer, did not relieve the agony. The only food furnished the dog was from garbage cans. For four days the dog was unable to rise, and two weeks later was killed to ascertain the effects of the operation.

Another dog, said Geyer, was paralyzed and moved only by pulling itself with the front paws. Dr. Sweet, he testified, did nothing to alleviate the sufferings.

Another dog, said Geyer, was kept caged for two months with a stomach incision until treated and then was taken to the laboratory for vivisection purposes. It was returned, its body covered with hypodermic punctures, but received no medical attention.

"The dog was in such a pitiable condition," testified Geyer, "that I asked Dr. Sweet in the name of mercy to asphyxiate it, but he said he had to see Dr. Taylor first. The next day it was turned over to another doctor by orders, who said he wanted to experiment on it for a difficult operation. The dog came back dead."

Other cases were similarly described by Geyer. Regarding the food from the garbage pails, this, said the witness, was often filled with sticks used by the hospital physician to examine the throats of diphtheritic patients, with broken glass test tubes, and used bandages which had infected it. He removed these things before giving the dogs their meals.

Miss Ogden told of peering into the cages with her electric flash and of the intense pain it was obvious the vivisected animals were suffering, no medical relief being given to them, she said.

The case will be resumed to-morrow morning.

WARNS COUNTRY-GOERS.

Be Careful of Sanitary Conditions, Says Dr. Goldwater.

Health Commissioner Goldwater issued yesterday a warning to prospective vacationists. He asks them not to select a Summer resting place without knowing something of the water supply, how the milk is handled, and the sanitary condition of the place. He says that half of the typhoid fever in this city is contracted in the country, and that if the departmental warnings were heeded the typhoid rate would at once drop to a minimum. "Scenery is not everything, nor are golf links," he says.

Dr. Goldwater calls attention to the fact that his department supplies anti-typhoid vaccine free, and he urges all who contemplate spending their vacation in the country to have their family physician give them a course of treatment.

THE COLUMBIA CHORUS.

Handel's "Acis and Galatea" and Harty's "Mystic Trumpeter" Given.

The Columbia University chorus has done some good work under the direction of Prof. Walter Henry Hall in maintaining interest in choral singing, gravely menaced by the present condition and tendency of the public taste. But its sixth concert, given last evening in Carnegie Hall, was not calculated to stimulate public interest either in Handel's "Acis and Galatea" or Hamilton Harty's setting of Whitman's "Mystic Trumpeter," both of which were unwisely pressed into one programme.

It was close upon 10:30 before "Acis and Galatea" was finished and "The Mystic Trumpeter" was begun. Even then the happy ending of the cantata, devised by the librettist in the deification of Acis, was left unreported, and uncelebrated by the apparently improvised "cut" of some of the last numbers. And yet even a cantata ought to have some sort of logical climax and ending, being not merely a succession of unmeaning recitatives, airs, and choruses, but a quasi-dramatic narrative.

Handel's pastoral cantata, intended by the composer at its first performances to be represented, if not really acted, in a "rural prospect, diversified with rocks, groves and a river," as the program very properly stated, can hardly be thought a very intense piece of dramatic construction, even at the best. Nor is the poetical quality of the text anything to please in the literary sense. Its most popular air, "O ruddier than the cherry," is a fine specimen of librettist's doggerel, and Galatea's protest against "swilling full draughts of human blood" something worse. But "Acis and Galatea" has some of Handel's most charming and ingratiating music, exhibiting a not too familiar side of his genius. The air just mentioned is still popular with bassos, and "Love sounds the alarm" is known to tenors.

The work in planned mostly for the solo singers; the chorus has few opportunities. The solo singers need not only a sound and efficient technique, but also a special understanding of and familiarity with Handel's style. These were shown last evening in the fullest measure by Mr. Dan Beddoe, tenor; Messrs. T. Foster Why, basso, and Nicholas Douty, tenor, and quite insufficiently by Mme. Cecile Talma, soprano. The chorus gave a good account of itself on the few occasions when it was heard. There were some carefully planned nuances effectively delivered, and the singing on the whole showed vigor and precision. Yet the quality of the men's voices was by no means richly beautiful.

Mr. Hamilton Harty's setting of "The Mystic Trumpeter" was given for the first time in America. He is one of the younger and more adventurous school of British composers; an Irishman who was a few years ago in America as an accompanist; at which time some striking and successful arrangements of Irish folk songs by him showed unusual talent. In "The Mystic Trumpeter" he has sought for an expression of the poem quite as much through the medium of the orchestra as through the chorus and the baritone soloist.

He has sought for variety and richness of color and picturesque expression, of which an instance is the polacca movement in the orchestra that evokes the vision of "ladies and cavaliers long dead," and another the ecclesiastical tones that accompany "the monks walking in advance bearing the cross on high."

Some of these orchestral passages last evening seemed to fail in their intended effect, when that effect was of sonority, richness, and brilliancy. It would not be quite fair to hold Mr. Harty wholly responsible for this, for the orchestra was not in the hands of a conductor who could manage it with complete mastery—the accompaniments in "Acis and Galatea" had already given evidence of that—and the orchestral performance of a score by no means simple or easy, was not, obviously, a complete interpretation of it. The chorus here, again, did well; and Mr. Horatio Connell, baritone, delivered some uncomfortable phrases well.

It was unfortunate that the new work was placed where it was on the programme; it would have been better appreciated earlier in the evening. As it was, interesting qualities were displayed in it that prompted the wish to hear it under more favorable circumstances.

DROPS LODGING HOUSE CASE

But Magistrate McAdoo Says There Has Been Much Petty Graft.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo yesterday morning dismissed the John Doe inquiry which had been brought before him with reference to the conduct of the Municipal Lodging House, saying that the evidence did not warrant criminal action, and that such irregularities as had been discovered called rather for investigation by the Commissioner of Accounts.

Assistant District Attorney De Ford, whom Judge McAdoo had called in for consultation in the case, agreed with this opinion. It apepars, however, that the campaign against Supt. William O. Yorke has not been abandoned. Commissioner of Charities Kingsbury, under whose authority the inquiry was begun, was out of town yesterday, but W. A. Whiting, his chief investigator, said that they would carry the case through to the finish.

The testimony of the two or three witnesses heard yesterday, as well as of those who testified the day before, brought out that among the 106 unpaid employes of the lodging house there is a great deal of what Magistrate McAdoo called "pathetic and pilfiable grafting"—removal from the clothing of lodgers of sums of money which they had tried to hide, thefts of wrenches and other tools, of the pots to get fat to sell to soap makers, pilfering of oranges, apples, loaves of bread, and slices of ham.

Mr. Whiting said that Commissioner Kingsbury would make a more definite announcement regarding the future course of the inquiry at his office early to-morrow afternoon. Supt. Yorke said that he was forbidden by the regulations of the department to comment on the action of the court.

MME. RIQUE FOUND INSANE.

Former "Soul Doctor" Is Committed to Ward's Island.

Supreme Court Justice Weeks yesterday decided that Mme. Adele Marie Rique was insane and committed her to Ward's Island. Mme. Rique has made sporadic appearances before the public in the last ten years. Once she founded the University for Soul Education and Mental and Material Elation, and she was known to all those whom she induced to believe as she did as the "Soul Doctor."

Mme. Rique pleaded guilty in the Court of Special Sessions in August, 1911, to practicing medicine without a license. On March 30 the management of the Young Women's Christian Association complained that she would permit no one to enter her room, and refused to eat. She was sent to Bellevue Hospital, where she was kept under observation. It was determined that she was not sane enough to look after herself, and she was taken to the Supreme Court for commitment.

Justice Weeks asked her if she remembered the occasion of her arrest. She said she remembered it very well.

"But that time," she said, "I was tricked by detectives." Mme. Rique said that recently, while she was lecturing in one of the parlors of the Waldorf, two rough clad men watched her. She has always insisted that she could tell just what sort of persons she was dealing with by the color that floated above them like a halo. This was her belief as far back as October, 1910. Mme. Rique also insists strong perfumes would alleviate pain.

THE NIAGARA ARRIVES.

Officers of French Liner Deny That She Sprang a Leak.

The French Line steamer Niagara arrived last night from Havre with a list to port, which the Captain said was due to the small cargo she carried, the small supply of coal in the starboard bunkers, and the strong easterly wind which was blowing. The officers of the steamer denied that there had been a leak in her hold.

A cable message from Lohdon on April 12 said that the Niagara had sprung a leak and was making for the Azores. She brought over 65 second cabin and 467 steerage passengers.

Will Move Plaza Flagpole.

The flagpole on the Queensboro Plaza, which was once the mast of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock III, is to be removed to the East River Park. In its present position it is in the way of the new rapid transit lines, and George S. Coleman, counsel for the Public Service Commission, has advised that the contractor must pay for its removal and raise it again, provided its new site is not too far away.

ANTIS CALL FIGHT FOR VOTES SEX WAR

Speakers at Big Hotel Biltmore Luncheon Make Fun of Suffragists.

1,000 WOMEN AT TABLES

Mrs. Henry P. White Tells of the Horrors of Feminism and Quotes Many 'Votes for Women' Leaders.

The anti-suffragists were out in large numbers, 1,000 of them, at a luncheon given by the New York Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday. The big ballroom of the hotel on the nineteenth floor was filled to its capacity, with tables in the surrounding balconies, and guests were turned away. It was one of the largest women's luncheons ever given in the city. Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, the President, who presided, asked the members and guests before going away to give a serious pledge.

"Don't say that 'suffrage is coming,'" she said. "Give a solemn pledge that you will never say it. Woman suffrage is not coming. I honestly don't believe it is, and Mrs. Dodge doesn't believe it. We think, if the other Western States do not go for suffrage this year, that it will never come at all."

Another thing which Miss Chittenden asked was for a general anti-suffrage fight for the last week in April. The suffragists are to celebrate May 2, she said, and she asked the antis to give a week to a fight for the opposition.

The ballroom was decorated with the anti-suffrage colors, rose and black and white, the white for purity, black for steadfastness and the rose for the American Beauty rose, the antis' floral emblem. The table at which sat the guests of honor was decorated with American Beauty roses and Easter lilies, and on the small tables were roses.

Over the table was a national flag and the big rose, black, and white banner of the antis, bearing the words "Anti-Suffrage." The members of the luncheon committee, 150 women, all wore ribbons with the anti-suffrage colors. There was music by the Hungarian band.

With Miss Chittenden and Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge at the speaker's table were Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, Mrs. E. C. Dudley, Mrs. Henry P. White of Brookline, Mass.; President Wickersham of the Bar Association, Charles S. Fairchild, Henry W. Taft, and E. S. Martin. The suffragists and their wicked ways were the texts of all the speeches. They were said to be a sorry lot fighting a sex war and making humorous spectacles of themselves. E. S. Martin warned the anti-suffragists, however, that they should work if they did not want to have the suffrage thrust upon them.

"The opposition of men is almost negligible," he said. "If you don't do something the women will all get the vote as the men have. Men will give the vote to women if they keep asking for it, for love, or because it is the easiest thing to do."

Of woman's sphere of usefulness he said:

"She is the chief source of inspiration to good behavior, and not always as inspiring as she should be."

Mrs. Henry P. White told of the horrors of feminism, of how closely the suffrage leaders touched it, and begged the women present to do their utmost to fight the two. She quoted many well-known suffrage leaders, among them Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, Miss Jessie Ashley, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and "the suffragist's own Judge Lindsey."

UNION LEAGUE WAS SPARED.

Suffragist Orators Driven Back to Cover by the Storm.

A gloomy atmosphere prevailed yesterday in the headquarters of the Woman Suffrage Party, at 48 East Thirty-fourth Street, due not so much to the weather conditions as to disappointment occasioned by the temporary desertion of the cause by the masculine champions in the Men's League. They had retreated without hurling even one verbal shot at their political enemies in the Union League in the threatened vocal war of retaliation against the anti-woman suffrage resolution adopted by the Union League a few days ago.

The orators of the Men's League rode bravely up Murray Hill in a big automobile at 3 P. M., with the colors of the league draped fore and aft on the vehicle, and halted at the anti-woman suffrage citadel of clubdom, at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, where another car occupied by suffragists was waiting.

"I guess the joke is on us to-day," commented James Lees Laidlaw, the banker, who is President of the Men's League, and was scheduled as the chief speaker in the attack on the Union League. He looked discouraged as a gust of wind and rain struck him in the face.

"We cannot get any attention in this storm," suggested Alfred Brown, another Men's League speaker, noting the people scurrying by and hastening to shelter from rain and wind. This was agreed to by all the others, and so the order was given to retreat. The clubmen at the windows smiled and waved their hands in a parting salute when the suffrage warriors turned and went down Murray Hill.

DROPS SIEGEL FROM NAME.

"The Big Store" Is Now J. B. Greenhut Company, Inc.

An order granting the application of J. B. Greenhut, President of the Greenhut Siegel-Cooper Company, to change the name of that concern to "J. B. Greenhut Company, Inc., Formerly Greenhut Siegel-Cooper Company," was signed yesterday by Justice Vernon M. Davis, sitting in Part I., Special Term of the Supreme Court. The petition was granted on motion of Rose & Paskus, counsel for Capt. Greenhut, after filing due proof of all the legal requirements for the application.

"The Big Store" is authorized by the order to assume its new name on or after May 18, 1914. Within ten days the order must be entered in the office of the County Clerk of New York, where the papers on which the order has been issued must also be filed. A certified copy of the order must be filed with the Secretary of State, and the Court further directed that a copy of the order be published once a week for four successive weeks in THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Evening Sun.

SIEGEL TO FOLLOW BECKER.

Indicted Department Store Men to be Tried Soon.

John B. Stanchfield, of Stanchfield & Levy, counsel for Henry Siegel and Frank Vogel, partners in the failed Siegel enterprises in this city and Boston, notified District Attorney Whitman yesterday that Siegel and Vogel would not change their pleas of not guilty, entered a week ago when fourteen indictments were returned against them charging them with grand larceny and receiving bank deposits when insolvent.

It is probable that the cases of Siegel and Vogel will be tried following the Becker case.

Henry Melville, receiver of Henry Siegel & Co., bankers, at the close of the day had received the pass books of 3,500 depositors at his temporary offices, 100 Broadway.

BOSTON, April 15.—The Grand Jury which has been investigating the transactions of Henry Siegel and his partner, Frank E. Vogel, to-day examined articles of incorporation of the Henry Siegel Company of Boston and returns made to the Commissioner of Corporations from 1909 to 1913, and sworn to by the officers of the company. In addition to this evidence, the Grand Jury also examined several of the employes of the failed store, and John H. Graham, President, and Charles B. Pierce, discount clerk of the international Trust Company; Arthur B. Kennedy, discount clerk of the First National Bank; Mary Fitzgerald, formerly private secretary to the manager of the Siegel store, and A. R. Morris, formerly cashier of the Siegel Bank run in connection with the local store.

BURGLAR TO SERVE 26 YEARS

Judge Rosalsky Tries to Rid Society Forever of a Menace.

William Hahn, or William Smith, who is known to the police as one of the few remaining members of the "Old Dutch" gang of burglars, was sentenced to imprisonment of twenty-six years in Sing Sing yesterday by Judge Rosalsky, in the Court of General Sessions. Hahn has already spent twenty-five of the fifty-three years of his life in prison.

Hahn was put on trial for attempting to blow open the safe of Jacob Mendel, at 242 Bowery. He was convicted of burglary in the third degree, and attempted grand larceny, and a sentence of ten years was imposed for each conviction. Hahn was out of prison on parole. He had been released after he had served ten years of a sixteen-year sentence for a burglary in White Plains. He now will have to serve the six years in addition to the other twenty years.

"You are a menace to the community," said Judge Rosalsky, in imposing sentence, "and it is my purpose to send you away for such a period that society will be rid of you forever."

Governor Wants Further Light on Maier Water Corporation Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Gov. Glynn is giving careful consideration to the Maier bill to place under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Commission all water supply corporations. Prior to his public hearing on the bill the Governor asked for an opinion on the measure from Judge Edgar M. Cullen. At the hearing he had Joseph A. Kellogg, Deputy Attorney General, sit with him as counsel.

The Governor has asked Judge Kellogg for an opinion on the opinion of Judge Cullen and on the remarks made at the public hearing by ex-Attorney General Wickersham for the bill and Edward J. McGoldrick of the New York Corporation Counsel's office against it.

PRISONERS FIGHT FLAMES.

Reformatory Boys Also Serve as Firemen on Hart's Island.

Much alarm was caused yesterday afternoon by a small fire on Hart's Island, when a small abandoned one-story frame house burned. The high wind had interrupted the telephone service some hours before, and this task of communication intensified the situation.

Smoke was seen coming from the building at 4 o'clock. The fire whistle was blown and firemen from Engine Company 70 on City Island and the fireboat George B. McClellan responded. The prisoners and the boys in the reformatory were put through the fire drill and assisted in fighting the flames. The building, which was a storehouse and contained goods that burned with a dense black smoke, was destroyed.

Sends Check for $100 to Fund for Slain Detective's Widow.

Mayor Mitchel sent a check for $100 to Dock Commissioner Smith yesterday as his personal contribution to the fund started by the Commissioner to aid the widow of Detective Joseph Guarnieri, who was killed recently while attempting to arrest a man who had shot another.

"Our Police Department," wrote the Mayor, "has never been lacking in courage, no matter what dangerous conditions had to be faced. The city is justly proud of this, and we can express our feelings in no more fitting way than by helping to provide for those who are dependent upon policemen who died in the performance of duty."

TALKS MURDERER INTO SPARING HER

Miss Sammis Argues with Youth Who Killed Her Brother and Tried to Force Her to Elope.

ARMED POSSE SEEKS HIM

Sisters Run to a Neighbor's in Their Night Clothing After Discovering Brother's Body.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., April 15.—Coolness on the part of Miss Nellie Sammis, 35 years old, who lived with her brother, Frank Sammis, on his farm between Greenlawn and Huntington, probably saved her from being murdered by a young farmhand early this morning, who had killed her brother with an axe a short time before.

Frank Fowler, the farmhand, who is about 23 years old, is said to have become infatuated with Miss Sammis and to have been drinking heavily at a saloon in the neighborhood last night. He was employed last Summer to work about the farm. A posse of farmers, led by Sheriff A. W. Biggs, has been scouring the country to catch the murderer, but has found no trace of him.

Miss Sammis told Coroner Gibson today that she was awakened by hearing somebody enter her room about midnight. She said that Fowler, carrying a bloody axe in his hand, told her he had killed her brother, who had scolded him for his attentions to her. The farmhand insisted that she should elope with him without delay. She refused, she said, and got up to run from the room, but he grabbed her and threw her back to the bed. Then, she said, thinking he had gone suddenly insane, she began to reason with him.

"Why should you kill me?" she asked. "I've been kind to you all Winter."

He seemed to hesitate, she said, and she continued to argue calmly until he said:

"Well, I guess I won't kill you. I'm going away. Good-bye."

The man gazed about blankly for a moment, Miss Sammis says, and then, letting the axe drop to the floor, walked out of the room without further comment. She waited until she heard him close the outer door and ran to her brother's room on the floor above and found his body.

Her sister, Mrs. Mary Smith, a widow, the only other occupant of the house, who had a room on the ground floor, was awakened by Miss Sammis's screams and ran upstairs. Miss Sammis recovered consciousness after her sister entered the room, and together they ran, in their night clothing, screaming to the home of a neighbor. A small posse of farmers was organized at once to search for the murderer, who is thought to have escaped to the woods. Trolley cars had stopped running for the night when Fowler left the house, and it is thought he is hiding in the vicinity. Sheriff Biggs was roused from his bed after the posse had begun its man hunt and assumed charge.

Close watch was kept on all cars passing through the vicinity to-day, and the man is being sought in Port Jefferson, where he said he lived formerly.

Dr. Gordon Gibson, son of the Coroner, performed an autopsy on the body of the murdered man this afternoon. Coroner Gibson will hold an inquest to-morrow or Friday night, by which time it is hoped the murderer will have been apprehended.

ROAD GRAFT REPORT SOON.

Albany County Grand Jury Near End of Foley Contract Inquiry.

ALBANY, April 15.—The Albany County Grand Jury, which has been in session for about a month investigating highway graft testimony, turned over to District Attorney Harold D. Alexander by Commissioner James W. Osborne, probably will report early next week. Chief interest centres in the inquiry into the operations of the old Highway Commission, consisting of C. Gordon Reel, Duncan W. Peck and John A. Bensel, and its Deputy, Charles P. Foley, in letting 818 highway repair contracts which involved approximately $3,000,000.

Mr. Osborne is here to-night and will see the Governor to-morrow in relation to future investigation of highway matters. This will be their first conference since Mr. Osborne submitted his report and recommended certain changes, some of which were termed a "dream" by the Governor. A point of great interest to both Mr. Osborne and his assistant, Arthur T. Warner, what their compensation shall be, probably will be discussed.

CONNIE MACK TO SPRING A SURPRISE

Mysterious Youngster to Pitch Against Yankees at Polo Grounds To-day.

Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics promises to spring a big surprise on the Yankees to-day at the Polo Grounds. He said last night at the Hotel Ansonia that he would use a young pitcher that New York fans had never heard of. Mr. Mack would not reveal the youngster's name and his identity is a mystery here. He has several of his recruit boxmen with him and the one he has in mind has shown unusual promise in the Southern training camp.

Mack, during the present campaign, is not going to rely entirely on his veteran boxmen, but has been keeping some youngsters under cover, just as he kept Joe Bush's real worth hidden until the world's series last Fall. It was expected that Chief Bender would be able to pitch during the present series, but Manager Mack says that the big Chippewa Indian is coming to form very slowly and is not in shape yet to go the nine-inning route. In the event of Mack's mysterious youngster failing to live up to expectations, "Bob" Shawkey will probably twirl against the Chancemen this afternoon.

Mack had great praise for Marty McHale and was surprised at the fine form he showed so early in the season. Manager Chance was more than pleased at McHale's performance and stated that his work bears out the confidence he has had in the youngster since late last Fall.

Chance's pitchers are all in fine shape and he will use either Ray Caldwell or Ray Keating against the World's Champions.

Chance expects great things of Keating this season. He said yesterday that the Bridgeporter had a change of pitch he considered better than Ed. Walsh's. "Keating had more 'stuff' on his moist ball in Brooklyn than Ed Walsh ever had," says Chance, "and I consider Walsh was the greatest wet ball tosser in the big leagues. Keating had Ed Sweeney worried because of the fantastic manner in which the ball broke and his right hand was all puffed up trying to catch it."

Chance is anxiously waiting for the warm weather because he is skeptical about letting the ball endanger their arms on cold, damp days. Yesterday's rain prevented all the games scheduled in these parts.

The only thing of moment that happened in the baseball world yesterday was the growing of the grass at the Polo Grounds. Ground Keeper Henry Fabian says the lawn will be as green and smooth as a billiard table when the Giants get back next week.

The players of the Athletics, Bostons, Yankees and Brooklyns spent their time during yesterday's downpour looking at the moving pictures of the Giants-White Sox tour around the world.

THREE GIANTS WOULD JUMP.

Gilmore Says They Offered Services to Federal League if Terms Suited.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Suits for damages, aggregating $65,000, will be begun in a few days by the Federal League against five ball players who, it will be claimed, refused to live up to their contracts with the clubs. This was announced by President Gilmore on his return to-day from the Eastern cities of the Federal circuit. Blanding, Killifer and Kahler will be sued for $15,000 each and Williams and Baumgardner for $10,000 each, it is said.

Gilmore said that while he was in Baltimore three members of the New York Nationals called on him and said they were willing to play in the Federal League if certain improvements they liked. He promised to take them on, he said, if any of his clubs wanted men. He refused to make public their names.

The Chicago defendants in the two suits filed against the Federal League by the Philadelphia Nationals were served with summonses to-day. Tinker was handed his notice as he was boarding a train with his team for Princeton, Ill., where the first and second teams played an exhibition game.

The papers in the suits for injunction to restrain the Federals from attempting to hire Philadelphia players and for $25,000 damages are returnable to the May term of the District Court, and counsel for the National League Club stated to-day that they would be ready to proceed at once.

HAMILTON CHANGES MIND.

St. Louis American Pitcher Not to Play with Kansas City Federals.

PARSONS, Kan., April 15.—Earl Hamilton, pitcher, who jumped from the St. Louis American League Baseball Club to the Kansas City Federals last Thursday, to-day agreed to rejoin the St. Louis team. Hamilton reached his decision after an all-day conference with President Hedges of the St. Louis Club, at Hamilton's home in Oswego, Kan., near here.

KANSAS CITY, April 15.—George Stovall, manager of the Kansas City Federal League Club, who induced Hamilton to leave the St. Louis team last week, granted Hamilton permission to go to his home in Oswego last Sunday night. Stovall said the pitcher agreed to return to-night and was to pitch the opening game to-morrow between the Chicago and Kansas City Federals. Although Hamilton had not returned to-night Stovall said he would not believe Hamilton had jumped until he had definite information from the pitcher himself.

To secure Hamilton, Stovall offered a $5,000 bonus and a three-year contract for a total of $21,000. The pitcher came here and worked out at Federal League Park. He was in such good condition Stovall decided to use him in the opening game.

RACQUET WIELDERS WIN.

They Defeat Knickerbocker Club Nine in Baseball, 22 to 21.

The Racquet and Tennis Club baseball team yesterday defeated the Knickerbocker Club at the Twelfth Regiment Armory in the Inter-club League series by the score of 22 to 21.

Despite the damp chil that filled the big hall the teams made a lively contest, marked by plenty of hitting, clever fielding and base running. With only six men on a side the fielders had all the work they could handle, for between the severe attack on both pitchers and the slippery floor it was a case of all hands being on the jump.

Despite the large number of runs scored it was anybody's game until the last man was out. In fact, at the end of the agreed seven innings, the score was tie at 21 runs, so an extra inning was required and in this the Racquet and Tennis men managed to squeeze in the winning run. The line-up:

Racquet and Tennis Club—Sheffield, pitcher; Paige, first base; Litchfield, second base; Cunningham, shortstop; Norris, third base; Ashmore, catcher.

Knickerbocker Club—Kernochen, shortstop, Babcock, second base; Rae, first base, Slidell, pitcher; Morgan, third base; Livingston, catcher.

The score by innings:

| Racquet and Tennis | 3 | 4 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 7 | 6 | 1 | — | 22 |

Cardinals Blow Up in Eighth and Pirates Win a 5 to 1 Game.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 15.—The Pittsburgh Nationals, by timely hitting and through errors of the St. Louis Club, turned the tables on the local team today and won, 5 to 1.

Errors and bases on balls helped the visitors, the home club making five errors behind Sallee, who passed six batsmen. In the five times he went to the plate Gibson was passed three times, twice intentionally with two men on bases. Twice he singled, sending a runner across the plate each time.

The home team scored its run on a single by Butler, who took second on Wagner's poor throw to first, and two sacrifices. Officially Dolan did not bat in to-day's game, as he got three passes and a sacrifice in as many trips to the rubber. The score:

FORDHAM CAPTAIN OUT.

Pitcher Walsh Has Poisoned Finger and Is Lost to the Team.

Capt. Billy Walsh probably will not participate in any of Fordham's games this year. The middle finger of his left hand is swollen to twice its normal size from blood-poisoning, which resulted from a bite he received in a basket ball game with the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute quintet two months ago. Walsh was one of the best pitchers Fordham has produced and gained victories over Columbia, West Point, and Georgetown last season.

The baseball game between Fordham College and New York University, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon on the former's field at Fordham, was postponed owing to the inclement weather, until this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Either Carter or Keelen will do the twirling for Fordham.

Cornell Overhauls Tufts.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 15.—Cornell came up from behind and beat out Tufts to-day by the score of 10 to 6. Traub's wildness in the first inning, in which he passed three men, gave the visitors a lead, but in the sixth inning Cornell rolled up six runs, getting five hits, two of them three-baggers, by Schirick and Bills. This gave the Ithacans a commanding lead.

Bryant, who displaced Traub in the first inning, pitched a fine game, allowing only three hits. He also got three singles. The score:

SENATORS GET FOUR HITS IN COLD BOSTON

Red Sox Gather Six, and These Are Sufficient to Win by 2 to 1 Score.

BOSTON, April 15.—Notwithstanding extremely cold weather for baseball, Washington and Boston played a fast game to-day, the locals winning 2 to 1. A thermometer in the grandstand registered only 5 degrees above freezing. George Foster, who pitched for the Red Sox, was effective in every inning except the second, when the Senators bunched two hits with two errors and scored their only run.

Boston tied the game in that inning on Lewis's two-base hit and Yerkes's single. The locals won in the sixth after Engle singled, went to second on a base on balls to Lewis, and scored on Gardner's hit. The score:

Hempstead Back Without Shafer.

President H. N. Hempstead of the Giants returned yesterday from a month's trip to the Pacific Coast, where he tried to persuade "Tilly" Shafer to change his mind and return to the club. Mr. Hempstead said that Shafer was determined to give up the game and go into business with his father, who was willing to have "Tilly" play ball a while longer, and he used all kinds of arguments in Mr. Hempstead's behalf to have Shafer return to the team. When Mr. Hempstead saw the uselessness of trying to argue with Shafer he gave the task up as a bad job and spent the rest of the time sightseeing.

Winners with the Cue.

Koji Yamada yesterday displayed the best form he has shown since he began practicing at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, for the championship 14.1 balkline billiard tournament, when he won two games. In the afternoon Yamada played a 200-point match with E. Woods, winning by the score of 200 to 108 in fifteen innings. His average was 13 4-15, while Woods's average was 7 8-15. Yamada was opposed by George P. B. Clarke, former national amateur champion, in the evening match, which was of 250 points' duration, and Yamada won 250 to 9 in four innings, making 66 in the second frame, 37 in the third, and 147 in the fourth inning. He averaged 62 2-4 points.

In their practice games last night at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, Orlando Morningstar and Young Jacob Schaefer, both gave clever exhibitions of 14.1 balk-line billiards. The former defeated M. Miller by the score of 400 to 171 in twenty-eight innings, making high run of 60, and an average of 14 8-28. Miller's high run was 52 with an average of 6 3-28. Schaefer defeated Sylvester Levy in a 400-point match by the score of 400 to 75. The winner completed his string of 400 points in twenty innings for an average of twenty, and made a high run of 114. Levy made a high run of sixteen with an average of 3 15-20.

Clan-na-Gael Field Day.

The ninth centenary of the battle of Clontarf will be commemorated by the Clan-na-Gaels at Celtic Park, Long Island City, on Sunday, when the proceeds will be devoted to St. Enda's College, Dublin, and President P. H. Pearse of that institution will deliver an address. A band of Irish warpipers will parade in their picturesque eleventh century garb. A detachment of the New York Irish Volunteers will also parade in costume. A team of Cavan footballers will meet a Kildare team, and in hurling the Killarney men will test the mettle of the Cork men. A short but very interesting series of competitions will be run off before the matches, commencing at 2 P. M. These include ballad singing in Gaelic or English for ladies; ballad singing in Gaelic or English for men; warpiping; hornpipe dancing for men, and four-hand reel contests. Irish and American dancing in the pavilion will follow the games.

Champions in National Boxing.

BOSTON, April 15.—Four national champions and many sectional titleholders were among the 131 amateur boxers who had entered for the national championships to be held here Friday and Saturday when the entry list closed to-night. William Barrett of New York, national 158-pound champion, will be among the quartet of last year's winners to try for further honors. New York has a number of other entries, including several metropolitan champions: Cleveland, Toronto, Jersey City, St. Louis, Newark, St. John, N. B., and New England cities will also be represented.

Johnson Dog Team Leads in Race.

NOME, Alaska, April 15.—John Johnson, leader in the All-Alaska sweepstakes race for $3,000 a trophy cup, and the dog-team championship of the world, arrived with his eighteen dogs at the half-way point, Candle, 206 miles from Nome, at 3:50 o'clock A. M. to-day, and turned back toward Caldrun at 7:32 A. M. Scotty Allan and Fred Ayer were still at Candle when last reported. The blizzard has abated, and the temperature is only 18 degrees below zero. Candle is a few miles south of the Arctic Circle.

OXFORD RUNNERS ARRIVE.

They Will Compete in Only Pennsylvania Relay Race April 25.

Arnold N. S. Jackson, England's noted mile runner, and three other representatives of Oxford University arrived in New York yesterday on the Olympic to prepare for the international relay meet which is to take place under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, Saturday, April 25. Norman S. Taber, formerly of Brown University, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, is a member of the English team, but he arrived some days ago. The other men who accompanied Jackson were G. M. Sproule, an Australian Rhodes scholar; D. N. Gaussen, the fourth man on the team, and G. S. Robertson, a substitute. The last-named pair are Englishmen.

The men were met at the steamship pier by representatives of the University of Pennsylvania Club of this city. None of the runners was inclined to say much about his ability or the probable outcome of the four-mile relay event in which the team is to compete.

Jackson said that they came here to run, not to talk, and when pressed for information as to the records of his team mates he said they had done lots of things, including getting sea sick, on the trip over.

When asked if he would accept an invitation to try for a record on the running track at the Harvard Stadium, Jackson replied:

"I would like to see the stadium, as I have heard a lot about it, but none of us is going to compete anywhere except at the Pennsylvania meet."

The visitors will leave for Providence, R. I., to-day for a few days' practice at the Brown University track. From there they will go to Philadelphia, where they will be the guests of some of the University of Pennsylvania fraternities until after the meet, and are booked to return by steamer to England on Tuesday, April 28.

NEW YORK BOYS GOING.

School Athletes to Compete in Panama-Pacific Games.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training in the Public Schools and Secretary of the Public Schools Athletic League, has indicated, in a letter to the committee arranging the athletic programme for the Panama-Pacific Exposition, that a team of New York schoolboys will be sent to compete at the exposition to defend the Olympic championship trophy, which the New York schools have held for ten years. It is planned to devote a week or ten days at the exposition to schoolboy athletics, and many other large cities besides New York will probably be represented. Dr. Crampton, in his letter, says that arrangements are already being made which he thinks will make it possible to send a schoolboy team to the exposition.

Schoolboy athletic games have been held in the last few expositions, but never to such an extent as has been planned for the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

James E. Sullivan, Director of Athletics for the exposition, is also arranging to secure a team of Oriental athletes, representing China, Japan, and the Philippines, to enter the games. It is proposed to devote a whole week to Oriental athletics. A Far Eastern Olympic meet is to be held at Shanghai in 1915, and an effort will be made to bring to the Panama-Pacific Exposition the pick of the athletes who compete there.

Another event which Mr. Sullivan is trying to arrange is baseball games between teams made up of the star players of the American and National Leagues.

WILSON OLYMPIC PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Accepts Honorary Place on American Committee.

Secretary James E. Sullivan of the American Olympic Committee yesterday received a letter from President Woodrow Wilson accepting the appointment as honorary Chairman of the committee, which is to arrange for the American representation at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916. The invitation to accept the honorary Chairmanship was extended to President Wilson by Mr. Sullivan and President Robert M. Thompson of the committee through Secretary to the President Tumulty on April 8. In his letter to Mr. Sullivan the President expresses great pleasure at being able to act in such a capacity.

The fact that the President is honorary Chairman of the committee will lend official dignity to the committee's work and will do much, Mr. Sullivan thinks, to create a proper idea of the importance of athletics. Mr. Sullivan and Col. Thompson were authorized to proffer this position to President Wilson at the last meeting of the Executive Committee of the general committee.

COLUMBIA SPORTING NEWS.

Columbia University freshmen are not to remain idle in baseball this Spring, with eight games mapped out for them by the Athletic Association. The Blue and White cubs have already played three games, winning two and losing one. The games scheduled include a trip to Ithaca on May 2, for a game with the Cornell freshmen, and another trip to Philadelphia on May 16, to play a game with the University of Pennsylvania freshmen. The schedule:

April 18—Morris Academy, at Morristown, N. J.; 22—Clinton High School, at South Field; 25—Irving School, at Tarrytown, N. Y.; 29—Morris High School, at Van Cortlandt Park.

May 2—Cornell, 1917, at Ithaca, N. Y.; 6—High School of Commerce, South Field; 13—Newman School, Hackensack, N. J.; 16—Pennsylvania, 1917, at Philadelphia.

Columbia's golf team will play five dual matches this Spring. They will make their first appearance on the links on Saturday when they face the New Brunswick Club at New Brunswick. The schedule also makes provision for the Intercollegiate championships at Garden City. The list follows:

April 18—New Brunswick Country Club, at New Brunswick, N. J.; 25—Nassau Country Club, at Glen Cove, L. I.

May 2—Faculty, at Garden City, L. I.; 8—Dartmouth, at Glen Cove; 9—Pennsylvania and Cornell, at Philadelphia, Penn., and week of Sept. 7—Intercollegiate tournament, at Garden City, L. I.

Ceremonies and rituals will be forgotten by the fraternities for the next six weeks, when all their energy will be put into the interfraternity baseball series on South Field. Sixteen fraternities are in the league, and the schedule for the first round has been made up. The games will be played at noon, and will be limited to five innings in order that the players may have time to make 1 o'clock classes. Varsity players will not be allowed to complete on any of the teams.

The Columbia-Holy Cross game which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon on South Field was canceled because of the rain. Fordham is Columbia's next opponent on South Field next Saturday afternoon. It is expected that Charlie Hann, the old Harvard first baseman who turned his ankle in the game with Pennsylvania last Saturday, will be able to resume play. Brunckes, who has been covering first base in practice during Hann's absence, will return to right field.

License for Stadium A. C.

"Billy" Gibson made formal application for a license for the Stadium Athletic Club, which is to hold boxing matches in St. Nicholas Rink, to the State Athletic Commission yesterday. The application will probably be acted on favorably by the commission at its next week's meeting.

SHEPPARD CAPTURES TAYLOR MEMORIAL

Famous Middle-Distance Runner Defeats Homer Baker in Smart Set A. C. Games.

Running one of the best races of his career, Melvin W. Sheppard, formerly of the Irish-American A. C., won the J. B. Taylor memorial race at the Smart Set A. C. games last night at the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, and by his victory will have his name inscribed on the challenge trophy with J. E. Meredith, the Olympic champion, who won the event in 1913. In negro circles the Taylor Memorial event at 440 yards is the feature event of the year, and many of the best quarter-milers in the country have competed in this event, which is a memorial to the famous athlete who wore the colors of the University of Pennsylvania in many of the biggest events on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean. Homer Baker, New York A. C., was the contender throughout, but at the end Sheppard had plenty in reserve and finished four yards in front of the Winged-Foot athlete.

Nearly 3,000 persons cheered the eight men who competed and the winner received a flattering ovation as he broke the tape. Sheppard got away at the crack of the gun, attended by H. Oltman, Second Naval Battalion, and Baker, in the order named. The leader set a fast clip and in the last lap was challenged by Baker, who passed Oltman 100 yards from the tape. Baker got within two yards of the leader when he weakened in the stretch and Sheppard finished with plenty in reserve.

Sid Leslie of the Long Island A. C., the Metropolitan and national cross-country champion, ran a good race in the 1,000-yard handicap. He was placed on the five-yard mark, with W. R. Granger of Dartmouth at scratch. With a limit handicap of fifty-five yards fifty-two athletes took part in the race, and the back mark men found considerable difficulty in getting through the field. In the bell lap Leslie went into the lead, closely attended by Granger. The pair kept together until 100 yards from home, when Leslie drew up a gap of five yards, and maintaining this lead breasted the tape ahead of Granger. The latter secured second place from J. Frevola, Zavier A. A., who was on the 55-yard mark, by a few inches.

A. Morris, a diminutive representative of the promoting club, was the only member of his organization to capture a first prize. Starting from the 200-yard mark, Morris won the three-mile handicap run in excellent style from several local champions. The big handicap aided the colored runner, who made full use of it in the early stages of the contest, opening up a big gap. When the last lap was reached Morris was far enough ahead to finish by a good margin from his chumsake, F. L. Jenkins, who was also on the 200-yard mark. Nick Giana Kopilas, unattached, and J. J. McNamara, Irish-American A. C., the scratch men, were unplaced. The summary:

440-Yard Dash, Novice.—Won by M. J. Rienan, Young Men's Hebrew Association; O. Adamson, St. Mark's, second; F. C. Faber, Knights of St. Anthony, third. Time—0:10 4-5.

1,000-Yard Run.—Won by Sid Leslie, Long Island A. C., (5 yards;) W. R. Granger, Dartmouth College, (scratch,) second; J. Frevola, Xavier A. C., (55 yards,) third. Time—2:19 4-5.

One-Mile Run, Novice.—Won by E. Frey, College of the City of New York; H. Reynolds, unattached, second; C. T. A. Miller, West Side Y. M. C. A., third. Time—4:54 4-5.

70-Yard Hurdles.—Won by John J. Eller, Irish-American A. C.; H. H. Martin, Harvard University, second; F. D. Pollard, Providence, R. I., third. Time—0:08 4-5.

J. B. Taylor Memorial, 440 Yards, Scratch—Won by Melvin W. Sheppard, unattached; Homer Baker, New York athletic Club, second; Harry Oltman, Second Naval Battalion, third. Time, 0:52 2-5.

Three-Mile Bicycle Race—Won by Walter Lendgren, Irish-American A. C., (90 yards;) Edward Goodwin, Irish-American A. C., (scratch;) second; Alexander Attardi, Italian Gymnastic Society, (30 yards,) third. Time, 7:49.

Three-Mile Run, Handicap—Won by A. Morris, Smart Set Athletic Club, (200 yards;) F. L. Jenkins, Smart Set Athletic Club, (200 yards,) second; C. Pores, unattached, (176 yards,) third. Time, 15:08 4-5.

One-Mile Relay Race: Handicap—Won by Central Congregational S. S. A. L. team composed of W. L. Selover, B. Beardsley, W. C. Clark and J. W. Atherton (52 yards); West Side Y. M. C. A. team composed of W. A. Webber, E. G. Grant, E. P. Seymour, and S. W. Severing, (66 yards), second; Smart Set A. C. team composed of G. R. Ralston, W. Murray, C. Thompson, and W. ### "How Doth the Little Busy Beel"

Sporting Editor,

Dear Sir:

It being a bum day so I can't do any work outdoors and there won't be any ball games to fill up your sporting page with I thought I'd bust into the literary game, and in the absence of my manager, Jack Curley, who is in Vancouver, see if I couldn't stick over a little press notice that would help you fill up and help me too.

I'm training hard for my coming battle with Jim Coffey, which is to be the opening show of the Stadium A. C. in the St. Nicholas Rink next Thursday or Friday, and I have only a week or so in which to put in the final licks.

As you are doubtless aware, I have only recently returned from an extended course of conditioning at Excelsior Springs, where I was sent by the doctors to get rid of an attack of neuritis, and I am now in better condition than I ever was before. I feel fit as a fiddle and if I don't stop Mr. Coffey it'll be because he's a real champion. And I don't think he's a champion. After Coffey, Mr. Curley will match me with the best of them and from the way I feel now I'll go right along the line winning.

I'll get Curley's typewriter to copy this, because I hit the blamed keys too hard and the machine can't stand the punishment. So I'll save my wallop for Coffey. I made about twenty starts before I got this the way I wanted it, and there's paper all over the floor. The landlady just looked in and she says I'm some litterer. I wonder how she knows—she didn't even read this.

Well, so long. If this gets over I'll try again some rainy day.

Yours very truly,
JIM FLYNN.

Cochran Views His Cup Defender.

BOSTON, April 15.—Alexander S. Cochran of New York visited the Lawley shipyard at Neponset to-day and inspected the sloop Vanitie, which he is having built as a candidate for the defense of the America's Cup. As the planing is nearly completed and most of the staging supports have been removed, Mr. Cochran was able to get a good view of the lines of the craft. He expressed the opinion that the Vanitie should be ready for launching by May 1.

NEW AUTO TUBES TESTED.

Inner Tubes from England Hold Air in Badly Worn Tires.

One of the first things which the motorist ordinarily learns after he has operated a machine long enough to experience a tire blow-out is that he cannot run far with an outer casing, or shoe, which has a hole in it without having other blow-outs. The inner tubes will not stand the strain of protrusion through the casing or of service as a tread, for which they were not designed. On a run to Garden City, L. I., and return, however, eight or nine taxicabs, all fitted with tires which, in the language of the trade, had been "junked" and were in a dilapidated condition, demonstrated that an inner tube, new to this country, could do precisely these things. This new tube, which has been in service in England for some time, is a British invention, called the Searle Unburstable Inner Tube.

OUR ILL-BEHAVED NEIGHBOR.

We are so infrequently at war that such an incident as the dispatch of the warships to Tampico produces an unusual tension of public feeling. Men say that we are going to war with Mexico. They jump at that conclusion, and quite prematurely. Nothing is clearer than that in the steps now taken we are not making ready for a war with Mexico, but are attempting to avert one. We may blockade the port of Tampico. We may establish what is called a "pacific blockade" there, at Vera Cruz, and at other ports, as a means of putting pressure upon HUERTA to atone for many wrongs by a salute to our flag. Our warships may open fire upon Tampico, they may land marines, drive out the Federal forces, and take possession of the city as a means of enforcing our demand. These would be acts of war, there could be no doubt about that, but they fall a good deal short of actual war. The difference will be appreciated if we attempt to picture forth the very different and much more serious steps we should take if we were actually going to war with Mexico with intent to seize and hold its capital and take such other measures as are the natural incidents of a successful invasion.

There are dozens and scores of precedents for our present undertaking against Mexico. This nation and other nations have repeatedly blockaded coasts, bombarded and seized ports, as a means for securing redress for affronts. Sometimes a minor battle has been the consequence, as when we took vengeance upon a rebellious Japanese Prince for firing upon an American merchant steamer, sinking and blowing up his ships, battering his fort, and afterward exacting a money payment from the Japanese Government in payment of damages. Nevertheless, we were not at war, either with the Prince or with Japan. The President's purpose is to induce HUERTA to order the salute to our flag which he now obstinately refuses to do. It is to be hoped, of course, that he will reconsider his refusal, that the salute will be fired, and then no further coercive measures will be required. It would be no diminishment of the dignity of the Mexican state to make this reparation for injury. Nothing but the personal pride of HUERTA stands in the way. But the unfortunately too common Mexican spirit that led to the offering of the string of insults for which we now demand an apology may confirm HUERTA in his refusal to make one. For such a contingency we have made timely preparation, and it must be plain to HUERTA that the pressure will increase in proportion to the resistance he offers.

The great wisdom, the admirable coolness, the constant restraint the President has imposed upon himself during the past year, albeit under great provocations, will now serve as a guarantee to the American people that they are not being led into the zone of trouble hastily or for insufficient reasons. The statement put forth from the White House yesterday will convince all reasonable men that the time has fully come for admonishing HUERTA that we cannot longer put up with studied and deliberate insult. The incident at Tampico fully warranted Admiral MAYO's demand for apology. But there was worse. The withholding of official dispatches of our Government to our Embassy at Mexico City subject to the examination of the censor and his consent to deliver was an act so high-handed that it could not have happened, much less could ever be tolerated, where the usages of civilized nations obtained. The White House statement very appropriately declares that the Tampico incident must not be considered alone. It is only one of many instances where the calculated purpose of the Mexican authorities to offer insult and outrage to citizens of the United States has been manifested. The nationals of other powers have been treated with due consideration. Affronts have been reserved for Americans.

It must be plain to everybody that manifestations of that hostile disposition, unless checked, lead straight and inevitably to intervention, invasion, war, conquest, and the world of evils of which we stand so much in dread. That is evidently the reasoning of President WILSON. The presence of a great fleet at Tampico, with other United States warships on the west coast, and the reiteration of a demand we are in a position to enforce should and may put HUERTA in a different state of mind. In the state of mind he has shown in the past we cannot very well get along with him, for the point has now been reached where forbearance is construed by the Mexicans simply as faint-heartedness, and there would be no limit to their insolence. Mexico is in its present disturbed state an ill-behaved and very undesirable neighbor. Having such a neighbor, we are not quite free to determine our policies by our preference—so much depends on Mexico. But if any serious trouble now comes it will be due to HUERTA's obstinacy and rashness. Mexico has been the cause of many anxieties to President WILSON and to the American people. The obvious purpose of the steps now taken is to diminish, not to increase, our anxieties.

"GUILTY, BUT INSANE."

The two bills vetoed by Gov. GLYNN that would admit of pleas and verdicts reading "Guilty, but insane" and would abolish the faulty and unscientific verdict of "Not guilty, because insane," which has cleared so many criminals, were a decided improvement on the existing law. The present law assumes implicitly that insanity necessarily makes a man irresponsible. Before the bills were drawn the State Bar Association obtained from leading alienists the undisputed conclusions of modern science that in most of his life and actions a man suffering from mental disease may be perfectly sane and responsible. If doubt on this point still remained in the minds of a jury, the verdict "Guilty, but insane" would still be adequate.

The fact that the accused, though afflicted with some mental ailment, did know the nature and quality of his act and that the act was wrong constitutes guilt. It is only with this fact of intent to commit a crime that a jury need concern itself. The imposing of a sentence need not prevent the remanding of the convict to a hospital for the criminal insane, and, if cured, he should serve the remainder of his unexpired term among sane convicts.

The bills provided all this. One who, though sane, pleaded "Guilty, but insane" would be subject to medical examination, and if found sane would serve his term in jail instead of in a hospital. Or the plea might be ignored, as pleas of "not guilty" are ignored pending trial. The bills would undoubtedly have gone far to stop the scandal of men getting freed from punishment as convicted felons on a plea of insanity, and afterward obtaining complete freedom on a plea of regained sanity.

THE OMNIBUS TRUST BILL.

The introduction of the bill assembling into one measure several so-called "trust" topics in no relation to each other raises questions of both politics and law. Reference to recent events in New Jersey justifies doubt that there are any more votes in the Five Brothers than in the Seven Sisters. It has been said that not a single prosecution has followed the enactment of the New Jersey anti-trust bills, and yet there were the same representations of urgency in that case as in this. The emergency disappeared with the enactment in New Jersey, and there is better reason to expect such a result in the case of the Federal law. It would be too tedious to enumerate the respectable organizations which have protested against these bills. On the other hand pressure for them is confined to political circles. It might almost be said that if the President relaxed his pressure the bill would come to a standstill.

The gathering of so many subjects into one bill unites opposition even better than support. In order to make a bill with any prospect of passage several modifications have been made. In individual cases these alterations may have been for the better, but in the aggregate they have weakened the bill. No opponent of this class of legislation will be attracted by such amendments, and some supporters will be alienated. The strongest single support of the bill will be found probably in the union-card group of Congress, and the alterations in the bill are not to their liking. The discovery that there are some good holding companies will not be admitted by all. Those who are opposed to interlocking directorates in principle can hardly approve the exception of the application of the law to financial institutions with capitalization below $2,500,000, even though it is the modern way to enact exceptions along with the statute. The suggestion that a jury shall be judge in cases of contempt of court is anomalous. Hitherto courts have been the guardians of their own dignity, and there is no reason to suppose that juries are qualified to be judges in such cases. In most cases of contempt the suggested procedure would involve the merits of the case, with a second trial as a necessary preliminary to enforcing the judgment of the first jury.

With sentiment unformed even among the promoters of the legislation it is undesirable and imprudent to proceed against the opposition in all other quarters. The very bulk of the bill is the best argument against it. It required twenty years for it to be decided whether the original anti-trust law was declaratory of the common law, or whether it revolutionized business custom. This omnibus bill contains lines where the Sherman law contained words. If there is to be the same difficulty of interpretation it will be a generation before it is known what this law really means. This is always the result when laws contain details instead of principles. Most of the matters in this portentously long bill are matters of discretion or procedure, details which always are best settled by the sentiment of the time when the acts occur. Nearly all of it which is fit to be enacted at all would better be reached by adopting the method of the Sherman law, that is by a declaration that in trust matters under the Federal law the common law should apply so far as suitable. This extension of the rule of reason would take in many offenses not specified even in this long statute, if they could be proved, and would not authorize some of the doubtful exceptions from the common law which are concealed in language none too clear, and needing much interpretation. If there had been a Federal common law the necessity would not have arisen, either for the Sherman law or this addition, so far exceeding the scope of the original statute.

THE CITY BOND SALE.

There were 232 bids yesterday for the city's offering of $65,000,000 4¼ per cents., against 476 for last year's offering of $45,000,000 4½ per cents. On the other hand the price received is a high record for 4¼s. Perhaps the unpopularity of that rate of interest explains why the loan now so well taken, financially speaking, is a bankers' rather than a popular success. Bankers are accustomed to reckoning by yield in odd combinations of figures down to several decimals, but popular investors dislike that odd quarter, with its still odder amounts in interest coupons or checks. By no possibility can it be said that the smallness of the number of bids lends any weight to the argument for the small or $10 investor, to whom the Controller made an especial appeal in his advertisements. It would be highly desirable that the city's bonds should be distributed as widely as possible, and it is plain that there are more voters in the $10 class than in the $1,000 class. But the number of the bids lends no encouragement to popularization in that manner.

The city's opportunity lay in the difficulty of the business man in getting a better return for his money. In boom times, when profits are large, bidders for perfect security of principal, with some loss of income, are less eager. The appetite for municipals is so far from being confined to New York that the sales for the first quarter of this year surpass all precedent. For March alone they were three times last year. For the three months ended with March they totaled $162,725,437, against $123,463,619, the next highest record, in 1910. In March, 1913, it was not unusual for city loans to be offered without takers. Those who like to buy when others are selling now have their reward in the appreciation of city issues when other securities are weakening. Pretty soon, when the crowd is rushing after city bonds, those now laying in their supplies will be willing to let them go, and to take instead the sound shares now depressed by prospects too gloomy to be permanent.

THE BRITISH LABOR REVOLT.

In addition to the all-sufficient trouble which the British Government is having with the question of home rule a new difficulty, not yet serious but distinctly threatening, appears in the action of the annual conference of the Independent Labor Party at Bradford. By a very heavy majority the conference voted instructions to Labor members of Parliament to act independently of the Liberal Party, condemning the domination of the Cabinet to the injury of the private members and inviting the Labor members to vote on all issues only in accordance with the principles of their party.

There are at present forty Labor members in the House of Commons. These are not sufficient to hold the balance of power so long as the Irish Party votes with the Government, but there have been occasions within the past few months when the solid opposition of the Laborites would have come perilously near overthrowing the Ministry. The Labor leaders have been very impatient under the domination of the Irish Party, which is strong enough to dictate to the Government as to the disposition of time and the precedence of measures. And, curiously enough, this feeling of impatience has been shown in some degree in Ireland, where the beginnings of a labor party not especially interested in home rule are to be noted. As a general election this Summer seems to be certain, whatever the immediate fate of the Home Rule bill, Mr. ASQUITH may find the discontent of the labor men an important element in the situation.

But it is probably a mistake for the Labor Party to break with the Liberals. Their only hope for considerable influence in the Parliament lies in making themselves strong enough to command respect as the Irish, with infinite toil and skill, have managed to do. It is only through a coalition that they can expect to influence legislation, and Mr. ASQUITH has shown himself an exceedingly able coalition manager. Certainly a combination of the Unionists with the Labor Party would promise but meagre results in the near or the far future.

NATIONWIDE PROHIBITION.

The dispatches from Washington that the leaders of the House predict the passage by that body of the resolution for a Constitutional amendment to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in all the States, and that it will soon be reported out of the Judiciary Committee, show that the machinery of the prohibition movement is effective. The Anti-Saloon League boasts of its growing political graveyard, in which are buried the ambitions of many men who have served terms in Congress, as well as of officers of the prohibition States who dared oppose the will of the temperance folk. It appears that the league achieves its successes by threatening Congressmen with defeat—which is a punishable offense.

An accounting of the sweep of the prohibition "wave" shows that it covers completely nine States—Georgia, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and West Virginia. In the last-named State the law becomes effective on July 1 next. Fourteen other States have had prohibitory laws, and have repealed or nullified them. Although with one or two exceptions the laws were upheld as Constitutional, they did not remain long on the statute books of Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island, South Dakota, and Vermont. But under local option laws 90 per cent. or more of the area is dry in the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Kentucky, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming. New Jersey is the "wettest" State of all, with only four-tenths of 1 per cent. in the dry area. The prohibitionists compute 72 per cent. of the whole country as "dry."

But the people of New Jersey, which is practically all "wet," are not more drunken than those of other States. It may be said that all the prohibitory laws, general and local, are no more binding than New Year's resolutions. The rising figures of per capita consumption of alcoholic liquors show this conclusively. The consumption in 1850 was 4.08 gallons; it rose to 6.43 in 1860, to 7.70 in 1870, to 10.08 in 1880, to 15.53 in 1890, to 17.76 in 1900, to 21.86 in 1910, and in 1912 it was 21.98 gallons, increasing to 22.66 gallons in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913. The retail liquor dealers in the United States number about 233,000—one to every 400 inhabitants.

But prohibition laws may become numerous as the people consume more liquor. So long as they satisfy the enthusiasts who believe that propensities may be eradicated by law, and while these enthusiasts have voting power, the politicians will be anxious to please them. Possibly Congress and three-fourths of the States may ultimately decide to enact the good resolution everywhere.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Distinction With a Difference.

With the repulsion for capital punishment expressed by Commissioner and Dr. KATHARINE BEMENT DAVIS a large and steadily increasing number of people strongly sympathize. These same people share, too, her disbelief in the deterrent effect in these legal killings, and her hope that some day reformative, remedial, and preventive measures will be so much more effective than now that potential murderers will far oftener receive necessary attention before it is too late for either themselves or their victims.

Dr. DAVIS, however, ignored an essential difference when she instanced the restoration to social tolerability and utility of a young Sicilian woman who had slain a man as illustrating what might have been done with the four "gunmen" if taken in hand betimes. In the case of the woman the act committed evidenced neither depravity nor defectiveness of mind. It was in strict accord with public sentiment as she knew it, and from her point of view was an established and commendable "folkway" rather than a crime.

It must be remembered that at one stage of human progress toward law and order "justice" is maintained by the individual or not at all, and the summary infliction of punishment for personal wrongs suffered is a recognized duty that can be and is performed with the full approval of conscience. Sicily's emergence from that stage—if all of it has emerged even yet—was so recent that its peasant class can be understood, and in a way excused, when they resort to private vengeance instead of leaving the protection of life, property, and honor, as more advanced communities do, more or less completely, to the courts.

For the deed of the "gunmen" there was no such explanation or palliation. To their own knowledge, and deliberately, they violated the "folkways" as much as the laws they were expected to observe, and as hired assassins they would have risked the death penalty as much in Sicily, or any wild frontier like California in the days of '49, as they did here and now in New York. Whatever of justification there is for capital punishment for murderers applies to them, and between their case and that mentioned by Dr. DAVIS there is no likeness and practically no analogy.

Hospital Nurses Overworked.

According to The New York Medical Journal, the "reason for being" of hospitals is not that there the physician and the surgeon are measurably more efficient than when the sick are treated at home, but because the nursing is better. The obvious conclusion is that the hospital does not fully serve its purpose unless the nurses are so trained and treated as to be to the highest degree skillful and in the best condition to exercise their skill.

In many hospitals, The Journal declares, these requirements are not met because the nurses are so overworked as to show all of the now familiar phenomena of fatigue. Their hours are usually from ten to thirteen a day, and their tasks are of a kind to strain the nerves as well as the muscles. In addition, they are expected to profit by theoretical instruction, in spite of the difficulty they find in paying attention, or even in keeping awake, when attending lectures. In other words, the managers of hospitals have not been as prompt as have those of not a few other great industries to learn the lesson that the human machine cannot be maintained at its highest effectiveness unless it has adequate rest at proper intervals.

To give nurses such rest, The Journal says, would be as "good business" in hospitals as in factories, and failure to do it is declared to be the explanation of the fact that nearly all the troubles of hospitals are directly or indirectly connected with the nursing staff. The Public Health Service works its nurses in eight-hour shifts, and a few general hospitals have adopted that plan, but the majority still demand much longer hours, and one result is that they are finding more and more difficulty in finding suitable material for their training schools.

The article under consideration makes only oblique reference to the effect which the weariness of hospital nurses has on the treatment of patients in those institutions. From the "lay" point of view that effect is of the greatest—perhaps the only—importance. It may have something to do with the survival among all classes, and strongest in the class cared for in the wards where the nurses are fewest and hardest worked, of reluctance to "go to the hospital," and to prefer home nursing, though its theoretical inferiority is no longer denied.

A Question of Ruled, Not of Rulers.

Latest of the New Jersey cities to adopt the commission form of municipal government is Orange, and, as usual, the proposition to make the change was carried by a small majority. Only when a great scandal or a great disaster has come upon a town is the abandonment of the old system favored with an approach to unanimity, and this is natural because commission government is opposed for that strongest if not best of reasons, self-interest, by the old-time politicians and all whom they control or influence.

They call it revolutionary, as indeed it is, so far as concerns their familiar methods of conducting municipal affairs, and no more than other "old dogs" do they like the learning of new tricks. That some of them can do it, under resented compulsion, has been proved in several towns, where after a little the "old dogs" have managed to recover their lost places and powers, and again it has been shown that the more things are changed the more they remain the same.

Still, commission government is extending with considerable rapidity, and on the whole, apparently, it is considered an improvement. Already, however, the "business manager," running a municipal corporation much as he would any other, has been evolved as a still newer and more promising solution of our greatest problem. So Orange is a bit behind the times. Probably the form of government is of very little consequence anywhere in comparison with the general intelligence and honesty of the people governed. Every town is well ruled that really wants to be. The trouble is that many of them don't.

THE RABBIS' PLEA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to express my appreciation of your reporting of the execution of the four criminals with as little of the horrifying details as possible. While as a journal it was your duty to publish the fact, you showed a high conception of the true journalistic ideal to give what news it must, but always without pandering to the morbid and the sensationalistic.

In the belief that your idealism will prompt you to promote any effort to grapple with the lamentable conditions which we all alike deplore, I wish to state that in your yesterday's issue you quoted an editorial from The American Hebrew which was incorrect in both its premises. Your correction is necessary in view of what I want to present to you. The editorial suggested that the rabbis visited Gov. Glynn because of opposition to capital punishment, and continued: "If it is because three of the four (condemned men) are Jews, why should not the Episcopalian clergy act in like manner in behalf of the fourth?"

The rabbis who interviewed Gov. Glynn said not a word as to opposition to capital punishment. No such thought was in their minds. Further, as a matter of fact, the head of the Episcopalian clergy did act on behalf of all four culprits and on the very same lines that the rabbis adopted. Neither pardon nor commutation was asked; only a temporary reprieve until after the new trial of Becker. A letter to the Governor to the same effect was written and signed by five rabbis besides the four who went to Albany. And I understand that a Catholic priest also moved in the matter.

Our duty as citizens is to uphold the honor of the police force, to eliminate relentlessly those who tarnish it. Only in this way can public confidence be restored and a sense of security be created. Here is where your help is invaluable, to quicken the public conscience, to see to it that the police force be thoroughly cleansed and that graft-givers be punished as vigorously as graft-takers.

And you can further help to remedy the existing sad condition of gangsterism and its accompaniments by urging the churches, synagogues, and philanthropic centres to greater efforts to religionize neighborhoods, to promote spiritual as well as material needs, to train the heart as well as the brain. The immediate need to-day is ministers or pastors who will minister to souls diseased, who will respond to spiritual hunger and thirst, gather in the wanderers, the "lost sheep," bind up the bruised, and lead old and young to the pastures and waters where life can be religionized.

Out of evil cometh forth good. If from all this horrible story the police force shall be now lifted to universal honor and confidence; if gang-life, graft-giving, and graft-taking be now intelligently combated; if capital punishment be now stripped of its barbarity, who shall measure the resultant good?

The Rubaiyat Quatrains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read carefully the letter of Arshag D. Mahdesian, published in THE TIMES on Wednesday, April 15.

Mr. Mahdesian merely repeats, with a curious air of discovery, statements which appeared in the article accompanying my metrical English version of the newly discovered quatrains of Omar. I beg to call this article to his attention. JOYCE KILMER.

EXPLETIVES.

Britain's "Universal Adjective" a Corruption of "By Our Lady."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a relief to read in your columns such an academic discussion as that on the "universal adjective," as the word "bloody" is described by Sir Walter Besant in his "All Sorts and Conditions of Men." John Corbin is correct when he declares it to be a corruption of "By Our Lady," just as "'Zounds" is a corruption of "God's Wounds" and 'Sdeath is a corruption of "God's Death." But Mr. Corbin falls into error when he suggests that the word has only survived in the Cockney dialect. As an oath it is found in the extreme north of Scotland, the extreme west of Ireland, and the extreme south of Cornwall. Among the vicious and the low it is indeed "universal." Mr. Corbin has not quite arrived at the reason for its dislike and society's intolerance of its use. It originally fell under the ban of the Church and was proscribed by the then powerful Roman Catholic Hierachy, and though this happened a couple of hundred years ago still the force of the tradition obtains. I am thankful to you for raising this subject, which comes as a mental relief to the columns of graft, gunmen and guilt.

My own private opinion is that the American expletive "Gee" is but a contraction of the given name of our Saviour, and were the powerful churches of the United States to place that word under a ban, to preach against it and deprecate its use, in thirty years we should see its complete elision from the vocabulary of decent people. And then we might see in a hundred years from now some Japanese editorial writer wondering why the word "Gee" should be proscribed when the meaning of it really is "Get on," and it is used as a sign of encouragement to a horse.

JOHN L. SHINE.
New York, April 14, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

John Corbin's letter on the word "bloody" is more reminiscent than explanatory. An explanation of the word as a corruption of an oath may be found in almost any Shakespearean glossary.

"Damned" is an excellent word, and as good as "heavenly," yet why does one blush when it is used out of place? So is "bloody" a good word when used as a proper description. Improper use is incorrect language, and therefore slang, to be avoided at all times. PHIL J. BARRY.

THE ROTOGRAVURE PROCESS.

Comments on the Recent Art Supplements of The Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the pioneer of photogravure in this country, and as an experienced student in the specialty of light and shade in monochrome reproductions for over forty years, I wish to express to you my appreciation of your issues in rotogravure.

The delicacy of modeling in the light and middle tints of most of them is truly admirable, while the range of details in the darks, (in the Gethsemane, for instance,) their transparency and richness, surpass anything as yet done, to my knowledge, by any photo-mechanical process in one printing, excepting photogravure; infinitely superior to the usual rotary press productions which are presented under the falsely assumed name of photogravures.

THE TIMES's rotogravure process is truly a wonderful advance in newspaper publishing, a surprising step into the realm of real art, and of extended educational value. W. H. GILBO.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I first subscribed for THE SUNDAY TIMES principally for THE BOOK REVIEW, but in ordering my subscription renewed this year, as I have done through my stationers, I felt that the art supplements alone were sufficient reason. I was so delighted with the prophets that I telephoned all the art lovers I could think of about it and have this week been calling them up again to tell them of the Altman pictures in the number and last Sunday's, knowing that last Sunday's will be just as good, although my copy hasn't come yet.

Art lovers throughout the country owe THE TIMES a debt of gratitude for enabling those who do not have access to the art treasures of the East to obtain such splendid reproductions at a nominal price. CLAYTON CRAWFORD.

OLD PHONOGRAPH RECORDS

Needed in Hospitals to Help Cheer Up Patients.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a member of the New York City Visiting Committee, I should like to call the attention of the public to the great demand for phonograph records in our city hospitals and almshouses. Diversion for the sick is an important factor during convalescence, which is usually a more prolonged condition than the acute stage of illness.

Most institutions have some kind of phonograph, though many more could be used to advantage. There is great need, however, of more records. Every kind of record for every kind of machine is acceptable, and may be sent to the New York City Visiting Committee of the State Charities Aid Association, Room 701, 105 East Twenty-second Street, Manhattan.

A Capable Bookkeeper.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter headed, "Not Lonesome—Young Woman, Her Mother's Sole Support, Merely Wants a Job," appearing in to-day's TIMES contained the statement that this young woman bookkeeper, who has been out of steady employment for six months, is "unable to be on her feet." This means simply that she is lame in one foot and cannot fill a place like that of saleswoman that requires constant standing. She is and has long been in perfectly good health, she speaks English and German fluently, and is quite able to do the work of bookkeeping for which she is trained.
New York, April 14, 1914. M. W.

THE TIMES has investigated this worthy case. One former employer states that the young woman is a "fine bookkeeper and a competent office helper, with a cheerful and willing disposition," and two others furnish testimony of the same sort. She needs only the opportunity to earn her own and her mother's living.

THE WAKENING.

To-night the Spring is riotous and sweet,
As in the days when long-dead Sapho framed
Immortal songs whose joyous cadence shamed
All other months than May. The languid heat
The rising moon. Old primal cravings, maimed
By years of stern repression, reel, untamed,
The pulses throb—the fragrance of each breeze
Recalls Pan piping to a vanished race.
Mysterious phantoms throng the moon-bathed land.
Quickens like wine the blood's wild saraband.

COLD TO NEW TRUST BILL.

Senate Committee Inclined to Give House Measure Scanty Consideration

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Publication of the House Judiciary Committee's consolidated trust bill this morning has not aroused much enthusiasm in the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. That committee has been working for several months on the subject of trust legislation, but its members seem almost as far apart as they were at first on the kind of bill they should report. The one thing definitely decided is that there shall be only one bill.

Chairman Newlands and Senator Robinson of Arkansas called on President Wilson at the White House to-day and discussed hte situation. The President, it is understood, urged expedition, but when the Senators returned to the Capitol the report spread that the White House conference had produced little result. It was said definitely by one member of the committee that the House bill would not be used as a basis around which the Senate Committee's ideas might crystallize. The committee, he said, would continue its study along present lines and make a report probably in two or three weeks.

Many members of the committee have not yet read the House bill in detail, and certainly their interest in it is slight. The one definite criticism made was that the trade commission of the House bill was not strong enough. The belief is still expressed that if the session drags on too long the bill will be returned to a simple measure creating a trade commission. That would be passed and Congress would adjourn for the Summer.

LIQUOR'S FOES ARRAYED.

Hobson and Other Prohibitionists Argue for Resolution.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Prohibition advocates to-day argued before the House Judiciary Committee in support of a constitutional amendment to enforce prohibition. They urged the committee to report to the House the resolution of Representative Hobson of Alabama providing for the submission of a constitutional amendment directed against the sale or manufacture for sale of all alcoholic liquors for drinking purposes.

Led by Mr. Hobson, the Prohibitionists argued that they were simply appealing for an opportunity to present to the people a definite referendum of the liquor question. They said that without reference to the merits of the question the problem had grown to such proportions that it justified such action. With fifty-five per cent. of the people of the country living in prohibition territory they asserted the time had come for the submission of the question on a broad national basis.

Representing the National W. C. T. U. the following women were present: Mrs. Mary Dye Ellis of Washington, Miss Anna A. Gordon of Illinois, Mrs. Frances P. Parks, and Mrs. Howard M. Hoge of Virginia. These Presidents of State organizations appeared: Mrs. K. L. Stevenson for Massachusetts, Miss Helen Hood for Illinois, Mrs. Frances Beauchamp for Kentucky, Mrs. S. M. Holman for Tennessee, Mrs. Deborah Livingston for Maine, Mrs. L. N. Yost for West Virginia, Mrs. Ella A. Boole for New York, Mrs. Messick for Delaware, and Miss Minnie Neal for Florida.

ART NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Aschermann's Studio Decorations—Baltimoreans' Work.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Aschermann are holding an opening reception at their new studio apartments in order to show that the "Cubist" decorations exhibited by them last year can be modified and arranged to suit conservative American tastes. The entire apartment is furnished and decorated in the modern European style, with intensely strong colors used on a background of black and white in most cases. There is a black and white studio, one of the most cheerful rooms in the place; a yellow and lavendar bedroom, which has the appearance on the meanest April day in this year's calendar of being flooded with smiling sunshine; an orange and green dining room, and a pink and blue baby's room. The last is the triumphant crowning touch, and the two decorators declare that if the baby had not been such a good baby they never could have done it. It seems that he sat on the floor and cooed Wiener Werkstaette baby talk while his parents designed and cut out an entire blue circus, the children starting from their village gate to see the show, the lions and elephants advancing to meet them, the clown courteously lifting his cap to them, and many other incidents of a circus day. These, pasted on the wall, make a quite irresistible frieze and the rest of the room lives up to it. Really no decorator could have designed such a charming nursery without the help of a baby.

At the Braus Galleries Carlton C. Fowler has a little exhibition of European Impressions. Apparently Europe has impressed him in much the same manner and to the same degree as it has impressed other painters in the accommodating water-color medium. His sketches will serve an admirable purpose in recalling to passionate pilgrims their first delight in the crooked streets and red roofs of alt Nuremberg or in the doves and shadows of the Piazzetta.

At the MacDowell Club a group of Baltimore artists are giving the public a chance to judge of their accomplishment. Some of it is excellent. "The Little Juggler," a full-length figure of a Japanese child, and "The Two Parrots," another child study by Camelia Whitehurst, are full of animation and rich color. The backgrounds are somewhat turbulent, but the figures have genuine character. Ruth Anderson shows a number of vigorous Italian studies, a bit too insistent in the intensity of gaze and the brightness of the eyes, but free from mere picturesqueness; M. Bradish Titcomb's landscapes and street scenes are quietly attractive. "The Fruit Seller" and two portraits by Marie de Ford Keller, are in the tradition of the old Flemings. Elsbeth Allen paints boldly, so far as the laying on of pigment is concerned, but without much interest in the character of the arabesque, an error of judgment when the question is made one of strongly contrasted light and dark. Alice Worthington Ball's "Southern Market" is a patchwork of succulent fruits and vegetables vivaciously described. Josephine G. Cochrane shows a pleasant color sense in her juxtaposition of yellow and gray, but Maude Drein Bryant is the one of the group most in command of her metier. She weaves her fabric of long color stitches with an authoritative hand, an ddoes remarkable work with her backgrounds and still life. The exhibition lasts until April 26.

At the Anderson Galleries is a New England collection of early china glass and furniture which has a varied interest. In it are samplers and needlework pictures, a group of kakemonos that were brought from Japan by the chaplain of Commodore Perry's fleet when the Japanese ports were first opened to America; Bennington "book flasks" and "hound handle" pitchers, Staffordshire and luster, and as a special attraction an antique incinerary urn exhumed in Alexandria, and supposed from an inscription on a stone tomb recovered at the time, to contain the ashes of one of Alexandria's body guard.

Opposition to President's Canal Policy Weakening Under Influence of Tampico Incident.

STRAUS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—There were indications about the Senate to-day that the precipitation of the crisis at Tampico might greatly weaken opposition to the President's tolls repeal policy. Members of the Foreign Relations Committee who have conferred with the President already have explained that the repealing bill was part of the President's far-reaching plan to extricate the United States from foreign hostility in preparation for a possible tightening of the Mexican situation. The developments of the past few days, some of them think, give a practical illustration of the President's foresight, and Senator Lodge's argument for the repeal on the ground of honorable expediency has gained in weight.

These indications showed in the Committee on Interoceanic Canals this morning, when the supporters of the Prcsident sharply resented Chairman O'Gorman's conduct of the hearings on the repeal bill. Oscar Straus of New York, ex-Secretary of Commerce and Labor, was the witness, and when Mr. O'Gorman tried to check his answer to a question from Mr. Simmons of North Carolina Mr. Simmons insisted on an explanation from the Chairman that no rebuke was intended. Later when Mr. O'Gorman cited as "the committee's understanding" his recollection of the testimony of Navigation Commissioner Chamberlain, Mr. Simmons, Mr. Thomas of Colorado, and Mr. Chilton of West Virginia chorused their dissent.

"And if you read the report," said old Mr. Thornton of Louisiana, bringing down his heavy fist on the table, "you'll find it isn't so."

The opponents of repeal headed by Mr. O'Gorman do not seem to have aroused any general support for their position throughout the country. It was said to-day that not a single shipowner of the Atlantic coast had asked to be heard against the bill.

President Wilson received this telegram to-day:

The President, White House, Washington, D. C.

The undersigned citizens of Massachusetts beg to congratulate you upon the stand taken in your last message relating to the repeal of the exemptions from tolls of the Panama Canal act, and assure you of our hearty support on the lines laid down in that message. We believe the course indicated to be essential to the best traditions of the American people and we trust that your support by the Senate in acting upon the bill will be most emphatic.

William A. Gaston, Richard Olney, Henry L. Higginson, Nathan Anthony, Roland W. Boyden, J. Edward Fuller, Malcolm Donald, Guy Cunningham, Jeremiah Smith, Jr., Benjamin Joy, Francis Peabody, Eugene N. Foss, Thayer, William F. Wharton, E. N. Wrightington, Edward N. Fenno, Jr., George G. Rice, Bertram G. Waters.

Mr. O'Gorman's effort to embarrass Mr. Straus in regard to his connection with the Carnegie Foundation was ineffective. Mr. Straus replied merely that he had been brought into contact with many officials and publicists abroad. Almost all of them, he said, believed that the exemption from tolls of American coastwise ships was a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

"The difference of opinion in this country," said Mr. Straus, "is an undoubted evidence that there is a serious doubt among the highest legislative, legal and international law experts of our own people.

"What advantage results in giving to the most exclusive monopoly, the owners of the coastwise shipping, freedom from tolls which all other American ships as well as all foreign ships are compelled to pay? Does any one believe that by subsidizing the monopoly the people at large will receive any benefit? The history of that monopoly certainly does not justify our expending any such generosity from their hands.

"A decent respect to the opinion of mankind was incorporated in our first state paper, the Declaration of Independence, by Thomas Jefferson, and because we have through all our history upheld this respect has made us a power for righteousness in international affairs second to no other nation in the world. We coined the phrase 'dollar diplomacy' in order to discredit the sacrificing of principle, of justice and of equity in international relations for commercial gain."

"Would you repeal the exemption clause whether it was right or wrong?" asked Senator Brandegee.

"Yes," was the reply, "although I do not mean to say that I think we are wrong."

"Do you think the exemption of tolls would be of any public benefit?" asked Mr. Brandegee.

"I do not believe it will affect railroad rates," said Mr. Straus. "It will simply give to the coastwise shipping $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 annually. The exemption takes that amount out of the pockets of all the people and gives it to the coastwise ships."

PAVLOWA IN NEW BALLET.

Dancer Deftly Acts Comedy Scenes in "La Fille Mal Gardee."

Mme. Pavlowa and her company gave at yesterday's matinée at the Manhattan Opera House the first presentation in this city of a two-act ballet from her repertoire called "La Fille Mal Gardee," this title being translatable, "The Girl Poorly Chaperoned." Its story tells how Lise's mother endeavors to force her to marry a rich farmer's son, although she loves young Colin. When father and son arrive for the ceremony they found that Colin and Lise have been locked in a room together by a mistake of her mother. They consider her compromised and refuse to have the marriage performed, whereupon the young lovers are united amid general merry-making.

In the second act there are several opportunities for comedy acting, which Mme. Pavlowa avails herself of very deftly. There is nothing quite like this rôle in the other ballets she has been seen in here, which made her work doubly interesting. Enrico Cechetti, in the low comedy rôle of Lise's mother, did some very amusing burlesque dancing. Mr. Novikoff, in the leading male part, was seen to less advantage than usual.

It was announced yesterday that the ballet at Mme. Pavlowa's farewell performance Saturday evening would be "Amarilla." Short dances, sixteen in all, will follow. Among them will be "The Swan," "The Bacchanale," the Gavotte and Valse Caprice, the pas de trois by Pavlowa, "The Blue Danube" waltzes, "The Moment Musicale," "The Bow and Arrow," the Czardas, the Pastorale, the Obertass, the Pizzicato, the minuet, "The Bird and the Serpent," Chopin's "Idyll," and the Hungarian rhapsody.

Dance for Home Garden Settlement.

A large dance was held at Sherry's last night in aid of the Home Garden Settlement in Harlem's Little Italy. Many of the patronesses gave dinners before the dance. The dancing was continuous. This was one of the first dances of the post-Lenten season to dispense with exhibitions of modern dances. Among the society girls who formed the committee in charge were the Misses Margaret S. Porter, Alida O. Banks, Rosetta Carson, Louise Dixon, Julia Gilbert, Helen de F. Griffin, Coline M. Ingersoll, Margaret C. Overton, Barbara Shedd, Pamela Poor, Margaret E. Trevor, Harriet B. Paris and Margaret R. Warren.

Wm. K. Vanderbilt Arrives.

William K. Vanderbilt arrived on the White Star liner Olympic yesterday and was met at the pier by his son, William K., Jr. He said he had come over only to transact some private business and will return to Europe in three weeks. While the liner was at the end of the pier, waiting to get alongside, Mr. Vanderbilt took a hand at bridge whist with three friends on board, which cost him $11.25 by the time the whistle blew to signify that the ship was fast.

Dr. James P. Tuttle, one of the surgeons who attended James R. Keene, the financier and turfman, in his last illness, left a net estate of $261,080, according to an appraisal filed yesterday. Dr. Tuttle died on Jan. 31, 1913, four weeks after Mr. Keene's death. Among Dr. Tuttle's assets was a claim of $5,200 against the Keene estate for medical services. Mr. Keene's executors, the appraisal shows, rejected the claim at first, but agreed to settle finally for $4,000.

G. A. TOWNSEND, JOURNALIST, DEAD

'Gath,' the Pen Name of Novelist and Verse Writer, Widely Known Here and Abroad.

CIVIL WAR CORRESPONDENT

Associate of Many Famous Men and a Prolific Writer—Veteran Was at Work on His Memoirs.

George Alfred Townsend, a journalist, novelist, and verse writer of many years' activity, who was widely known in America and England under the pen-name of Gath, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, E. F. Bonaventure, 318 West 106th Street. He was 73 years old, and had been in failing health for three years.

Mr. Townsend was born in Georgetown, Del., in 1841, and received his education in the Philadelphia schools. He began his journalistic work on the Philadelphia Inquirer in 1860, and during the civil war he was correspondent at the front for first The New York Herald and later The New York World. He lectured in England on the subject of the civil war and when the Austro-Prussian war began The New York World employed him as its correspondent.

For forty years after 1867 Mr. Townsend wrote a daily letter of from two to four columns in length for The Chicago Tribune and The Cincinnati Enquirer. It was as a signature for these letters that he adopted the pen name Gath, by which he became more widely known than by his own name. In recent years Mr. Townsend had contributed a Sunday letter to The Boston Globe.

When he died Mr. Townsend was at work upon his memoirs, which will be published by his son-in-law. Throughout his long life, Mr. Townsend came into intimate contact with many world figures, of whom he had written in the memoirs. Among those with whom he was closely associated at one time or another were Col. Henry Watterson, Sir Henry M. Stanley, Whitelaw Reid, many of the civil war generals on both sides, all of the Presidents with few exceptions since 1860, and the late King Edward VII., whom he accompanied on his tour of the United States when Prince of Wales.

Besides his newspaper work Mr. Townsend was a somewhat prolific author. Among his works are:

"The Bohemians," a play, 1862; "Campaigns of a Non-Combatant," 1865; "Life of Garibaldi," 1867; "Real Life of Abraham Lincoln," 1867; Poems, 1870; "Mormon Trials at Salt Lake," 1872; "Washington Rebuilded," 1873; "Tales of the Chesapeake," 1880; "The Entailed Hat," 1884; "President Cromwell," drama, 1885; "Tales of Gapland," 1887; "Columbus in Love," 1892, and "Poems of Men and Events," 1900.

Mr. Townsend was an energetic traveler in his prime. He went across nearly a dozen times and visited almost every country in Europe. His principal property is an estate on the battlefield of Crampton's Gap, South Mountain, Md., where a village has grown up since he went there. He named the village "Gapland."

Beside his daughter, Mrs. Bonaventure, Mr. Townsend is survived by a son, George A. Townsend, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Tuesday.....3½@4¼% " " " "
The quotation is for six months' paper.

Lapis-Lazuli in Good Demand.

Lapis-lazuli, which has become almost as rare as the harder transparent precious stones, is much in demand at the moment for bead necklaces. Some of the finer chains of these beads are being made up in five-foot lengths, and the local gem dealers are having difficulty in getting enough good stones of this kind to supply the demand. The amazonite and the rose quartz are also in demand for these necklaces, but, as a rule, blue and green stones are more sought after than those with more delicate shadings. Crystal rondelles play prominent parts in many of these necklaces.

Printcloth Market Quiet.

Quiet was the prevailing note in the local printcloth market yesterday, though some small sales of odd lots of several constructions were put through at current prices. The day's feature in this end of the market was some additional sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 5 cents, though these goods are nominally priced at 5 1-16 cents. There were some small sales of sheetings put through at the prices that have stood for several days. Good buying of organdies continued, and there were also some fair-sized sales of silk and cotton specialties made. The general price tone of the market was fairly firm, despite the continued quiet in the staple end.

Now a Substitute for Wool.

A well-known firm in this city is now showing a new substitute for wool. It is the product of a foreign concern and is made from a vegetable marine growth. The exact nature of this growth is not divulged. The first deliveries of this material are now being made to the domestic mills which have signified their intention of trying it out. The new fibre has a long staple, is easily assimilated with wool and, unlike cotton substitutes for wool, it will accept wool dyes. It weaves up readily when made into yarn, and the texture of the cloth containing it is practically the same as that of an all-wool fabric. It rejoices in the trade name of Saledonia.

Trade Abuses Committee.

Although some are inclined to doubt the ability of the joint conference committee in the needle industries to cope with general trade abuses and problems because of the varied interests represented, a man who was interested in the formation of this committee said this should not be a drawback. In the case of the cancellations, he pointed out, the burden falls and rightly on the manufacturer of men's clothing as on the manufacturer in the women's wear line. If a retailer found that manufacturers, not alone in one industry, but in several, refused to put up with unjustifiable cancellations the practice would soon die out. For the unwarranted return of goods and excessive discount taking, the same holds true.

Profits in Foreign Fabrics.

The number and size of the profits taken out of the foreign product before it reaches the buyer, in the opinion of a local manufacturer well posted on conditions abroad, more than makes up for the difference in labor costs here and in England that caused so much disquiet in this market. The different processes of manufacturing, he said, are so divided up that considerable time and money is spent in turning out the product. The weaver buys his yarns from the spinner, the dyeing house then takes the fabric, and finally it reaches the finisher, who sells to the buyer. Each branch takes its profit. If the same methods were customary here, he pointed out, there might be some reasonable fear to be felt of foreign competition.

Children's Headwear Is Wanted.

"Duplicate orders on Spring lines of children's headwear are coming in freely," said Henry Stauf, head of the firm of G. H. Stiehl & Co., yesterday to a TIMES reporter. "This is especially true of those orders from Chicago and the territory east of that point. The New York City buyers are also taking merchandise freely, though it is said that the business is not being evenly distributed among the various houses in the trade. Staple lines are moving in a fair way, but it is expected that most of the orders now coming forward call for novelty merchandise. Salesmen will leave for their territories with Fall lines in a week or ten days. It is now practically assured that a Fall will show a big demand for velour effects for children's wear, and plushes will also be big. Many new shapes will be shown for the coming season."

Men's Wear Duplicates Coming In.

Duplicate orders for heavyweight men's wear fabrics are beginning to come into the local market, but, according to a well-known selling agent, it will be a week or two yet before it will be known just how "the cat is going to jump." Most of the orders now coming forward disguised as duplicates are really revisions, it is said, but there is a feeling that when the duplicate orders really start coming in they will bring a large volume of business. Most of the clothing manufacturers are said to have bought as lightly as possible at the beginning of the season in an endeavor to force prices down, and as a result will be in the market for liberal quantities when their own lines of fall orders show them where they stand. With the foreign manufacturer discounted, at least so far as the present season is concerned, the outlook is said to be improving materially for the mills making this class of goods.

BIG SHIPMENTS FOR CANAL.

Two Isthmian Railways in 1913 Transported $130,500,000 in Goods.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Evidence of the extent of the traffic which may be expected to pass through the Panama Canal is given in figures made public to-day by the Department of Commerce, which show that in 1913 two small isthmian railways carried $130,500,000 of merchandise brought by vessels from the United States and later shipped to other ports in the United States and foreign countries. Of this trade two-thirds moved westward, the remainder eastward.

Only a few American ports participated in the traffic, New York leading with $84,000,000. San Francisco was second with $21,800,000, and Hawaii third with $18,200,000.

The Tehuantepec Railroad, which is 190 miles long, carried $89,500,000 of the traffic, and the Panama Railway, forty miles long, $31,000,000. The total amount was double that shipped by the same routes in 1908, one year after the opening of the Tehuantepec line.

Oklahoma Oil Now at 85 Cents.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., April 15.—A fourth reduction of five-cents per barrel in the price of crude oil was announced to-day by the pipe line companies in the Oklahoma-Kansas fields. Starting from a basis of $1.05 the companies have reduced the price to 85 cents in what is now said to be an effort to discourage further well drilling until they have facilities for handling the oil.

BUSINESS NOTES.

H. Muehlstein & Co., dealers in scrap rubber, have removed their New York office and warehouse to their new building at 301-305 Washington Street, and 31 Robert Street. This firm was formerly located at 32 North Moore Street.

CANADIAN PRICE NO GUIDE.

That Is, in Settling One Here for Dutiable Purposes.

That the prices at which European exporters ship merchandise to Canada have no bearing for dutiable purposes on the rates quoted on identical goods entered into this country, was the principle laid down yesterday in a reappraisement proceeding by Judge Fischer of the Board of United States General Appraisers.

Herman Boker & Co., New York, purchased cutlery in Solingen, Germany, and invoiced the goods at prices deemed unsatisfactory by the New York Customs officials, who raised the values to make what they considered correct foreign prices. The importers appealed for a reappraisement. At the hearing Assistant Attorney General Wemple, on evidence furnished him by the Treasury's special agents, contended that the sellers of the goods in Germany were shipping the same class of goods to Canada at higher prices than to the United States.

B. A. Levett of Masters & Levett, who appeared in behalf of Boker & Co., insisted that the Canadian invoices could not be considered as evidence of market value, because in the first place the Canadian laws differed from the American as to the dutiable value to be taken on imports, and, secondly, that such invoices are unsworn and unconsulated.

After the submission of the case by the importers, the Government secured the attendance of two Canadian officials, whose testimony showed there are many radical differences between the Canadian practice as to market value. The result of their testimony was that Judge Fischer refused to accept the figures stated on the Canadian invoices as controlling in the case of the Boker importations.

Samples of the goods, mostly knives and razors, were submitted to various members of the trade here, and it was on the basis of their evidence that the decision was made.

ADULTERATED OLIVE OIL.

It Has Been Keeping Down the Price of the Pure Oil.

The statement made by Benjamin F. Chase, American Consul at Leghorn, Italy, that more olive oil is being sent to the United States as pure Lucca or Tuscany oil than these districts produce, has aroused considerable discussion in importing circles. The new tariff materially reduced the rates of duty on olive oil, while that fit only for manufacturing or mechanical use is admitted free by the American customs officials after having been denatured. Since the law became effective last October importations have greatly increased. It was said yesterday in the trade that the American market is suffering from an over-loading of inferior oils, sold as edible to a large section of the consuming public. The customs officers, denature the oil only upon the request of the importer, who if he so elects, may enter adulterated or "treated" oils as edible by paying the regular duties.

Gustave Berges, Secretary of the Strohmeyer & Arpe Co., before leaving for Europe yesterday, had this to say about the flooding of the American market with, to say the least, inferior olive oil:

"The Consul's report bears out the statements we have made many times in our market reports relative to the inferior oils sent to this country from Italy. Naturally such mixtures can be sold for less than the cost of pure Lucca olive oil. Still, this oil may be marked in the same fashion as the highest grades. Reports received by my firm are to the effect that only a very little real, pure olive oil is available.

OATMEAL PRICE WAS FIXED.

So Former Sales Manager Testifies at Federal Hearing.

Evidence of a price-fixing agreement between several of the independent dealers in oatmeal breakfast foods before the alleged trust was formed was given yesterday in the Federal Building at the hearing of the Government's suit against the American Cereal Company under the Sherman law before Miss Kate Holmes, the special examiner. Charles Lacey Plumb, now President of Charles Lacey Plumb, Incorporated, and formerly domestic sales manager of the American Cereal Company, was on the stand.

He said that he, while sales manager, was informed that an officer of the American Cereal Company met representatives of four of the other similar companies in Chicago, and there formed an unnamed association which determined the price of oatmeal, but not of other cereals. The prices preferred by the independents were told to the American Cereal Company, which had the final decision in the matter.

These prices, said the witness, only covered what were known as competitive brands and regional prices were fixed. The American Cereal Company, protested Mr. Plumb, had always resisted all price-cutting.

The Government, in its endeavor to show that the American Cereal Company manufactured 95 per cent. of the oatmeal breakfast foods of the country, is intending to call representatives of all its competitors to find out exactly what they sold. George Morrow, a sales manager of the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling Company, was called with this end in view, and said that the output of the company was only 22,000 barrels a year.

The hearing will be continued to-day.

LACES UNDERVALUED.

Penalties Will Be Enforced on a Lot of Venetian Make.

Heavy undervaluations of Venetian laces are revealed in a reappraisement decision made yesterday by Judge Cooper for the Board of United States General Appraisers. The case before the General Appraiser was said to be typical of many others now troubling the New York appraising officials.

As the result of an investigation following complaints Appraiser Higgins held up a large invoice of the goods shipped to this country by G. Zuanelli of Venice, and consigned to importers in this city, whose identity the officials refused to divulge. The Examiner went through the importaion carefully and recomended heavy advances over the entered prces in order to bring the invoice prices up to those prevailing in the Venetian market for similar goods. Collector Malone assessed duty on the higher valuations, with the result that the American representatives of the exporter appealed to a single General Appraiser for a review.

Judge Cooper's decision demonstrates that the laces in question were seriously undervalued. Coperte pieces of lace, invoiced at $78 each, are held to be properly dutiable on the basis of $88 each, while squares invoiced at $80 apiece are advanced by the decision to $90 each for dutiable purposes. Centre pieces entered at $20 each are found to be worth $25 in the wholesale market at Venice. Other centre pieces were raised from $46 to $55 each. One lot of lace squares stated by the exporter to be worth $38 each is advanced by the decision to $45 each. About the only line allowed to pay duty at the entered value was Ruscin lace. This was invoiced as possessing a value of $5 per piece. Judge Cooper decided that the local Appraiser's advances on this lot were not well founded.

Scarfs measuring 50 by 150 inches also must stand increased duties. They were invoiced at $13 each, and reappraised at $15 apiece. Altogether the shipments included nearly 1,200 articles of Venetian lace, the value of which is reported to be several thousands of dollars. In addition to the regular assessment of 60 per cent. carried in the tariff, the goods will have to stand heavy penalties for undervaluation.

LULL IN WOOL TRADE.

But Mills Are Busy and Prices Show a Firm Tendency.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 15.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Sales of wool are somewhat smaller, aggregating 1,600,000 pounds for the week. The decrease in no wise indicates a lack of interest on the part of manufacturers, nor is it the cause of any uneasiness relative to prices, as it is a seansonal lull. Mills in general are well supplied with orders, particularly in the worsted division advances in prices have been general throughout the trade, and many of our mills are forced to operate on an overtime schedule.

"The women's wear market shows no great activity. Broadcloths are selling with considerable freedom. The conditions on fine and fancy cotton goods are somewhat better than on staple fabrics. Orders have been coming in very freely, though of comparatively small size, and in many instances higher prices are being asked. A feature which is causing considerable anxiety to fine goods manufacturers is the difficulty of obtaining the raw material suitable for the manufacture of certain fabrics.

"The yarn markets continue firm, with a tendency to advance prices on certain numbers. Foreign competition is practically negligible in yarns coarser than 2-50's."

UNION AGENT SCORNS STRIKE INJUNCTION

OBJECT TO AN EXHIBITOR

Electrical Workers Want to Force Duplex Printing Press Co. to Withdraw from Grand Central Palace.

Electrical workers engaged in setting up exhibits for the National Printing Exposition, to be opened next Saturday evening in the Grand Central Palace, struck yesterday.

While Paul McNally, a walking delegate for the International Association of Machinists, was ordering the electricians to quit work, Manager Cochrane ran from his private office in the Grand Central Palace into the main exhibition room on the second floor, where McNally was in conference with the workers, and pinned to McNally's coat a copy of a temporary injunction granted on Monday by United States District Judge Hough.

Under the terms of the injunction McNally and all officers and agents of labor unions were forbidden to call strikes in the Grand Central Palace, or adviso strikes, or make threats against any of the exhibitors at the Printers' show. The temporary injunction was granted to hold until Friday, when officers of the International Association of Machinists were ordered to appear before Judge Hough and show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

When Mr. Cochrane pinned the document on the walking delegate's coat the delegate tore it off and threw it to the ground. He said he didn't know anything about being in contempt of court but that he was "going to pull the job."

He ordered all union men to quit, but just then a private detective seized McNally and told him walking delegates were not wanted in the Grand Central Palace. He shoved McNally out of the main exhibition room and down a flight of stair to the main entrance to the palace. McNally did not attempt to return and order his men out. Half of the electricians at work on the floor threw down their tools and obeyed the walking delegate.

The others stayed at work for a few minutes, as it was nearly time to stop work. It was understood at the Grand Central Palace that unions concerned in the order for a walk out held secret meetings last night to determine what course to follow.

The real test, Manager Cochrane said, would come this morning, when the electricians, sign painters, carpenters, pressmen and helpers are due to report for work at 8 A. M.

Manager Cochrane notified the show's lawyers as to the situation last night, and it was decided to call the attention of Judge Hough to the actions of the walking delegate this morning, with a request that he proceed against the International Association of Machinists for contempt of court.

The trouble at the Printers' Show is purely a fight between two labor unions, according to Mr. Cochrane, and the issue involved is similar to the one fought out recently as to whether metal workers or carpenters should have the right to hang the metal doors in the new types of fire-proof buildings.

In this particular case, instead of quarrelling about doors, the unions quarreled about machines, such as the linotype machines, used in modern printing establishments. Members of the typographical unions held that they had a right to set up the linotype machines on the grounds that these machines were part of the printing business, that had always been their business.

On the other hand, the machinists held that the machines were no less machines because they were used in the printing instead of the refrigerating business, and so the machinists' unions would never concede the right of the typographical unions to set up such machines.

Several years ago the Duplex Printing Press Company became involved in the bitter quarrel of the two unions, and it was called an unfair concern by one faction of the union fighters.

The Printers' Show became involved in this fight when the work of setting up exhibits for the show commenced and labor union men found that exhibits of the Duplex Printing Press Company were among those they were expected to set up.

Threats were made to the President of the National Exposition Company, in charge of the show, that if the Duplex Printing Press Company insisted on having an exhibit at the show there would be no show.

It was said that officials of the American Federation of Labor would call every carpenter, sign painter, electrical worker, pressman, and pressman's helper out of the Palace provided the exhibit of the Duplex Printing Company was set up.

MAYOR SIGNS BUILDING BILL.

Museum of Safety and License Bureau Measures Also Are Approved.

Mayor Mitchel yesterday vetoed five legislative bills and signed seven. Among those approved was one amending the public education law so that the School Census Board can be transferred to the jurisdiction of the Board of Education. It is a companion bill to one which the Mayor already had signed. Another bill authorizes the Board of Education to give $50,000 a year to the American Museum of Safety. The museum was incorporated in 1911 to promote means and methods of safety and sanitation in public or private occupations and to advance knowledge on kindred subjects. In a memorandum to the Governor Mayor Mitchel wrote:

> I am accepting the bill on the general principle that grants of additional power to the local Government can work no harm unless abused, in which case responsibility can be clearly located. I have strong personal doubts, however, whether any money raised by taxation may be given to such an institution as this. I have examined carefully the question of what is a "city purpose," not only for this bill alone, but to draw to the attention of those who ask money for private institutions that they have a very large burden on their shoulders when the request an appropriation from the Board of Estimate.

The Mayor also signed the bill creating a Department of Licenses. All the various license bureaus in the city will hereafter be under one department if Gov. Glynn approves the bill, with a Commissioner and deputy in charge. The Mayor also approved the bill to allow the Board of Estimate to regulate the height of buildings and lay out zones to which certain trades are to be restricted. He also approved the bill to allow the Board of Education to sell, transfer, or turn discarded school books.

Among the bills the Mayor disapproved was one to give a free water supply to the Young Women's Christian Association, thereby putting it in the same class, so far as free water is concerned, with hospitals, orphan asylums, and charitable institutions. He also disapproved the bill to amend the charter so as to consolidate into one act the laws relating to disorderly conduct.

Advertising Bill Now a Law.

The ordinance recently passed by the Aldermen making it a misdemeanor to publish false or misleading advertising became a law yesterday without the Mayor taking action regarding it. The Mayor said he favored the measure. Violation is punishable by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $250, or imprisonment for not less than five days nor more than six months, or both fine and imprisonment. The ordinance includes all advertising, from a handbill to advertisements in newspapers or magazines, bill boards, or even electric signs.

Liggett & Myers to Increase Stock.

Stockholders of the Ligget & Myers Tobacco Company voted at a special meeting yesterday to increase the capital stock from $36,880,200 to $44,256,300 by authorizing the issue of 73,761 shares of preferred stock. It is expected that the new stock will not be put out until the latter part of this year. The vote in favor of the increase was about 90 per cent. of the common stock and about 75 per cent. of the preferred stock.

UNTERMYER HITS FARMERS.

Allowed to Violate Trust Law, He Says—Urges Legislation.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Speaking before the Western Economic Society and the Second National Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits to-day, Samuel Untermyer of New York, in an address advocating the substitution of "regulated competition" for "unrestricted ruinous competition," said that the incredible situation of extending general immunity to the farmers to violate the law while they are demanding and securing its enforcement against the industrial world would not long be tolerated. The real attitude of the farmer as a producer to the trust question, he declared, was unjust, inconsistent, and unwise.

Mr. Untermyer was encouraged to believe that the long struggle between big business and the people was happily nearing its end, notwithstanding the reports of the past few days from Washington that comprehensive legislation was to be postponed until the next session.

"The rumor is incredible," he said. "It would be the worst kind of political blunder and almost a national misfortune if after all this agitation and investigation there is to be further delay in the settlement of this question. The reason offered in favor of the proposed action is the most conclusive argument against it. The obvious dictates of business sense and political expediency require that the agitation be ended. That can be done only by the enactment of the necessary comprehensive legislation. The other method serves only to prolong the existing uncertainty, unless the party in power intends to abandon its programme and violate its campaign pledges, which seems to be the hope of the interests that are now urging delay. If action is to be postponed the Democratic anti-trust policy may as well be considered dead."

VAN TUYL BROUGHT HERE.

Retiring Superintendent of Banks to Head Metropolitan Trust.

George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., who resigned on Tuesday as Superintendent of Banks, was elected yesterday President of the Metropolitan Trust Company, and took charge immediately. The place has been vacant ever since the resignation of Gen. Brayton Ives, who retired on account of illness.

Mr. Van Tuyl, at the time of his appointment as Superintendent of Banks by Gov. Dix, was President of the Albany Trust Company, which he organized, and of which Mr. Ives was a Director. His term would not have expired till May 23, and until Gov. Glynn's new appointee, Eugene Lamb Richards, takes office on May 9, George I. Skinner, First Deputy Superintendent, will be the acting head of the department.

Some quick work was required in converting Mr. Van Tuyl from Superintendent of Banks into a trust company President on the same day and in observing all the legal requirements. The Superintendent cannot own any stock in a financial institution, whereas Mr. Van Tuyl could not even be elected a Director until he was a stockholder.

His resignation as Superintendent was filed with Gov. Glynn at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and immediately accepted. A certificate of stock in the Metropolitan Trust Company had been made out in readiness for the shift and was delivered to him in this city as soon as word came from Albany that he was out of office.

The Directors of the trust company then met and elected him a Director. In order to do this it was necessary to secure the attendance of at least sixteen of the thirty Directors. Then Mr. Van Tuyl had to be sworn in as a Director and the board met again and elected him President, whereupon he was again qualified as an officer.

Everything went off according to programme and by noon, two hours after his resignation, he was installed in the President's office, surrounded by floral tributes, one of which was a big horseshoe of roses from the depositors of the defunct Union Bank of Brooklyn, in recognition of his activities in liquidating its affairs.

A BUSINESS ANNIVERSARY.

Fifty Years of Piano Making on Manhattan Island.

Yesterday marked the fiftieth milestone in the business life of the Kranich & Bach Piano Company of this city. This company was organized and developed in New York City, and the various factories occupied during its long career have all been located on Manhattan Island. Another interesting fact concerning the firm is that since the organization of the present company in the early 70's no one outside of the families of the original partners has held an interest in it. Many of the present employes have been with the firm for thirty to forty years, and the majority of them have been ten to fifteen years in the company's service.

The company from which the present firm grew was founded April 15, 1864. The business was incorporated in 1890, at which time three sons of the partners were admitted to the firm. Upon the death of the elder Kranich in 1902 the following executives, who are still in office, were elected: President, F. K. Bach; Vice President, J. B. Schlosser; Secretary, H. Kranich, Jr., and Treasurer, L. P. Bach, with Conrad Schlosser as an additional Director. The present factory of the company is located at 235 East Twenty-third Street.

United Light and Railway Earnings.

The United Light & Railways Company and its subsidiaries report gross earnings in the fiscal year ended on Feb. 28 of $6,132,718, an increase of $608,980 over the preceding year. Net income was $2,384,196, a gain of $137,220, and the surplus of $1,157,303, after meeting fixed charges, showed an increase of $38,396.

Morrow Enters Morgan Office.

Dwight W. Morrow, a member of the law firm of Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett, has become associated with J. P. Morgan & Co in a confidential capacity. Mr. Morrow will make his headquarters with Morgan & Co.

Pere Marquette Railroad Company

Underlying Bondholders' Committee

1st April, 1914.

To the Holders of the following Bonds:

Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad Co. 1st Mortgage (6s and 4s)
Chicago & West Michigan Railway Co. 1st Mortgage 5s
Flint & Pere Marquette (Port Huron Division) 1st Mortgage 5s
Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad Co. 1st Consolidated Mortgage 5s
Chicago & North Michigan Railroad Co. 1st Mortgage 5s
Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western Railroad 1st Consolidated Mortgage 4s
Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad (Toledo Division) 1st Mortgage 5s
Grand Rapids, Belding & Saginaw Railroad Co. 1st Mortgage 5s
Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron Railroad Co. 1st Mortgage 4s

The above issues of bonds constitute all the bonds secured by underlying liens upon various portions of the railroad of the Pere Marquette Railroad Company, which are superior to the lien of the consolidated bonds dated January 2d, 1901, and of all other bonds of the Pere Marquette Railroad Company issued since that date. Default has been made on such of the interest on the above issues as became payable 1st April, 1914, and it is practically certain that further defaults will be made on succeeding instalments of interest as they become due. Therefore the undersigned have formed a committee for the purpose of protecting the bonds of the above issues which they own and represent, as well as any others deposited with them. A protective agreement has been prepared and copies thereof may be obtained from the secretary of the committee or either of the depositaries named below. Deposits of bonds may be made with such depositaries, who will issue negotiable receipts in customary form. Deposits of all issues may be made with the Old Colony Trust Company, and also deposits of Flint & Pere Marquette (Port Huron Division) 1st mortgage 5s and 1st consolidated mortgage 5s may be made with the Central Trust Company in New York, and of the Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron Railroad Company 1st mortgage 4s may be made with the New York Trust Company in New York.

It is generally known that the affairs of the Pere Marquette Railroad Company, whose property has been in the hands of receivers for several years, are greatly involved, and the action of the receivers in making default upon the underlying bonds is an indication that reorganization is inevitable. In order to enable the committee to take promptly such steps as may prove most effective for the protection of the interests of the deposited bonds, the bondholders are urged to deposit them as soon as possible.

Prices Decline, but Selling Is Lighter—Influence of Mexican News.

Neither in the volume of dealings nor in the extent of the price movement did yesterday's stock market measure up to that of the previous day, but the tendency of quotations remained unaltered. The list vacillated a good deal, but closed in most instances not much above the low prices of the session. Net losses were recorded in a majority of the leading stocks. The Mexican situation was probably uppermost in the minds of most people in the financial district, but the further information which the morning's dispatches brought regarding the Administration's anti-trust legislation programme was not lacking in elements which were calculated to keep the market under some pressure, albeit most of the selling which has lately been depressing prices has seemed to come from professional trading quarters.

The Mexican news had a direct influence upon the chief financial event of the day, the public sale of $65,000,000 4½ per cent. bonds of New York City. The city realized a higher price than for any previous issue of 4½ per cent. bonds and the bids amounted to more than twice the total issue. At the same time there were fewer applicants, and the prices offered were lower on the average than had been expected. For this the Mexican news was held in no small way responsible, for that had cautionary effect, which led some of the bankers who put their bids in at the last moment to name a lower price than they had previously contemplated. Moreover, two, or possibly three, all-or-none bids had been looked for, while only one was actually made. But even after taking count of these facts the issue was highly successful and indicated the presence of a broad demand for municipal issues. The excellence of the bond market is one of the sturdy facts in the present situation, which is smoothing the way for clearing up many obligations now represented by temporary securities. Much advantage will later flow from the financing of permanent character, which is made possible by the existing money situation.

The comments of the steel trade organs upon the situation in that trade suggested a possible change for the better, which, so far, however, lacks any very tangible reflection. The Iron Age said that unfavorable sentiment pervades the steel trade to an extent that might warrant the expectation that any change is likely to be for the better, and it added that most steel works had been able to maintain the same rate of operation as at the beginning of the month. This was cited as an indication that the country's consumption is better than might be judged from the smallness of new orders. It is, of course, well to bear in mind that the decline in the steel trade became pronounced before the recession in other lines went very any effect, which led some of the far. It would cause no surprise, therefore, if the turn for the better in the steel trade should come in advance of any widespread indication of another upswing in business at large. In railroad circles the increase in freight rates is confidently counted on despite the contrary rumors which have received credence in some other quarters. The realization of that hope would be one of the things which could speedily give new life to the steel trade.

So far as the Mexican situation was concerned there was clearly a disposition yesterday to look at the matter calmly in the belief that it was too early to assume that we are drifting inevitably into armed intervention in that country. That the possibilities in this direction presented no acute problem for the stock market was clearly enough indicated by the lessened momentum of trading. It was suggested, too, by the fact that the further reaction was confined to limits which hardly called for special explanation in view of the previous day's sharper declines and the heavy selling to which the market was then subjected. There, were some aspects of this situation, however, upon which the financial community had necessarily to withhold judgment. The foreign markets took the Mexican news quietly enough, its most pronounced effect being reflected in Paris, where the market was heavy, rather than weak.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Indifferent to War Scare.

The stock market is apt on occasions to take fright at something that to a man in any other line of business has no sinister meaning. A whisper that the President is going to proceed vigorously against illegal combinations has been known to cause a quick and general reaction, to the surprise of those people who see nothing unusual in the report that an executive is going to enforce the laws. But on the other hand, factors which might be expected to cause serious unrest are not infrequently ignored. With newsboys shouting "War with Mexico!" and the newspaper headlines indicating imminence of events to bear out their cry, those visitors to the financial district, who hastened yesterday to get into touch with a quotation ticker, found no echo of trouble. On the floor of the Exchange the approaching crisis in the wrangle with Huerta was discussed only as one of a number of unpleasant matters which stand between present dulness and prosperity. Probably the real reason that the matter does not seem more serious is that it appears to be free from any possibilities of entanglement with European nations.

More Work for Commission.

The Western railroads are interested spectators at the hearings at Washington on the application for higher rates. They have their own idea as to the sufficiency of existing charges, and they feel that if the Eastern roads can get 5 per cent., those West of Chicago are entitled to 10 per cent. In this game of "follow-the-leader" they are taking a leaf from the book of their union employees, who appeared quiescent when their associates on the Eastern roads were fighting for higher wages only, to file similar claims immediately on the announcement of an award. On the earnings showing alone, it would seem that roads in the Northwest would have a harder time making out a justification for an increase than the applicants in the pending case, but there are many companies in the South and Southwest which could make out a prima facie case on their annual reports and monthly statements to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Orient Road Reviving.

In spite of the growing seriousness in the relations between this country and Mexico, plans for getting the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Road out of receiver ship are receiving a considerable amount of attention. The reorganization committee has arranged for the sale of a large part of an issue of $5,500,000 of notes to pay off the receivers' certificates, part of them to English bondholders. The notes are a first lien on 725 miles of continuous road in the United States, and on $12,750,000 of bonds. Is it proposed to raise altogether $11,000,000, which would supply funds for building into Kansas City. One of the most striking things about the Orient Road is the thoroughness with which its collapse removed the once famous Arthur E. Stilwell from operations in the financial district. Mr. Stilwell charged that he was a victim of the money trust; certain it was that he never received much help from the banks in Wall Street.

Bulls Turn Bearish for a Time.

Persistent bulls on stocks may become bears occasionally without impairing their original status. There were partisans of the upward side of quotations yesterday who would have preferred to see a severe break in place of the rather indifferent tendency of prices. They believed that the short account was already large, and would have been made so much larger by a heavy selling movement that stocks afterward would have been in a position to be pushed up rapidly to the discomfiture of the shorts.

Mexican Stock Strikes Back

Traders who sought action on the short side in Mexican petroleum yesterday found that the shares had something of the quality described in sporting circles as "kick." Early sales of about 2,000 shares, mostly in lots of 100 shares each, carried the price down from 62⅞ to 60½. The next transaction was at 61, then 100 shares went at 61⅝, and 300 more lifted the quotation to 64½. Dealings were on a small scale after that, and the stock ended the day with a decline of no more than ⅝. The short sellers decided that the significance of developments in Mexico had been pretty well played out for the oil stock in the recession of more than 3 points on Tuesday.

Much Speculation in Oil Shares.

The inclusion of transactions in Standard Oil shares in daily reports of the Curb was strenuously opposed by numerous brokers when the question came up for a vote, but members of the opposition admit now that business was increased by the wider publicity given sales. In fact, trading increased so rapidly that the Curb authorities say they fear difficulties may arise therefrom. With a widened interest in the market came a great expansion of speculation on margin. The oil shares move so rapidly on occasion that a large margin is necessary to insure safety, but Curb officers believe that a great deal of trading is being done on the same basis as Stock Exchange operations in shares far lower in market value than most of the Standard Oil issues. A margin of 20 per cent. is held to be too low. The telegraph business of firms specializing in the shares has increased largely since daily prices were put on the Curb sheets. A single house is operating thirty-two wires running to other cities.

Price of Oil Again Reduced.

The course of prices for crude petroleum is tending in a direction to bring about extensive reductions in the inventory value of producing companies. A reduction of 5 cents a barrel reported yesterday in the Mid-Continent field was the third of this amount to be announced in two weeks. The cut means a marking down in market value of about $7,500,000 on the estimated amount of oil in storage in this field.

$30,000,000 T. & T. NOTES.

Subsidiaries Borrow Directly — To Repay Loans to Parent Company.

Six subsidiary organizations of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company have arranged to sell to local bankers $30,000,000 two-year 5 per cent. notes, all having the indorsement of the parent concern. The notes were apportioned in this way: The Iowa Telephone Company, $2,500,000; the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company, $6,000,000; the Nebraska Telephone Company, $4,000,000; the Missouri & Kansas Telephone Company, $7,500,000; the Northwestern Telephone Exchange Company, $7,500,000, and the Cleveland Telephone Company, $2,500,000.

The sale of these securities is in line with the policy announced by President Vail at the annual meeting of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company of raising funds this year and next on direct borrowing by the constituent concerns. A part of the proceeds, it is understood, will go into the American Company's treasury to liquidate loans previously made to the minor organizations.

CARLTON NEW W. U. HEAD.

Vice President Named to Succeed Vail—Executive Committee Chosen.

Newcomb Carlton was elected President of the Western Union Telegraph Company yesterday to succeed Theodore N. Vail. Mr. Carlton was previously a Vice President in charge of the operations. Mr. Vail's resignation followed the separation of interests of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and the Western Union in pursuance of the agreement recently entered into with the Department of Justice.

The Directors elected a new Executive Committee consisting of Henry P. Davison, Robert S. Lovett, Thomas H. Hubbard, Mortimer L. Schiff, Newcomb Carlton, Henry Bishop, and William H. Baker. A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation of Mr. Vail's management and the new departures he had introduced while in office, including the night-letter and deferred cable services of the Western Union.

Mr. Carlton arrived from a vacation trip in Europe on the Olympic yesterday afternoon and was informed by wireless of his election to succeed Mr. Vail. The message was sent by his colleagues as soon as the result of the meeting of Directors was known.

St. Paul Bonds Good for Savings Bank.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Certain bonds of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company are legal investments for the savings banks of this State, Attorney General Carmody advises the State Banking Department. The bonds which are covered by this opinion are the 25-year 4 per cent. gold bonds of 1909, maturing July 1, 1934; the 4 per cent. 15-year European loan of 1910 debenture bonds, maturing June 1, 1925, and the 4½ per cent. convertible gold bonds, maturing June 1, 1932.

CENTRAL BONDS OFFERED.

$25,000,000 at 95¾, or 4.70 Per Cent. on Investment.

J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City Bank, and the First National Bank are offering jointly $25,000,000 4½ per cent. refunding and improvement mortgage gold bonds of the New York Central Railroad at 95¾, a price to yield about 4.70 per cent. on the investment. The bonds are dated Oct. 1, 1913, and mature on Oct. 1, 2013. They are part of a total purchase of $40,000,000 by J. P. Morgan & Co. of an authorized issue of $70,000,000.

The annual interest charges of the New York Central will not be increased by the issue, as the proceeds will be used in entirety to retire existing obligations. The bonds are secured by a direct general mortgage, subject to underlying bonds on the 1,827 miles of line owned in fee by the company, and also by pledge of the company's leasehold interest in the West Shore, the New York & Harlem, and various smaller properties.

DISPUTED MARRIAGE LANDS MAN IN CELL

Alfred Ottenheimer's Bail Revoked After Woman Tells of Alleged Wedding in 1903.

WEEPING WIFE BESIDE HIM

Complainant Says Defendant Showed His Fondness by Giving Her Name to Brand of Corsets.

Alfred Ottenheimer, a corset manufacturer, who lives at the Hotel Ansonia, was placed on trial before Judge Nott in General Sessions yesterday on a charge of bigamy. At the close of the session he was committed to the Tombs, Judge Nott refusing to continue his bail of $5,000.

The complainant and chief witness is Mrs. Lillian Irene Morris Ottenheimer, who says Ottenheimer married her in August, 1903, and that nine years later he married again, without getting a divorce.

"I knew that Ottenheimer had been married before," she testified, "and that his first wife was dead. I met him in 1902, when I was 19 years old. At that time I was interpreter at one of the large department stores. He asked me several times to marry him, but my parents objected. On Aug. 27, 1903, I met him uptown and we went to Mahwah, N. J., where we were married by a Justice of the Peace named De Baun. The only ceremony was: 'Take hands,' and then, 'I pronounce you man and wife.'

"My husband and I returned to a New York hotel to live. Then we took an apartment in West 106th Street. Later we moved to White Plains. I was introduced by Ottenheimer as his wife and his father came to live with us. He died in our home and I wore mourning for him. Five years after our marriage we got a dispensation and had a religious ceremony. Father Courtney of White Plains performed it in the presence of witnesses."

Mrs. Ottenheimer declared she and her husband began to quarrel. On Nov. 15, 1912, she charged, he married Sadie Irene Smith at the Hotel Leonore. The ceremony was performed by Municipal Court Justice Lauer.

Harford T. Marshall, counsel for Ottenheimer, said that his client admitted the marriage to Miss Smith. The defendant will deny that there was a ceremony in the case of the other woman. According to the complainant, Ottenheimer went so far as to name a brand of corsets for her.

Mrs. Sadie Irene Smith Ottenheimer was in court and spent a tearful fifteen minutes with her husband before he was taken to the Tombs. The case will be continued to-day, when Mrs. Lillian Ottenheimer will finish her story.

COURTS GOOD; SYSTEM BAD.

G. W. Wickersham Says We Need a "Court of the Dusty Feet" Here.

George W. Wickersham, ex-Attorney General of the United States, gave the first of a series of lectures on "Fundamental Principles of American Government," at the Labor Temple, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, last night. He praised the justices of the courts of this State but condemned the procedure.

"We have got splendid judges, better than in almost any other State," he said. "But they are enmeshed in the mass of cumbersome machinery of the law that have grown around the judiciary and for years have hampered the administration of justice. A big, unwieldy form of procedure has grown up until every lawyer and every business man knows that from the time a case is started in the courts to the time it comes before a judge it is a tedious and endless delay in getting justice, and is expensive and unsatisfactory to all concerned.

"Let us have a 'court of the dusty feet,' if you please, like that established in England, to meet the needs of swift commerce with prompt decisions; courts that will hear the cases of men from the market places with dust on their feet, and where decisions may follow on the day of the hearings, ere the sun goes down."

The ex-Attorney General paid a tribute to the late Senators Hoar and Cullom, each of whom served nearly thirty years in the United States Senate.

OFFERS TO FIGHT TEACHER.

Policeman Is Called In and Arrests 14-Year-Old Boy.

A 14-year-old schoolboy challenged Principal Frank Stevens of Public School No. 94, at Sixth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, to a fight yesterday. Mr. Stevens called in Policeman Francis Nolan and the boy was arrested. He said he was William Cardoza, of 66 Fifty-first Street.

At a hearing before Judge Wilkin in the Children's Court later in the day the principal said that the boy became insolent when he asked for a transfer card to another school and it was refused. Mr. Stevens said he was compelled to have the boy forcibly ejected from the school and placed under arrest when he removed his coat, put up his arms in a pugilistic attitude and appeared ready to fight him unless he received the transfer card.

Judge Wilkin committed the boy to the Children's Society and adjourned the hearing until April 20.

SALMAGUNDI'S MUGS SOLD.

Auction After Club's Fifteenth Annual Dinner Brings $1,024.

The fifteenth annual dinner of the Salmagundi Club was held last night at the club's galleries, 14 West Twelfth Street, and the annual auction sale of mugs painted by members brought in a fund of $1,024. This is to be used for the club's library. There were twenty-four mugs decorated by twenty-four artists selected by the club.

A mug decorated by J. Francis Murphy, a landscape painter, in Delft blue, was purchased by J. Sanford Saltus for $400. Raymond Perry's mug brought $200, and one painted by E. S. Crawford was sold for $100. William T. Evans, the art collector, purchased for a similar price a mug decorated by Henry B. Snell.

Nearly a hundred members of the Salmagundi Club and their invited guests attended the dinner and auction. The evening's entertainment was arranged by Charles Vezin, President of the club, and Albert A. Southwick, Chairman of the Library Committee.

SEEKS CITY WORKERS' AID.

Mr. Bruere Wants Men in Ranks to Co-operate with Heads.

City Chamberlain Bruere submitted to the Mayor yesterday a plan to establish closer co-operative relationship between the city employes and the municipal department heads in order that the city might benefit from the experience of those who had been long in the city's employ, or who had original ideas on administrative matters. Mr. Bruere believes that the city employes are under a sort of "feudal" system, and that they should be in closer touch with the heads of departments.

To carry out his suggestion, the Chamberlain asked the Mayor to appoint at once a committee, consisting of one employe from each city department, to study the relations between the city and its employes and make recommendations to enable the minor employe to put his ideas into effect, if they were worthy.

Anhut Back in the Tombs.

John N. Anhut, who since his conviction for attempted bribery in his efforts to get Harry K. Thaw out of Matteawan has been out on bail pending his appeal, was lodged in the Tombs yesterday. Almost a year has elapsed since his conviction, and District Attorney Whitman called the fact to the attention of the Appellate Division, which decided that the appeal was not being prosecuted in good faith, and ordered that argument be made on April 28, the defendant meanwhile to remain in custody.

MRS. BERNARD SHAW HERE.

Wife of Author Says He May Lecture In America.

Mrs. Bernard Shaw, wife of the author, arrived here yesterday from England on the White Star liner Olympic, accompanied by Miss Lena Ashwell, the English actress. Mrs. Shaw said that she had come to see what America was like.

"I had to come without my husband because all my efforts to get him to make the voyage were unavailing," Mrs. shaw continued. Mr. Shaw is a very bad sailor, but there is a possibility that he will come over later to deliver a series of lectures."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The southern storm has reacher Virginia with somewhat increasing energy, and the rain area during the last twenty-four hours covers the Ohio Valley and the Atlantic States, except Northern New England and Florida.

Northeast gales have occurred on the Middle Atlantic and Southern New England Coasts, Long Branch, N. J., reporting a maximum velocity of eighty-eight miles per hour from the northeast.

The North Pacific disturbance has moved east and now extends from Western Colorado to Saskatchewan, with the principal centre of depression over the latter section, and rains have fallen over the middle and northern districts west of the Rockies; over the remainder of the country the weather was fair.

Temperatures are generally below the seasonal average over the east rain area and west of the Rockies, while elsewhere they have risen considerably and are much above the seasonal.

There will be rain Thursday over New England, possibly some snow in Maine, and rain in the lower lake region and north portion of the Middle Atlantic States, followed by generally fair and somewhat warmer weather Friday.

In the upper lake region and the Ohio and upper Mississippi Valleys the weather will be warmer and generally fair Thursday and Friday, while in the Missouri Valley and the Southwest it will continue fair and warm.

West of the Rocky Mountains the weather will be generally fair Thursday and Friday, except over the north sections, where showers will continue Thursday.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for rodman and chainman, to fill vacancies as they may occur in the Interstate Commerce Commission under the act providing for the valuation of the property of common carriers, at salaries ranging from $720 to $1,080 a year, with necessary expenses when absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties. Competitors will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated on physical ability and training and experience.

Applicants must have had at least a common school training, must be physically qualified for performing the duties required in the position, be free from color-blindness, and must have reached their eighteenth but not their twenty-eighth birthday on the date of the examination. Applications will be received at any time. Registers will be established shortly or more frequently if the needs of the service require. Applications, to receive consideration for any particular quarter, must be filed in complete form not later than fifteen days before the beginning of that quarter. In view of the needs of the service, however, the first register will be established on or about June 1, 1914, instead of July 1, 1914. The period of eligibility is one year from the date of entering a name upon the register. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

PASSENGER RATES LOWER.

Effect of Long-and-Short-Haul Readjustment May 1.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Readjustment of passenger rates on all Interstate railroads in the United States in conformity with the long and short haul law, under orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will become effective May 1. The new tariffs filed by the roads indicate a material reduction in fares, particularly from important terminals and rate-basing points to intermediate points.

It is estimated by officials of the commission, that "85 per cent. of the changes in fares will be reductions" and 5 per cent. increases. Such advances as are made are between terminals or as basing points. Except in such instances as the commission may grant permission to the carriers for well-defined reasons to exact a higher rate for the shorter than for the longer haul, the roads will be required precisely to conform to the law's provision.

To what extent compliance with the orders may affect the revenues of the roads the Commission has no means of determining accurately, because "that will depend largely upon the volume of traffic, which is a variable quantity.

ONE BID TAKES ALL CITY 4 1-4S AT 101.45

Kuhn, Loeb and William A. Read Syndicate Offer Succeeds by a Narrow Margin.

CITY'S PREMIUM $942,500

And the Best Price Obtained Since 1909—232 Bids, but Only One for "All or None."

The entire issue of $65,000,000 of New York City bonds bearing interest at the rate of 4¼ per cent. went to a syndicate composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and William A. Read & Co., Controller Prendergast announced last night after his experts had worked for hours tabulating the bids. The Kuhn, Loeb-Read syndicate was the highest bidder, its bid being 101.45. Its total bid was $65,942,500, the city thereby getting a premium of $942,500.

The Kuhn, Loeb-Read syndicate obtained the entire issue only by the narrow margin of $2,387.63. The average bid of 147 others was 101,446, and but for the slight increase offered by the Kuhn, Loeb-Read syndicate, the issue would have been parceled out among the bidders. The difference between the successful bid and the next nearest amounted to only four mills on the dollar or $4 on each $1,000 for the entire issue. The total bid of the unsuccessful bidders was $63,940,112.37.

There were 232 bidders in all and the total of all their bid was $193,187,350, thereby oversubscribing the issue by more than $128,000,000. Controller Prendergast said he was greatly pleased at the outcome of the sale. He issued this statement:

The $65,000,000 of New York City bonds sold to-day will be awarded to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and William A. Read & Co., the syndicate bidders, who bid 101.45. This price produces a premium to the city of $942,500. The margin between the total of the syndicate bid and the highest offerings of the individual bidders was very close, the difference between these classes being only $2,387.63. In accordance with our policy to award the bonds to the highest bidder, so that the city shall get the greatest gross benefit in dollars and cents, the bonds will be awarded to the syndicate.

The city officials are all very much gratified with the high price brought by this last offering of bonds. Although the quotations for the last few days have indicated a price in this neighborhood, it is a better figure than the city had reason to look for when the rate of 4¼ per cent. was fixed only two weeks ago. It is the highest price obtained by the city for any offering of bonds since the early part of 1909.

The income basis of the bonds just awarded will be 4.15 per cent. We all feel very happy over the marked success of this sale, and especially because it is the fifth consecutive successful sale beginning with that of March, 1910.

Morgan Not a Bidder.

One feature of the sale was the fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. were not among the bidders. Controller Prendergast opened the bids during the afternoon at his office on the fifth floor of the Municipal Building. Mayor Mitchel was present and complimented the Controller.

"The bids," he said, "prove the wisdom of the Controller's decision in fixing the rate at 4¼. We are greatly pleased with the showing."

Seligman Brothers, London fiscal agents of the city, cabled to the Controller directly twenty-four bids, totaling $1,987,000 at 100 to 102. The Guaranty Trust Company bid for the largest amount, aside from the successful bidder. They asked for $500,000, or 7,000 each at 101.0113 to 101.8613. The bids ranged over 101. The bonds are for fifty years, and of the $65,000,000, $35,000,000 is authorized by the charter "for various municipal purposes." The sum of $20,000,000 is to provide for supply of water and $10,000,000 for the construction of rapid transit railroads. The last sale of bonds was in May, 1913, when $45,000,000 of fifty-year bonds, paying 4½, were offered.

In obtaining the city's $65,000,000 new bonds, the combination of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and William A. Read & Co. scored its second great success this year in the market for bonds in this State. On Jan. 21 the two banking firms, acting jointly, reached over the head of a large syndicate led by the Guaranty Trust Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., and Lee Higginson & Co., and took $51,000,000 State 4½s with a bid of 106.077. The syndicate's bid was 105.53. The entire issue was sold within a few hours on the day following the sale at Albany, at an estimated profit to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and William A. Read & Co. of about $600,000.

These are the bids that came into the Controller's office for the city bonds:

BETTER PRICES EXPECTED.

Financial District Thought Other Syndicates Would Bid for All Bonds.

The financial district was well satisfied with the sale of city bonds, although it had been expected that a somewhat better price would be realized than the result of the bidding showed. The fact that there was only one "all or none" bid brought a surprise to some quarters of the Street, where the prediction had been made that at least two, and perhaps three, banking syndicates would attempt to get the entire issue.

The influence of the sudden change in Mexican affairs was discerned in both the number of the bids and the prices offered for the bonds. Close observers of the bond market said after the trend of bidding was outlined on the ticker services that the city would probably have received a considerably better figure than was paid if there had been no possibility of difficulties between this country and Mexico.

When the price to be paid became clear, active trading in contracts for the new bonds occurred on the Curb. From a minimum quotation of 101 3-16 sales were made up to 102 3-16. A total of $1,250,000 changed hands in the open-air market.

Borough President Outlines Plan to Establish a Manhattan Commission.

Borough President Marks said yesterday that he intended soon to appoint a Manhattan Borough Commission to act as an advisory board for the borough, with the idea that later on it would form the basis of a Greater New York Commission. President Marks's first move in this direction was the reappointment yesterday of the Fifth Avenue Commission, with the addition of three new members.

The commission now consists of Arnold W. Brunner, chairman, and Joseph S. Auerbach, Edward Holbrook, George F. Kunz, Nelson P. Lewis, George T. Mortimer, and Robert Grier Cooke, who were reappointed. The new members are Walter Stabler, Felix M. Warburg, and Bradley Martin, Jr.

The Manhattan Commission will be made up of a union of twelve district commissions, to be named by the President of the Borough. These will be based upon the Neighborhood Associations already in existence, and if others are formed they will be added where the district is not already covered by previous appointments.

"The work done by the local improvement commissions and neighborhood associations has impressed me as one of the best features in recent civic development," said Mr. Marks. "I know from personal study that in many districts of the city the neighborhood associations have developed very important improvements. These neighborhood commissions will not interfere with the present Local Improvement Boards, now made up of Aldermen in the various districts, but will co-operate and, in the main, act through such boards."
